ASQUITH MOVES HOME RULE BILL

Senate and House of Commons for Ireland—42 Irish Members at Westminster.

NO IRISH IMPERIAL TAXES

SAFEGUARDS FOR ULSTER

Unionists Regard Them as Insufficient and Denounce the Measure—The Scene in Parliament.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, April 12.—There was a historic scene in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, when Premier Asquith introduced the third Irish Home Rule bill.

Shorn only of Gladstone's magnificent voice and great personality, the occasion was as dramatic, crowded, and striking as on the occasion of the presentation of the last previous Home Rule bill in 1893.

The note of the hour while Mr. Asquith was unfolding the complicated details of the bill was a sort of leaden stillness. The Premier looked rather pale and drawn, and impressed by the tremendous burden of the occasion as he spoke.

It is twenty-six years ago this week since the greatest figure in modern Liberal politics brought the first Government of Ireland measure before the House of Commons, and split his party wide asunder, and there is little wonder that the House was haunted by memories of that overpowering personality.

It was nine minutes to 3 when the Speaker took the chair, and five minutes later the Prime Minister entered to the accompaniment of tumultuous applause from his supporters and the Irishmen massed opposite. A moment later John Redmond, the leader of the Home Rule Party, entered to a more modified storm of welcome.

Mr. Asquith, as had been predicted, got his speech into almost exactly two hours. Curiously enough, the first cheer which he obtained in the course of the speech came from the Unionists. He made a reference to Ireland and its connection with the "Empire at large." The Unionists broke into his utterance with an almost fierce volume of cheering.

As Mr. Asquith proceeded with his speech, reading it from small sheets on the dispatch box before him, he seemed to get more at ease. Suddenly the Prime Minister stopped, turned to the bright red box, drew out a stack of papers, and informed the House that he was going to state the proposals of the bill. This was what everybody was waiting for, and necks were craned forward above and below.

Unionists' Attitude Sarcastic.

Much of the Premier's speech was devoted to an attempt to drive in upon the House and upon the country a sense of the security the rest of the Kingdom would have in the various safeguards which had been put into the bill, but there were smiles of sarcasm and curled lips of scorn on the Unionist benches as Mr. Asquith sought to show how safe the Protestant minority in Ireland would be.

Afterward Sir Edward Carson, black-haired, calm, eloquent, and penetrating, rose and declared that the Unionists would oppose the bill every moment it was before the House of Commons.

Mr. Balfour, who moved the adjournment of the debate just before the House rose at 11:07 P. M., secured for himself the right to resume the debate on Monday.

Unworkable, Says the Standard.

Commenting editorially on the bill, The Standard (Unionist) says:

"Concerning the third Home Rule bill, introduced by Mr. Asquith, the best criticism is the term with which Sir Edward Carson opened his trenchant attack upon the Prime Minister's statement, 'the scheme is absolutely unworkable, a budget of fantastic proposals which would inevitably go to pieces in practice.'

"It is worse than its predecessors, for it is more complex than either. Gladstone's first bill is crudely simple in comparison. Mr. Asquith's is equally dangerous, quite as inequitable, and so clogged and hampered by the involution of imperial and local authority that it must break down in hopeless confusion.

"Human ingenuity could hardly have conceived a project more likely to embitter the relations between two portions of the Kingdom or to weaken and humiliate one without producing the smallest benefit to the other."

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) says in part:

"There is an obvious lesson to be drawn from the fact that, while the Home Rule bill was introduced by the Premier and discussed by his supporters with the seriousness and dignity exacted of British politicians engaged in such a task, it was received by the Ulster Party in a spirit of frivolousness which bordered more than once

DIX NOT SEEKING OFFICE.

Governor Declares Himself When Told He Is One of the Big Four.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—"I want to say that I am not a candidate for any office," was the voluntary statement made by Gov. Dix this afternoon when informed by the newspaper correspondents at the Capitol that he had been selected as one of the big four to the National Democratic Convention.

"Do you mean by that both before the State and National Convention?" was asked.

"Yes; I mean to convey that I am a candidate for no political office."

"Would you accept a renomination for Governor?" was then asked.

"I haven't given that matter any thought."

Commander de Kay said subsequently that the Governor was quite run down in health and that was the reason for his contemplated trip abroad on April 20. He will return just in time to go to Baltimore. The Governor's voluntary statement, with that of Commander de Kay, is taken here to mean that the Governor does not look for a renomination, even should he care for it.

When told of his selection as one of the big four, Gov. Dix replied that he appreciated his selection very much and also the honor which it conveyed. When told that the delegates were uninstructed, he said:

"I am glad that the New York delegates will go to Baltimore unpledged."

BLIGHT OF LORIMER VOTE.

Senators Who Favored Him on First Test Defeated, Retired, or Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The defeat of Senator Cullom in the Illinois primaries on Tuesday calls attention to the extraordinary fatality that has befallen the members of the Senate who voted last year for Mr. Cullom's colleague, Senator Lorimer, to retain his seat when the case was first tried in the Senate. Every one who voted for him and has since come up for reelection has either been defeated or previously announced his retirement from the race.

Ten of the Senators who voted for Mr. Lorimer retired from the Senate for good three days later, and one of them—Mr. Carter of Montana—is dead. Five others have either withdrawn from politics or been defeated. Mr. Frye of Maine did not come up for re-election, but he is dead. Of the five Senators who did not vote one way or the other, Mr. Lorimer alone remains a member of the Senate, though still under charges, and one of the five has since died.

The ten Senators who retired indefinitely from public life three days after casting their votes for Mr. Lorimer were Mr. Hale of Maine, Mr. Scott of West Virginia, Mr. Kean of New Jersey, Mr. Bulkeley of Connecticut, Mr. Depew of New York, Mr. Piles of Washington, Mr. Dick of Ohio, Mr. Burrows of Michigan, Mr. Carter of Montana, and Mr. Flint of California. The two who have actually been defeated in primaries for re-election are Mr. Cullom of Illinois and Mr. Foster of Louisiana. The three who have withdrawn in face of opposition are Mr. Paynter of Kentucky, Mr. Bailey of Texas, and Mr. Guggenheim of Colorado.

The five Senators who did not vote were Mr. Aldrich of Rhode Island, Mr. Frazier of Tennessee, Mr. Lorimer, Mr. Taliaferro of Florida, and Mr. Terrell. Of these Mr. Aldrich's term expired three days after the vote. Mr. Frazier was paired against Mr. Lorimer; he has since died. Mr. Taliaferro's position was not explained and he was defeated. Mr. Terrell of Georgia was paired against Mr. Lorimer; he was defeated by Hoke Smith.

Of the Senators who voted to unseat Mr. Lorimer only five have been defeated. They are Mr. Beveridge of Indiana, Mr. Burkett of Nebraska, Mr. Young of Iowa, Mr. Warner of Missouri, and Mr. Percy of Mississippi.

BANK TO CLOSE FOR GOOD.

Small Chance That New Berlin Institution Will Reopen Doors.

UTICA, N. Y., April 11.—The First National Bank of New Berlin, which closed its doors to-day will probably be discontinued, according to one of the officers of the bank. He said to-night that there was a movement on foot to start another bank.

Financial trouble was discovered by the bank officials only after the resignation Monday of Cashier Frank Arnold. His successor refused to accept the position until an audit had been made. This investigation of the books resulted in the bank closing to-day.

Mr. Arnold's resignation followed a rather peculiar experience. About the first of the month he complained to the authorities that there was an attempt to blackmail him by a New York man. He said that on a promise not to publish certain letters, he gave to Charles H. Holland of New York $625, and that subsequently a demand was made for $10,000. This was refused and Holland came on to interview Arnold.

A representative of a detective agency waited at the Arnold home, and then arrested Holland. He is now awaiting action of the Grand Jury of Chenango County, having been held in $5,000 bail by County Judge Stratton. His attorney is ex-Senator Aulds and a man named Brooks, whom Arnold said was a Tammany Hall leader, came from New York to furnish bail.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—National Bank Examiner H. W. Clarke, who last inspected the books of the First National Bank in New Berlin, N. Y., has been instructed to assist Examiner Rorebeck in his investigation of the institution. According to the examination of the bank on Jan. 24, its total assets and liabilities were $630,000, including $100,000 capital stock, $61,000 surplus and undivided profits, and $371,000 individual deposits.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 11.—Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory has come into the possession of Harvard College through the will of Abbott Lawrence Rotch of Milton, who died on Sunday.

The instrument was filed in the Dedham Probate Court to-day, and the testator provides that the observatory so long maintained by Mr. Rotch on the summit of Blue Hill, and its equipments, are to be given to Harvard College. In addition Mr. Rotch leaves $50,000 to the college to be held in trust for the maintenance of the observatory.

The balance of the estate is left to his widow, Margaret Randolph Rotch. William Rotch and Henry Parkman, both of Boston, are named as executors.

Edward C. Pickering, Director of the Harvard Observatory, was glad of the disposition made by Mr. Rotch, but he could not tell how the acquisition would be utilized.

President Lowell had known something about the probable disposition of the observatory, but he did not know of the endowment fund, and he was particularly pleased to hear that money had been left for maintaining the observatory.

Everything Just as Ordered.

Democrats who have attended every convention of their party in this State for more than a generation, and who have been accustomed to watch well-oiled machinery moving without perceptible jar, when a forceful boss was at the throttle, declared that yesterday's event had everything they ever witnessed "beaten a mile." There was such absolute unanimity in everything that was done as to compell the admiration of the most seasoned Tammanyite present.

"Gee!" said "Al" Smith, majority leader of the Assembly, after it was all over. "This was some convention, believe me. I never saw such harmony in any convention I ever went to."

The exact working time of the convention was two hours and forty-five minutes. Most of that time was occupied by the speeches of the Temporary and Permanent Chairmen of the convention. Seymour Van Santvoord, who acted as Temporary Chairman, took forty-five minutes to deliver his speech. John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, who was Permanent Chairman, spoke for an hour. Half an hour more was occupied by calling the roll of the 450 delegates twice, so that in reality all the time left for the convention to do real business was about thirty minutes.

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy was the central figure of the convention. When he entered the convention hall he received an ovation. From time to time the delegates heard the names of such Democrats as Jefferson, Tilden, and Cleveland, or the names of living Democrats who are in the race for the Presidential nomination fall from the lips of the speakers. At the mention of such names they became mildly interested and even rose to the occasion with a little applause. But when the name of Charles F. Murphy was mentioned the delegates got up and cheered.

Just once during the final session of the convention did Mr. Murphy's smile give way to a frown. That was when Daniel J. Dugan, who, nominally at least, has taken the place of Patrick E. McCabe at the head of the Democratic organization of Albany County, offered a resolution providing that the New York delegation be bound by the unit rule.

The resolution had scarcely been read when John K. Sague, the young Mayor of Poughkeepsie, who habitually does some thinking and talking along independent lines in Democratic Party gatherings he attends, rose and demanded the floor.

"I feel it my duty to register my protest," said Mayor Sague. "I speak as a regular Democrat, too. I am a banker, but I have voted for William J. Bryan three times out of party loyalty. That ought to be a pretty good test.

"We are for liberty. We stand for Democratic principles, and yet you propose to deliver the entire New York delegation, bound hand and foot, to vote for the nomination of some candidate in whom, perhaps, many members of the delegation have no confidence, instead of letting each member vote as his conscience dictates. I say that this is un-Democratic, and I say further that we ought to stand for an open and fair fight between all the candidates. Let each delegate vote as he thinks best for the people and for his party, and let the best man win."

Mayor Sague evidently stood almost alone in his fight against the unit rule. As soon as he had concluded there came cries of "Question! question!" from all parts of the hall, and when the question

WILL BE READY IN 1914

New Pier Will Have to be Built Here for Her—Line's Present Ships for Pacific Service.

A contract for building a 54,000-ton transatlantic liner, which means a ship that will be 4,000 tons larger than the Hamburg-American liner Imperator now in process of construction and nearly 8,000 tons bigger than the Olympic and the Titanic, was let by the North German Lloyd line yesterday, and it is stated that the letting of this contract is probably the forerunner of several other similar contracts, which will mean that by 1915 the great German company will own a fleet of these giant liners.

The exact tonnage of the new liner, which has been designed to be the speediest of its type afloat, is not given, but it is stated that her tonnage will be about twice that of the George Washington. The George Washington is a 27,000-ton vessel. The name of the new liner is also not announced, but the understanding is that one of the great names in American history will be chosen.

The announcement that the North German Lloyd Line has gone all the other transatlantic companies one better followed the receipt of a cablegram from the Bremen office to the New York agents. This message said that the contract has been awarded to the Schichau Shipbuilding Company of Danzig, Germany, and that the new liner will be ready for service in August, 1914.

Will Cost $10,000,000.

The new liner will cost about $10,000,000 and will be the last word in ocean luxury. There will not be a single berth in the entire ship, and there will be a bed for every one, from the millionaire who pays a small fortune for a suite on the promenade deck to the humble steerage passenger.

Nothing will be left undone to make the liner not only the speediest of her class, but also one of the most splendidly appointed. For the interior work the eminent German interior architects, Bruno Paul, Schroeder & Poppe, have been awarded the contract. They are the architects who worked out the details of the interior decorations and fittings of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie and the George Washington, at the present time the finest vessels in the North German Lloyd fleet.

The announcement given out yesterday further states that the new liner has been designed so as to make possible a transatlantic schedule that will approach the regularity of an express train. The length, width, and other dimensions of the ship were not made public, neither was the contract figures.

The letting of this contract, it is said, also forecasts the entering on a large scale of the North German Lloyd into the Pacific trade that will be opened to the world with the completion of the Panama Canal.

For a Pacific Service.

It is understood in shipping circles that the construction of a fleet of mammoth liners such as that contracted for yesterday will probably mean that the North German Lloyd liners of the Kaiser Wilhelm II. class will probably be utilized for a service from New York to San Francisco via the canal. There are four liners of the Kaiser Wilhelm II. class—Kaiser Wilhelm II., the Kronprinz Wilhelm, the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, and the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. With the George Washington they are now the stars of the North German Lloyd service.

Lending color to this report, it is pointed out that Philip Heineken, Managing Director of the North German Lloyd Line, was in the United States a few weeks ago and that during that visit Herr Heineken made a visit to the Pacific Coast, where he is believed to have looked into dock facilities at San Francisco and other leading Pacific ports.

On his return to New York Herr Heineken did not give out any public statement as to the object of his trip to the Pacific Coast, nor has he made any public statements since he returned to Germany. That he had in mind the New York-Pacific service via the canal, however, is the general belief in shipping circles.

In the case of the 54,000-ton liner contracted for yesterday, one of the questions sure to arise is where will she dock when she comes to New York. Certain it is there are no piers in Hoboken long enough to accommodate her at the present time, on which side of the river all of the North German Lloyd liners now dock.

All of the docking space in the North River on the New York side is now in use, and even if there are pier extensions by 1914 that would permit the docking of a liner so huge as the proposed new German ship, it is doubtful if the German company can acquire them as they are leased already to rival lines, every one of which is building or has projected ships of great tonnage.

Comparison with Other Ships.

A few comparisons with other ships built and building will give the best idea of the size of the mammoth North German Lloyd liner. The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse ten years ago was one of the fastest and largest liners afloat. The new ship will be almost four times as large. She will be more than three times as big as the battleship Connecticut, the flagship of the United States Atlantic Fleet. She will be 14,000 tons bigger than two dreadnought North Dakotas, and almost exactly twice as big as the great dreadnought Wyoming, now nearing completion for the American Navy. The same comparisons hold true for the dreadnoughts of all other navies.

As for transatlantic liners the follow-

REPUBLICAN RIOT SPLITS MICHIGAN

TWO SETS OF DELEGATES

Special to The New York Times.

BAY CITY, Mich., April 11.—Fist fighting, rioting, and general bedlam, despite the presence of a throng of police and a company of militia, and a final climax of a split into two conventions, each naming delegates to Chicago—these were the lively features of the State gathering of Michigan Republicans to-day. In the violence of the conflict and the bitter feeling manifested between the adherents of Taft and Roosevelt, numbering in all 1,800 men, claiming fewer than 1,400 seats, the day's proceedings went beyond the fears of the saner members of the party who had seen with alarm the preliminary rows in various district conventions throughout the State.

The Roosevelt forces named as delegates Gov. Chase S. Osborn, Charles Nichols, of Detroit; Sybrant Wesselius, of Grand Rapids; H. F. Boughey, of Traverse City; Theodore Joslyn, of Adrian, and W. D. Gordon, of Midland.

After the convention State Chairman W. Frank Knox, former Rough Rider and an adherent of the third-term boom, was ousted from his office by the State Committee, and Alexander J. Grosbeck, of Detroit, a Taft man, was elected to succeed him.

Newberry Watched the Fracas.

Truman H. Newberry, Roosevelt's Secretary of the Navy in the last year of his Administration, who was dropped from consideration for temporary Chairman of the convention by the State Committee last night, refused to preside over the rump Roosevelt convention to-day. During the riotous scenes at the door of the convention hall, preceding the admission of the delegates to the hall, he stood on a doorstep across the street, watching events, but taking no part.

The hour for opening the convention was 11 o'clock. When the Taft delegates arrived from Detroit they found the doors locked, the Roosevelt delegates massed in front ready to rush into the hall the moment the doors were opened, and Capt. Luther Bechwith and the militiamen patrolling the interior, ready to eject any Taft man who might try to enter.

Taft Men Gain Advantage.

The Taft men quickly planned their campaign. They agreed to have the members of the State Committee admitted to the hall. The latter, once inside, proceeded to the platform and demanded that Chairman Knox call the committee to order. Knox refused, and Secretary King acted in his stead. Knox jumped to his feet and shouted that the meeting was illegal because only the Chairman had a right to preside.

But the Taft men, holding a majority, proceeded to business under the rule that a majority may call a special meeting in case the Chairman fails or refuses to act. They issued instructions to the Sergeant at Arms to admit none but delegates holding tickets signed by Secretary King.

Then the fireworks began. Chairman Knox yelled that only the Chairman had a right to sign the tickets, and ordered the Sergeant at Arms to honor his tickets only. The Sergeant at Arms ignored him. He had his fifty assistants at a side door and admitted them, instructing them to exclude all delegates bearing Roosevelt credentials.

Roosevelt men made a rush as soon as the doors were opened. Six policemen hurled them back, while the Sergeant at Arms stationed himself in the door to examine tickets. White ones, the Roosevelt credentials, were there in scores. Some of the holders were so determined to get in that they had to be seized bodily and rushed to the rear of the crowd. Slowly but surely they were put out of the area of activities, and men with the red tickets, Taft credentials, succeeded in making their way to the door. The militia had been sent away when the Sergeant at Arms took charge.

Thus the Taft forces filled the hall, despite the frantic efforts of the Roosevelt men to gain entrance through side doors, windows, and the basement.

Fist Fight Between Delegates.

Three or four hundred of the Roosevelt delegates were uncontested and held red tickets, as well as white, so they were admitted into the hall. Then the doors were locked and Chairman Knox and Secretary King began at one and the same time to yell for the convention to come to order. The Roosevelt hosts at once set up a roar intending to make it impossible to proceed.

Almost immediately W. D. Gordon of Midland, a Roosevelt man, rushed forward and sprang by means of the press tables, to the platform. Hardly had he set foot there, when he was seized by John F. Cremer, a Taft supporter, and thrown bodily down whence he came. He landed on his back on several newspaper men, who were busily writing, and fell from the table to the floor, striking on his head.

In an instant a dozen Roosevelt men had sprung upon Cremer. In another instant a group of Cremer's friends had rushed to his aid. Then as the fists were flying the city police charged on the combatants and restored order with their clubs. Two big policemen stood guard over ex-Senator Beveridge, who had been swept back from his seat during the fight.

Chairman Knox and Secretary King were meanwhile shouting for the convention to come to order. But the uproar was so great that neither could be heard six feet distant.

In a minute Robert H. Shields, who has a strong voice, jumped to the front and roared out words in a voice that got attention. Then he put a motion that Grant Fellows, selected by the committee to supersede Newberry, be made Temporary Chairman. A Roosevelt delegate nominated Speaker Baker of the State Assembly, and in spite of the bedlam a roll call was started. The Roosevelt men, knowing the certain result, began to or-

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 11.—The great spot discovered on the eastern limb of the sun on Feb. 18, and by which the observatory of Santa Clara College has forecasted weather disturbances up to May 1, was rediscovered on the eastern limb late yesterday and photographed by the Rev. J. S. Ricard, S. J. The present disturbance was predicted during the month of February, as well as storms which will occur April 12 to 15, 19 to 22, and 25 to 29.

MRS. HOSLEY TO BE A NUN.

Widow of Naval Commander Begins Her Novitiate Near Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Washington society is much interested in the announcement that Mrs. Hosley, widow of Commander H. H. Hosley, U. S. N., has definitely decided upon becoming a nun, and will, according to her present plans, be received into the Order of the Sacred Heart next week.

Mrs. Hosley is now at Kenwood Convent, near Albany, where her novitiate will be passed. Mrs. Hosley is a handsome woman of middle age and the mother of a child who immediately after her graduation two years ago entered the Order of the Sisters of Charity at Emmittsburg, Md. As Miss Genevieve Paul, daughter of the late Gen. Paul of the army, Mrs. Hosley was a great belle of a generation ago, and during her husband's lifetime was very prominent in navy society here and abroad.

The novitiate on which Mrs. Hosley enters with the taking of the white veil will last two years.

Commander Hosley, who died three years ago in New York, won considerable fame by his skill and success in taking the great dry dock Dewey on its long journey to the other side of the world.

TOLD TAFT OF MAGDALENA.

Blackman Says President Knew the Facts Last August.

LOS ANGELES, April 11.—John Blackman of New York, who became conspicuous because of his connection with the reported attempt to turn over to the Japanese part of the Magdalena Bay district, arrived here to-day.

"I was in communication with O. Noada, engineer and fishing expert, and K. Abiko, editor and colonization agent, and I understand they had the money to buy the land," said Blackman, "but the deal was declared off when it was discovered that they could not obtain the fishing concession along the coast. There was no idea of turning the land over to the Japanese Government, Japanese syndicate, or Japanese steamship company. I am as good an American as President Taft or Secretary Knox, and would do nothing to harm the United States.

"I went to Washington in August last to see President Taft and settle rumors that were afloat concerning the alleged sale. My report showed the President all our plans. It told the President just who the Japanese were with whom we were dickering, and to what purpose they intended putting the land."

AUTO TRUCK KILLS BOY.

"Tag" Player Didn't See Its Approach—Crowd Threatens Chauffeur.

Samuel Shier, 7 years old, of 152 Ridge Street, was run over and instantly killed by a motor truck late yesterday afternoon while playing in the street in front of his home. The vehicle, which, the police say, belongs to the Edison Company, was operated by a young man who said he is Benjamin Foster of 116 West 101st Street. When Foster descended from the truck and stooped to pick up the lad a crowd gathered threateningly about him. Patrolman Doerr of the Union Market Police Station dispersed the crowd, and sent a hurry ambulance call to Gouverneur Hospital. Dr. Bievers of that institution pronounced life extinct.

According to witnesses, the boy while playing "tag" with several companions ran across the street, oblivious of the approach of the heavy motor vehicle. Before Foster, they said, had an opportunity to apply the emergency brake the truck had struck and knocked down the lad, two wheels passing across his body.

House Passes Bill Forbidding Washingtonians to Carry Any.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Citizens of this town who carry any deadly weapon hereafter will be liable to a penitentiary sentence or fine, or both, by the terms of a bill passed in the House to-day. Any Washingtonian who has a pocketknife with a blade more than three inches long comes within the provisions.

Representative Madden of Illinois proposed an amendment to cause all capital policemen to hold up visitors to Washington and search them for weapons. It was quickly passed, but later withdrawn.

Carmania Meeting Many Icebergs.

A Marconi wireless dispatch received from the incoming Cunarder Carmania last night said that the liner was passing through extensive ice fields and that she had met many icebergs off the Grand Banks. The Carmania was 1,058 miles east of Sandy Hook when the message was filed. She is due here early Sunday morning.

GEN. GRANT DIES IN HOTEL HERE

SUDDEN SUMMONS FOR AID

Mrs. Grant Found Him Choking and Called for Help Shortly Before He Died.

FEARED HIS FATHER'S FATE

Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, son of Ulysses S. Grant, and commander of the Eastern Division, U. S. A., with headquarters on Governors Island, died in the Buckingham Hotel, Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, at 12:17 this morning. The cause of his death was at first believed to have been an affection of the throat, concerning which, when his illness became so severe that he had to abandon his military duties recently his family and friends were extremely reticent. The death of his father from cancer of the throat is known to have aroused a dread in the General that he might meet the same end.

With Gen. Grant when the end came were his wife, Dr. Robert H. Abbe, and Dr. Edward B. Bench.

This statement was given out at 1:10 o'clock this morning by Leland Sterry, manager of the Buckingham Hotel:

> Gen. Frederick Dent Grant died suddenly of heart failure, with no premonition, at the Buckingham Hotel at midnight, April 11, after retiring at 9 P. M., apparently in better condition than for several weeks. He had returned from his recent trip much improved and looking remarkably well and vigorous.
> His medical condition since his return has given no special anxiety to his doctors, who had been with him during the afternoon and congratulated him on his good health. He expressed himself as feeling rejoiced in his renewed strength. Gen. Grant had been suffering from diabetes and intestinal disturbances, which seemed, however, to be under control. This sudden fatal termination came as a great surprise. His wife and nurse were with him at the time and the doctors who were hurriedly summoned found the heart had stopped instantly.

This statement was unsigned, but it was announced that it came from Dr. Abbe.

Cancer Specialist Called In.

Manager Sterry amplified his first statement at about 1:30 o'clock. He said that when the General and Mrs. Grant reached the hotel Wednesday night the General asked that they be permitted not to register, and that this request was complied with. Manager Sterry said the party arrived in a big automobile, from which the General walked unaided to the desk of the hotel. He appeared to be in good health.

"To-day," said Mr. Sterry, "Gen. Grant had luncheon in the dining room and tonight he and Mrs. Grant retired early. At about 11:15 o'clock Mrs. Grant was awakened by sounds of agony from her husband. She discovered that the General was choking and rushed to the telephone and asked me to send for a doctor.

"We did our utmost. Bellboys were rushed from the hotel to get a physician, but it was several minutes before any arrived, and in the meantime Mrs. Grant telephoned again, saying:

"'For God's sake, get a doctor at once.'

"Then Dr. E. B. Bench of 15 East Fifty-third Street, who is a well-known throat and cancer specialist, was summoned and arrived in a few minutes."

It was about midnight that Mrs. Grant telephoned to the desk of the Buckingham from her rooms on the fifth floor:

"Get a physician quickly. The General is dying."

A bellboy, Frank Yorston, was sent out to call a doctor, and he met Policeman Molloy of the East Fifty-first Street Station at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. He told the policeman of the General's illness and the need for a physician and was directed by him to the home of Dr. Abbe, nearby.

It took the boy several minutes to get his directions and arouse the physician. In the meantime another bellboy ran from the hotel, also meeting Molloy, and declared that the General was dying and must have a physician immediately. This time Molloy left his post and summoned Dr. Andrews from the Flower Hospital.

Before the arrival of Dr. Andrews, however, Dr. Abbe reached the hotel, and when the ambulance surgeon hurried in an instant later he was not permitted to go to the General's rooms. Molloy also tried to reach the General's rooms, declaring that he must make a report of the case at the East Fifty-first Street Station. He was allowed to go upstairs, but was met at the door of the General's rooms, Suite 185, by an excited man, who barred his way.

Comfortable in Early Evening.

"We will telephone all the particulars of this case to Capt. O'Connor of the East Fifty-first Street Station to-morrow morning," he said when Molloy had explained what he wanted. "You cannot see Dr. Abbe now and you cannot see Mrs. Grant."

Then he closed the door in the policeman's face and bolted it.

Gen. Grant and Mrs. Grant with Lieut. Howze arrived at the hotel between 9 and 10 o'clock Wednesday night, having come, it was learned, from St. Luke's Hospital whither the General went four days ago. He left Governors Island on leave some time ago. At the time it was not known where he had gone and it was denied at Governors Island that his health was endangered. It had been reported that he was operated on for cancer in St. Luke's.

His treatment at St. Luke's was believed to have helped the General materially and there was no thought that he was in such danger when he reached the Buckingham Wednesday night. Last night he and Mrs. Grant retired at 9 o'clock and there were no indications at that time that the General might not expect a comfortable night. It was just midnight when Mrs. Grant alarmed the desk about her husband's condition and it was scarcely seventeen minutes later that Gen. Grant had passed away.

It was several weeks ago that Gen. Grant left Governors Island on leave, but it was only a few days ago that it became known he probably would not return to resume command of the division which, next to the position of Chief of Staff in Washington and that of Division Commander in the Philippines, is considered the most responsible command that an American army officer can hold. This fact was published in THE TIMES on last Tuesday, and it was admitted then by friends of the General that his health was broken, though, at that time, they denied that he was suffering from anything similar to the cancer of the throat which killed his father.

It was stated, however, on high authority, that at one time Gen. Grant did dread that he was afflicted in the same way as his father and it was said that this worry as much as anything else had broken his health. That he harbored such a suspicion was known for a long time only to his most intimate friends, but in the last few weeks it had been known generally throughout army circles.

Gen. Grant only recently returned from a tour of inspection of the coast artillery posts between Portland, Me., and Galveston, Tex., all of which are included within the jurisdiction of the Eastern Division. On the completion of his tour he returned to Governor's Island and resumed active charge of the affairs of his division, but he remained on duty only a short time, and as soon as the immediate work which demanded his personal attention had been disposed of, he applied for leave and the War Department granted the request immediately.

It was then that the General and Mrs. Grant left the island, going quietly and with no hint as to their destination. Perhaps a few close personal friends knew of the General's intentions, which now seem to have been to seek expert treatment at St. Luke's Hospital, but they maintained a discreet silence and his whereabouts were never publicly known.

GEN. GRANT'S CAREER.

His First Military Experience with His Father at Vicksburg.

Major Gen. Frederick D. Grant was born in St. Louis, Mo., May 30, 1850, the son of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant and Julia Dent Grant. His career was in many respects an eventful one. His military career may be said to have begun at the siege of Vicksburg, when he was a lad of thirteen years. He had gone to the front with his father, who was then commanding the Union Army that was then surrounding Vicksburg. He often spoke of those experiences in after years, and one of his favorite little stories was of what he termed his own personal capture of Jackson, the capital of Mississippi.

He was the eldest son of Gen. Grant. From his boyhood his one great ambition was to be a soldier, and so it was that in July, 1866, he appeared at West Point to take the entrance examination for the Military Academy.

His preparation had not been the best, for when other boys of his age were at school he had been at the front as the companion of his father, and so it was that instead of four he had to study five years before he received his commission as a Second Lieutenant in the army. He was a fine horseman, and was assigned to the cavalry, and began his career as a Lieutenant of the Fourth United States Cavalry, the regiment that at this moment is bearing the brunt of the border patrol work on the Mexican frontier.

After five years in the Fourth he was promoted to the staff of Lieut. Gen. Philip Sheridan, and served as Sheridan's aid until 1881, when he resigned from the army. When Benjamin Harrison was elected President he appointed Gen. Grant Minister to Austria. Returning to New York, he became in 1894 a Police Commissioner of New York City, an office he held until 1898.

Serves in Spanish War.

In the Spring of 1898, he was elected Colonel of the Fourteenth New York Infantry and a few weeks later, when war with Spain was declared, President McKinley appointed him a Brigadier General of volunteers. As such he served throughout the war and at the close he received similar rank in the regular establishment.

In 1906 he was promoted to the rank of Major General and at the time of his death was the second highest ranking officer in the active service, the only officer ranking him being Major Gen. Leonard Wood, the Chief of the General Staff. Since his re-entry into the regular army eleven years ago, Gen. Grant had served in the Philippines and in various parts of the United States. He had been twice in command at Governors Island and once at Chicago, in New York as commanding officer first of the Department of the East and lastly of the Eastern Division, and in Chicago as commander of the Department of the Lakes.

Was a Great Raconteur.

Gen. Grant had many stories of his experiences that he always enjoyed telling. One of his favorites was his personal capture of Jackson, Miss., in the civil war. This is the story as he told it to a TIMES reporter not long ago:

Did you ever hear how I took the City of Jackson, capital of Mississippi, all by myself? Well, I was going on thirteen years old then—it was on May 14, 1863—and my father permitted me to accompany him on some of his campaigns. I remember that I kept bothering him to get me a commission; but he told me, of course, that I was too young.

"Gov. Yates of Illinois was visiting my father and I got the Governor to promise a commission, but my father wouldn't allow it. Some of the soldiers sewed a pair of captain's shoulder straps on my blue coat, and naturally I felt then as if I was runing the war. However, the Paymaster didn't take cognizance of my rank and digiity.

"The day of the advance on Jackson I was riding with my father and his staff. The General had made a junction of two army corps, McPherson's and another, and wheeled a division under Gen. Tuttle to test the strength of the Confederate defenses. Tuttle was slow in reporting, so my father rode out to him, and I went along.

"I heard Tuttle say that the defenders appeared to have withdrawn and when my father withdrew the division I slipped away, around a road leading toward Jackson, and took my bearings by the gilt dome of the Capitol. I rode into town to find the inhabitants greatly excited over the coming of the Yanks, and while I sat my Indian pony, the only blue uniform within a mile of the city, I saw a Confederate regiment coming toward me in retreat at double time. I had gumption enough to ride to a side street, but they passed me within 100 yards, not bothering their heads over a boy and certainly not suspecting that they had the Union General's son in their hands.

"I guess I was as close to a Confederate prison as one ever got who wasn't caught. Then I saw a trooper gallop into the city, ride to the Capitol Building, and run up the United States flag. Presently my father rode in with the head of the army and I told him I wanted the credit for capturing Jackson. He didn't think it was much of a joke, but the men, who made a sort of pet of me, laughed about it."

Leaves Widow and Two Children.

Gen. Grant's widow was before their marriage in October, 1874, Miss Ida Marie Honore, a daughter of Henry Hamilton Honore of Chicago. She is a sister of Mrs. Potter Palmer of that city. Gen. Grant is survived by two children, one the Princess Cantacuzene of Russia and the other Lieut. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A., now on duty in Washington. Lieut. Grant married a daughter of Senator Elihu Root of New York. Gen. Grant also leaves two brothers, Jesse R. G. Grant and Ulysses S. Grant, Jr.

MAYOR'S TALK WINS WITH METHODISTS

ALL DIDN'T VOTE FOR HIM

The Methodist Brotherhood of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church gave a "get acquainted" dinner to Mayor Gaynor and the members of his official family at the Hotel Marseilles last night. Except for a clergyman seated between Fire Commissioner Johnson and Police Commissioner Waldo, every face that beamed above the long table reserved for guests of honor was that of a public official.

To give a final emphasis to the official character of the guest list, Secretary Robert Adamson sat at one end of the table while Police Lieut. William Kennell, assigned to the City Hall, sat at the other end in full uniform. Casual visitors strolling through the hotel lobby, from which a full view of the dining room could be had, inquired if a special session of the Board of Estimate was being held.

The Methodists got from the Mayor a good deal of homely phrases, which kept them in constant applause. He told them not to pass any more resolutions about him, such as a Methodist conference once passed, and declared that if the Methodists at that conference had been filled with a truly Christian spirit they never would have passed the resolution of censure.

After hearing from the Mayor those present, who numbered about 250, remained until well after midnight listening to speeches from various city Commissioners, including Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, Commissioner of Police Waldo, Fire Commissioner Johnson, Health Commissioner Lederle, Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, and Chief Justice Isaac Franklin Russell, who was one of Mayor Gaynor's appointees.

The Rev. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of the church, who was toastmaster, in presenting Mayor Gaynor, made a careful and extended review of his career from his youngest years in public life. He declared that twenty-six out of twenty-six of the Mayor's appointees to Commissionerships were from the ranks of college men of dedicated lives, and that this fact alone was enough to indicate that charges of corruptly intentioned government could not possibly be true.

Mr. Reisner's speech gave the Mayor subject matter for some philosophy about his position as Chief Executive.

"I have been very flatteringly introduced," he said. "Dr. Reisner said that the next morning after election you all rejoiced that I was elected. I am not a bit certain about that. I dare say a good many of you did not vote for me at all, and if I was running for office to-morrow I do not think you would vote for me, either.

Knows They's Not All for Him.

"There is an awful lot of political prejudice in this world. It is true that I tried to do a great many things that are now ancient history. But when I ran for Mayor of New York City it is true all the same that there was only one newspaper in this whole city that said anything about this good work, and that one said precious little.

"So, it was not a very one-sided affair after all. There is a good deal of political prejudice in this world, and I shouldn't wonder if some of it is right here in this room, too. And the thing that does more harm in our local elections than anything else that I know of is this miserable political prejudice.

"Ask any man how he is going to vote and he'll answer, 'I'm going to vote the Republican ticket. I'm a Republican.' Or, 'I'm going to vote the Democratic ticket. I'm a Democrat. My father was and so am I.' Just think of the howling wilderness in that fellow's head.

"I see one lady applauds that. How will it be when the women get the suffrage? There is at least one suffragette her, so I will be careful what I say.

"Some of the newspapers say I am opposed to the women having the suffrage. I did go up and address a woman's club and crack a few jokes with them, and all I could see of the result in the newspapers was 'The Mayor Denounced Woman Suffrage.' The next account I saw said that I had said their place was at home caring for the babies. But I didn't say anything about babies or home. I just cracked a few jokes, and the most dangerous thing in the world is to crack a joke when there are newspaper reporters around who don't know how to take a joke.

"Most newspaper reporters are a good deal like the Scotchman—if you want to get a joke into their heads you have got to define it and take a piece of his skull out to get it in."

"As to the women, I guess that with the suffrage they will be just as partisan as the mein. But in this great aggregation of people we have about 50,000 sane people who vote as they like. They elected me. That is, I have a notion they did. That is not a joke, either; I mean it. They are not led around by their little noses by the newspaper editors like some of you are here, I am afraid.

"I have read some fine resolutions a Methodist conference passed about me. But I forgave them. They were Christians, or thought they were. But no one is a Christian unless he has got charity and truth in his heart, no matter whether he is a minister of the gospel or who he is.

"We have not been treated fairly by the press, but the people who believe all they read in the newspapr are the silliest people on the face of the earth."

ST. LOUIS FOR ROOSEVELT.

County Surprises Taft Leaders by Electing a Solid Delegation.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 11.—The St. Louis County Republican Convention sprang a surprise at Clayton to-day on the Taft leaders by electing a solid Roosevelt delegation to the State convention. The thirty-four St. Louis County delegates, according to the Roosevelt leaders, insure Roosevelt four delegates-at-large from Missouri with the State's indorsement.

Two Conventions at Once.

Both factions had a cut and dried and typewritten programme. The two Chairmen and the delegates whose rôle it was to make and second the motions yelled their parts, the delegates kept up a constant roar of "ayes" to everything, not being able to hear a word of what was going on, but acting only a follow-the-leader plan.

Two complete sets of delegates at large were elected on the same floor. The Roosevelt contingent finished first and left the hall, yelling and jeering at their foes. Because many of them acted as if about to start a rough house, they were escorted out by policemen.

At the height of the disorder ex-Senator Beveridge told the leaders on the stage that he would decline, in view of the fact that two conventions were being held, to deliver his scheduled address. He then withdrew from the armory.

Perfunctory resolutions were adopted by the Taft men and speeches were delivered by State leaders, favorable to President Taft, after which the convention adjourned.

The Roosevelt delegation will base their claim to regularity on the assertion that the meetings of the State Committee, held without the call of Chairman Knox, were illegal. They appear to have the wrong end of the argument, however, because the rules of the committee provide that the committee may convene upon written request of a majority of the members. This was the procedure followed.

Taft leaders said to-night that the seating of the six delegates at large would make no difference in the State delegation, because the district conventions had named more than enough delegates to make certain the vote of Michigan for the President.

TAFT MANAGERS BITTER.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The heat of the Republican ante-convention campaign is illustrated in a statement given out to-night from the Taft headquarters.

It is pointed out that the Roosevelt managers declared the Indiana defeat was due to "fraud," called the New York result "a criminal farce," asserted "Democrats voted against us" in North Dakota, styled the Vermont loss "manburglary," shouted "steam roller" after defeat in Wayne County, Mich.; bolted in two Missouri districts when beaten, but applauded the outcome in Kansas City which resulted, according to the Taft men, from a "frame-up," talked much of the "direct primary" in Oklahoma when there was none, and had no objection to make when they won in Illinois. The statement goes on:

> The lesson carried by this brief of political events, so far as the Roosevelt forces are concerned to date, is this;
> When you lose, make a martyr out of yourself; cry about it loud and long in public—anything to make the people believe you lost something you never had.
> When you win occasionally, proclaim the outcome from the housetops for fear somebody will forget you are running.
> But—make a great noise all the time.

The statement concludes:

Ship and Line.	Tonnage.
New North German Lloyd ship	54,000
Imperator (Hamburg-American)	50,000
Titanic (White Star)	46,328
Olympic (White Star)	45,324
Mauretania (Cunard)	32,000
Lusitania (Cunard)	32,000
Kaiserin Auguste Victoria (Hamburg-American)	25,000
Adriatic (White Star)	24,541
Rotterdam (Holland-America)	24,170
Baltic (White Star)	23,876
Kronprinzessin Cecilie (North German Lloyd)	20,000

Just as impressive is the comparison with the one-time famous liners of the American Line. The new German ship will be more than 10,000 tons greater than all four of them put together. She will be greater than four Bluechers, five Hellig Olavs, and it would take nearly nine vessels like the Austro-American liner Alice to equal her tonnage.

NEW TRANSATLANTIC LINE.

German "Princes' Trust" to Establish Emigrant Service from Emden.

BERLIN, April 11.—Another great German shipping company is about to establish a transatlantic line to New York.

The Tageblatt learns that the "Princes' Trust," the great community of interests headed by the Kaiser's friend, Prince Max Egon zu Fürstenberg, and Prince Christian Kraft von Hohenlohe-Oehringen, has applied to the German Government for a concession to inaugurate a new emigrant service from Emden to New York in order to offer lively competition with the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines.

The Tageblatt states that approval of the "Princes' Trust" plan was given this week at Corfu, where Prince Fürstenberg and the Imperial Chancellor are guests of the Kaiser. The concession is to be granted to a new company formed at Hamburg last December and called the German Navigation Company.

Emden, which is the starting point of the German cable to America, has not hitherto been an important shipping harbor, but is well equipped for emigrant service. A Scandinavian shipping line sought to establish an emigrant base there last year, but its application was rejected.

The relations between the "Princes' Trust" and the two big German companies have been strained for some time on account of the Trust's Levant line.

A conference of Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd officials in regard to the Emden competition is now taking place in Berlin.

CONVENTION GOES AS MURPHY ORDERS

was put the resolution was carried with only a handful of votes in the negative.

There was absolutely no mention of Presidential candidates from the platform and little discussion along that line among the leaders and the delegates. With the New York delegation uninstructed and bound by the unit rule, it will be Mr. Murphy's delegation. Consequently Mr. Murphy will go to the Democratic National Convention in Baltimore, a far greater and more influential figure in the National college of Democratic leaders than any Tammany chieftain in the entire history of that organization. Where others have controlled the Tammany delegates, Mr. Murphy will control the delegation from the entire State.

Some Good Democrats Chosen.

Comment among the up-State delegates and alternates was in praise of both the personnel of the delegation from this State to the Democratic National Convention selected yesterday and of the platform. On the delegation are many Democrats whose names have been synonymous with independence in the past.

The platform, too, was called one of the most progressive declarations of principle ever adopted by a Democratic convention in this State. It indorses the Democratic House of Representatives for its firm attitude on the tariff, and places the blame for the failure of tariff measures which have originated there since the Democrats controlled the House upon the Republican Senate. President Taft and the Republican Party are denounced for violating pledges made in the Republican National platform in 1908 for a downward revision of the tariff. It urges genuine downward revision by a Democratic Congress and a Democratic President. The platform also commends the work of Gov. Dix and of the Democratic Legislature during his administration.

It was 11:28 before the gavel of Chairman George M. Palmer fell as he called the convention to order. Secretary John Mason of the Democratic State Committee read the call for the convention. Chairman Palmer proposed Seymour Van Santvoord, the legal adviser of Gov. Dix, for temporary Chairman of the convention.

Chairman's Speech Approved.

The delegates cheered the Tammany chieftain and again when his name was mentioned on the roll call. Mr. Van Santvoord was declared the unanimous choice of the convention for temporary Chairman, and he was escorted to the platform with due ceremony by a committee.

Mr. Van Santvoord's speech had been viséd by Chairman Palmer and Tammany Leader Murphy, and had been pruned somewhat on the plea that it would take too long a time to deliver it. As it was delivered it contained a good many salient points which were applauded by the delegates on the floor and the spectators in the galleries. Mr. Van Santvoord told some funny stories, too, which were appreciated.

Mr. Van Santvoord had kind words for Gov. Dix, which drew some applause. He was careful to point out, however, that not all Democrats had approved of all the things that had gone into the previous Democratic State platform, but the point he emphasized was that the Democratic Legislature had started out to fulfill every one of the pledges.

He featured the direct primaries plank and the declaration in favor of a Federal income tax as among the declarations on which Democrats might differ.

"More than one of those who assisted in the preparation of the Rochester platform," said he, "were opposed to the principle of a Federal income tax, which, as you all well remember, that great constitutional lawyer and uncompromising Democrat, David B. Hill, so bitterly opposed. But the party throughout the State, as well as throughout the Nation, had become so manifestly enlisted in the income tax proposition as a tenet of party faith that, as the committee unanimously agreed, to have omitted it from the platform would have been a betrayal of party trust in the interest of individual preference.

"Then there was that terrible question of direct primaries. I wonder if I shall be forgiven by my associates when I tell you that a majority of the sub-committee was not convinced that without a direct primary law ideal politics would be illumined by a ray of hope. And, frankly, I do not know which should be considered the more impressive—the roar of approval which greeted the reading of the plank at Rochester or the roar of disapproval which through the medium of a fourteen-foot-long telegram poured into the Executive Chamber a fortnight ago."

He gave praise to Gov. Dix, saying:

"When you hear them say this, that, and the other thing about our Governor, you just tell them, with my compliments, that I am waiting to hear one single word against his personal honor, his personal probity, his personal sense of truth. And you just tell them, with the compliments of the Democratic Party, that we are waiting to hear one breath of scandal, one whisper of executive misdoing, one reverberation of the hoof-beats of the Black Horse cavalry in the administration which we gave the people of the State when we elected John A. Dix."

After Mr. Van Santvoord had finished his speech and appointed a Committee on Resolutions, of which Robert F. Wagner, President pro tem. of the Senate, was made Chairman, and one on Permanent Organization, the usual recess was taken to give the committees time to "deliberate."

In this instance, however, there was no occasion for deliberation. Congressman John J. Fitzgerald had already been told by Mr. Murphy that he was to be Permanent Chairman of the convention and the platform had been given to the newspapers long before the Committee on Resolutions had been named at all.

While the recess was on a little party of suffragists called on Senator Wagner and asked that they be heard by the Committee on Resolutions. Their request was granted. They asked that the Democratic National Convention be urged to insert in its platform a plank declaring in favor of woman suffrage. In the delegation were Mrs. Jean Nelson Penfield, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. Henry Villard, Miss Caroline Lexow, and Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch.

Fitzgerald Talks Tariff.

The convention met again shortly after 3 o'clock, when permanent organization was effected, the platform adopted, and the delegates elected. Congressman Fitzgerald, after the convention had ratified Mr. Murphy's choice and made him Permanent Chairman, made a speech which lasted more than an hour. Most of it was devoted to the tariff. The speech was warmly applauded.

"If the tariff taxes are to be reduced," said he, "it is essential to curtail the expenditures of the Government. During the last sixteen years the Republican Party has been most lavish in expending the people's treasure. Thoughtful students of Governmental affairs have been inclined to believe that certain far-seeing Republicans deliberately encouraged liberal expenditures to make more difficult substantial reductions in tariff rates.

"No easy task confronts the Democracy. Arrayed against us are all the legions that have so long enjoyed unequal privileges and unfair opportunities under Republican legislation. They have awakened to the meaning of the Democratic programme; they realize that it means the end of the system so profitable to them. Our pledge was given that if afforded an opportunity faith would be kept with the people. We have had the opportunity; we have kept the faith. The promises made to the people have been rigorously fulfilled. We revised the tariff downward; we provided for direct election of the United States Senators by the people; we legislated to strike corruption from our political system; we admitted Arizona and New Mexico to Statehood; we have met labor's demands for a humanitarian and just eight-hour day; we have retrenched public expenditures; we have striven to reduce the cost of living; we have conducted the business of the House with dignity, with dispatch, and with due regard to the rights of the entire membership; and to stop unjust discriminations against American Jews, under the lead of my colleague, William Sulzer, we forced the passage of a resolution to abrogate the Russian treaty.

"Such is our record. No political party has ever equaled our record in this Congress."

The remaining business of the convention was put through in a great hurry. All seemed anxious to get away. There was not much applause when the names of Gov. Dix, Senator O'Gorman, and Alton B. Parker were read on the list of delegates at large. But at the mention of Tammany Leader Murphy's name, which was last on the list, there was a veritable explosion. The cheering lasted for a minute or more.

When the convention adjourned sine die at 4:35 o'clock it had earned the distinction of being the shortest convention held by the Democratic Party in this State in more than a generation.

THE PLATFORM ADOPTED.

Taft Denounced for Vetoing Tariff Bills—Tariff Revision Demanded.

The Democracy of the State of New York, in convention assembled, reaffirms its belief that most of the evils in the public life of the country spring from the exactions of the present iniquitous tariff law, under which monopoly is fostered and competition is destroyed; waste and extravaganve in public expenditures encouraged; the prices of the necessaries of life increased out of all proportion to the earning capacity of the people and the fundamental virtues of economy and honesty have been banished from the public service.

We heartily indorse and ratify the action of the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives in its repeated efforts for the reduction of the tariff schedules and we denounce the action of President Taft in vetoing the tariff bills submitted to him in August last.

We charge the President and the Republican Party with gross deceit of the people when in 1908 they secured power by promising a revision of the tariff. The country understood this promise to mean that there was to be a downward revision, but the President had hardly been inaugurated when a revision was made with his consent which, instead of reducing the schedules, increased the tariff on over 600 articles used by the American consumer.

We believe the tariff should be revised in the interests of the consumers and not by those who profit by its exactions and that its main purpose should be to raise for the Government a substantial share of the revenue necessary for the public service when economically and honestly administered. In the interest of the people of the country we demand an immediate downward revision of the tariff, thus removing the gross inequalities now existing and relieving the people from the burden of high prices which now oppress them.

At a time when the Republican Party after a generation of unlimited power in the country is torn with dissensions and broken into factions and its old cry that it is the only party fit to rule is seen to be idle boasting, it is both opportune and fitting to point out that in this Empire State—in the short space of time that the Government has been committed to our trust — we have broken down intrenched extravagance, abolished sinecures, reduced the army of public servants, actually applied economy and efficiency to public affairs, and enacted a greater number of progressive laws than our opponents in the long period of their unrestricted term.

The party stands to-day in the State with a splendid and noble record of achievement, and we commend the efficient administration of Gov. John A. Dix. Not a single charge of scandal, wrongdoing or corruption can be brought against any official whom it has placed in power; economy in public expenditures was not only promised but rigidly enforced. Party pledges in favor of an income tax and of the popular election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people have been carried out.

Resolutions have been passed providing for a workingmen's compensation act and in favor of the parcels post; a direct primary law has been enacted; many laws have been passed to lighten the burden of labor; a great department of government for the conservation of the natural resources of the State has been created in the interest of the people; the various departments of government under Gov. Dix and all the other Democratic State officials elected in 1910 have been administered with efficiency. Unlike the Republican Party the Democratic Party has shown that its campaign promises are made to be performed and that its platforms are binding pledges which its representatives have fully redeemed.

We rejoice in the unity and harmony prevailing in the Democratic Party throughout the Nation and we are confident that the National Democracy will act with judgment and wisdom in this crisis in the history of the country.

A platform and candidates chosen at Baltimore which will appeal strongly to the enlightened and progressive spirit of the age; which will satisfy the people that Democracy stands as ever for the institutions of the country — unalterably against destructive innovations and vagaries which would weaken and destroy the courts which are the safeguards of our liberties but aggressively for real progressiveness and reform — will place the party again in power in the Nation, restore a genuine government of the people, strengthen and revivify popular respect for our institutions and permit the working out sanely and safely of the problems which now oppress the masses of the people.

Animated by these sentiments, we believe a triumph awaits the Democracy, and to promote this result we enthusiastically pledge the unfaltering support of the united, militant and progressive Democracy of the State of New York.

A "PERSONALLY CONDUCTED" TRIP

KRANICH & BACH

A trip of great INTEREST to music lovers—a trip of very great IMPORTANCE to piano buyers.

Interesting, because you can see how the world's best pianos are actually put together—the wonderful process of shaping the sounding board—the clever way in which ivory keys are made—the unique methods of matching and applying veneers—it's as interesting as a play. By examining the construction of our patented "Violyn" Plate and the inner workings of the "Isotonic Pedal" you will realize the great value of these exclusive Kranich & Bach features.

Perhaps most interesting of all will be the "behind-the-scenes" view of our Player Piano—the wonderful mechanism that produces such beautiful music with no other force but air, guiding it in marvelous ways through intricate channels and producing the faultless technique and the sympathetic touch for which

KRANICH & BACH PLAYER PIANOS ARE FAMOUS

IMPORTANT, because in so considerable an investment as a piano, you should examine the inside material and workmanship just as CRITICALLY as you do the outside, the tone or the touch—the LIFE of the tone and the LIFE of the touch depend largely upon the performance of hidden features of construction.

It is a distinct advantage to see how a piano is made before you buy it. Many of the most vital parts are necessarily covered in the process of manufacture—you can see them only at the factory—before the pianos are completed.

Our establishment affords unique facilities for such a complete examination. Here, and here only, you can see every process of piano making under one roof. Nowhere else will you find artistically appointed warerooms in connection with a complete piano factory.

AMERICAN RIFLES REACH MEXICO CITY

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP BRIDGE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The State Department was advised to-day of the arrival at the City of Mexico of the thousand Krag-Jorgensen rifles shipped from New York City two weeks ago to Ambassador Wilson for the use of Americans who might find themselves in danger from the lawlessness of a mob.

The department has heard also a good deal of complaint from the men who want these rifles that they are being charged 40 pesos, or $20, for them. The authorities here are inclined to think that the charge that has been fixed is a reasonable one, when all the expenses connected with the shipment of the rifles is taken into account. The cost at Watervliet Arsenal was $6.25.

The freight to Vera Cruz is said to be something less than a dollar per gun, and the freight from Vera Cruz to the City of Mexico is about the same, except that an armed guard had to be provided by the express company having charge of the shipment, there being great fear that the revolutionists would attempt to capture them.

What this armed guard cost is not known at the State Department, but it is believed that it did not cost over fifty cents a gun, which would bring the whole cost of the rifles delivered at the City of Mexico to $8.75 per gun, exclusive of duties.

The Mexican Government insisted that the duties could not be remitted and they were paid. It is said that the duties were 200 per cent., which seems excessive. If, however, they were anything like this the price of $20 is not far out of the way. Private communications from Americans in the City of Mexico say that everybody there is anxious to have a rifle, and they registered their names for them weeks ago.

Most of the Americans there have their household effects packed, and are ready for any emergency. Anticipating a tie-up on the entire railway system in Mexico in a few days, they are leaving in large numbers, according to advices to the State Department. The strike on the National Railways is set for April 15.

In the hope of propitiating the United States, Orozco, the rebel leader in Mexico, has sent the State Department a long dispatch, expressing the most friendly feeling for this Government and bespeaking for his revolutionary compatriots recognition as belligerents. The dispatch can only be read, filed, and ignored, as this Government will not in any form recognize the insurrectos.

In his dispatch Orozco professes to have endeavored to protect Americans in Mexico, and promises to do no act that will offend the Government.

At the same time it is clear that in the circumstances of the killing of young Fountain at Parral yesterday the rebel chief was clearly responsible for the act. The young man had been serving as Captain of a machine gun platoon in the regular service, and for that he was shot from behind while permitted to go about the town of Parral as a prisoner, but under sentence of death after the barbarous Mexican custom of "la fuga," which is simply pretending that a prisoner intends flight, and shooting him in cold blood.

The State Department received a dispatch to-day from Consul Letcher showing that the Consul succeeded in getting word to the rebel commander in time to save Fountain's life and insisting that he have the rights of a prisoner of war.

The case is somewhat similar to that of Cannon and Groce, who were shot last year in Nicaragua. In that case the United States landed marines and overturned the Zelaya Government so effectively that not a vestige of it was left and Zelaya fled up the coast on a Mexican gunboat.

In the present case, however, there enters the fact that President Taft has by proclamation warned all Americans in Mexico to go to places of safety and to leave the country if they must. Fountain was a soldier of fortune, choosing to stay where the danger was greatest, and the United States cannot be charged with responsibility in the premises, although we clearly have the right to take up the case under the rules of international law and insist on reparation.

REBELS SEIZE ROAD'S FUNDS.

Confiscation at Chihuahua May Cause American Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTEREY, Mexico, April 11.—The confiscation of the Chihuahua Division of the National Railways of Mexico by rebels under direction of Gen. Orozco may lead to international complications, as a minority of the stock of the company and all the bonds are held by Americans.

The rebels have displaced all the regularly constituted officials on the division and appointed men of their own selection. Pedro S. Recio of Chihuahua has been appointed Superintendent in place of J. S. Westrup.

All the revenue from the operation of the road goes into the treasury of the rebels. The Chihuahua Division runs from Juarez to Jiminez, 373 miles.

All employes of the Mexican Central Railroad in Chihuahua have been ordered by their operating chiefs to leave the service of the road and report to their Superintendent in El Paso. Most of them obeyed the order to-day. Practically all the employes in Juarez quit work.

The understanding is that these employes will receive their usual pay, though idle. The railroad is a Mexican Government property, and the men are ordered to leave its service so that the rebels will be hampered in their operation of trains. To-day the rebels were delayed several hours in finding crews to take the daily passenger trains south to Chihuahua.

BEACH GIVES BOND TO ANSWER CHARGES

CHARGE FALSE, LAWYERS SAY

Insist That Mrs. Beach's Assailant Was a Negro—Ask Public to Suspend Judgment.

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., April 11.—An unusual turn was given to the case against Frederick O. Beach to-day when Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., of New York, appeared before a Magistrate and signed a bond for $1,000 for Mr. Beach's appearance in court when called.

The act of giving such a bond, in view of the fact that a warrant has never been served upon him, makes it possible to try Mr. Beach, even if he should not come to South Carolina at the time for hearing the case.

Prosecuting Attorney Gunter, or "Public Solicitor," as the office is known down here, said to-day that if the Grand Jury should return a true bill against Mr. Beach, charging assault with intent to kill upon his wife, and if the defendant should choose to remain in New York and forfeit his bond by a non-appearance, a sealed sentence could be rendered.

In view of this opinion, D. S. Henderson, counsel for Mr. Beach, declared to-day that his client would certainly return here for trial and clear himself of the charge against him. Mr. Henderson this morning received a cablegram from Mr. Beach, dated Paris, which said:

> Authorize you to appear and sign bond for my appearance. Am returning to America next week.

Mr. Henderson busied himself at once, with the result that Mr. Hitchcock, an intimate friend of Mr. Beach, signed the bail writ. Solicitor Gunter also said this afternoon that the signing of the bond obviated the necessity of Mr. Beach's return to Aiken until the September term of the General Sessions Court. The crowded calendar, he said, made it impossible to attempt to try the case at the June term of court.

"There is no question of the course my client will follow," said Mr. Henderson to-day. "He will certainly return here for trial and clear himself of the charge against him."

Supplementing this declaration Mr. Henderson, together with J. B. Salley, another attorney who has represented Mr. Beach in certain legal matters here, gave out a formal statement this afternoon which, they declared, covered every angle of the Beach case. The attorneys further declared that suits for slander will be brought immediately if any person will charge in writing that Mr. Beach attacked his wife. The statement of the lawyers, which contains also a declaration from Dr. H. T. Hall, who says he advised a sea trip for Mrs. Beach, is as follows:

"It is not our habit to discuss our legal business in the press, but instead in the Court House. However, there has been so much said in the newspapers concerning the warrant which was issued for Mr. Frederick O. Beach, charging assault and battery on his wife, Mrs. Camilla Beach, and about his leaving the country, that we feel it our duty in his absence to make a plain statement, and to ask the public, and especially the people of Aiken County, from whom will be drawn the jury who have to try him, not to be biased by misleading statements and rumors, but to await in a proper frame of mind the legal investigation in court.

"Mr. and Mrs. Beach have been visitors at Aiken for several years. He owns valuable property here. This Winter he was living with his wife in the Turner cottage. His large house next door was rented to Mr. J. D. Lyon of Pittsburgh, Penn. On the night of Feb. 26, 1912, Mr. Beach's wife went into the yard near the Turner cottage to air her dogs, and she was brutally assaulted by a man whom she swears was a negro, but whom she could not identify. This man entered from the front gate and followed Mrs. Beach up in the yard. She screamed, and her husband, who was in the Turner cottage, and had been there the whole evening, which can be proved by indisputable evidence, rushed out to her and the negro ran away.

"Mrs. Beach clasped Mr. Beach. She was reeking with blood from a cut on her neck and he was covered with blood from taking hold of her. He carried her inside the cottage, and soon neighbors came. When she was thought to be dying she never then and never since has uttered a murmur or made a motion to indicate that Mr. Beach had assaulted her. An inmate of the house, not a servant, but a visitor, Miss Hollins of New York, will prove these facts beyond question.

"Mrs. Beach was laid up from her wounds for many days under the attention of her physician, Dr. Hall, whose statement is hereto attached. Mr. and Mrs. Beach remained in Aiken from that day, the 26th day of February, for one month, until the 25th day of March. Both of them granted every facility to any official who desired it for any examination of their premises and also for an examination of themselves. They testified on every occasion they were asked to testify, and before they left Aiken they notified the Mayor of the city, Mr. Gyles, and the Solicitor of the Second Circuit, Mr. Gunter, that they intended to leave and that they were going to Europe, and with their permission they did leave.

"Mrs. Beach was in a nervous condition, of course, and she and her husband left New York sooner than they had intended for that reason.

"Next to the Turner cottage is the Lyons home. On the night that Mrs. Beach was attacked and a short time before the assault upon her was committed, two Swiss maids employed by Mrs. Josef Hofmann testified that they were accosted and assaulted by a negro in Laurens Street. The negro left them and went in the direction of the Lyons cottage. Then a negro woman named Pearl Hampton testified that she was assaulted by a negro man, and soon afterward, as stated aforesaid, Mrs. Beach was assaulted.

"We state upon authority indisputable and upon our reputation that it is not so, as has been intimated in dispatches from Aiken, that Baughn, the detective, had to make efforts to get Mr. Beach's knife. We state in the same way that Mr. Beach voluntarily, upon the request of Mayor Gyles and his detectives on the night of the 24th of March, the day before he left for New York, delivered the knife in question to Mr. Gyles and the detective.

"It was a small penknife kept by Mr. Beach on the end of a chain which he wore in his waistcoat.

"The following assertion has been made in a newspaper publication in Aiken and sent from Aiken elsewhere, 'Mr. Beach then walked down to the Lyons cottage, entered the side gate leading to the laundry, and passed close to a high hedge. Pearl Hampton passed shortly, and Mr. Beach stepped from the shadows. This frightened the woman and she started to scream. "Hush," warned Mr. Beach, "it's no one to bother you. Where is Mrs. Beach?" She answered, "I don't know, Sir." "You are telling a dirty lie," Beach growled and struck her, whereupon she screamed and ran.'

"We state that here is not a scintilla of proof to sustain this statement. Mr. Baughn, the detective, introduced himself to one of us with the following card: 'M. S. Baughn, traveling salesman, 34 East Ninth Street, Atlanta, Ga.' We have no objections to his advertising himself in the newspapers or in any other way, whether he be a detective or traveling salesman. All we ask is that if he furnishes the prosecution testimony, he should furnish something that is reliable.

"We are ready to meet anything that is honest that may be produced, and Mr. Beach is not afraid to stand trial. In fact, if anybody will put in writing the charge against Mr. Beach that he assaulted his wife an action for libel will be brought in court. Then the matter can be investigated.

"The city authorities of Aiken and Solicitor Gunter have acted courageously and gentlemanly and no exception is taken to anything that they have done or may do to investigate this matter and to try anybody whom they may desire or they think should be tried. Mr. Gunter is a courageous officer and a gentleman, and he has consented that a bond should be signed by an attorney authorized by Mr. Beach for his appearance at the September term of the court, and that bond has been given in the amount of $1,000, far more than is ever required in a misdemeanor case, with Mr. Thomas Hitchcock as the surety.

"The reason that the bond is given for September is that there is but one week for the Criminal Court in June, and there is more business now on hand for that term than can be transacted. Mr. Beach has been cabled to in Paris, and he will soon return to America and he will gladly welcome a full investigation of any charges that may be made against him. We simply ask the thinking people, especially of the territory who will have to pass upon the charges against Mr. Beach, to put their minds in a condition where they will be able to deal justly and not in heat and suspicion."

Appended to this declaration by the lawyers is this statement, signed by Dr. W. T. Hall:

> I am a practicing physician residing in Aiken, S. C. I was called to see Mrs. Beach on the night of the 26th of February, 1912, after she had been attacked. I found with her other physicians, who had capably and courteously come to her assistance and stanched her wounds. She was covered with blood and so was Mr. Beach. I am their family physician while they are in Aiken. When they left Aiken I advised that Mrs. Beach should go on a sea trip, and I received a letter dated April 2, 1912, from Mr. Beach, in which he said: "I have decided to take Mrs. Beach abroad immediately. I think she is feeling a reaction more now than she did at Aiken, and the only thing now to my mind is a complete change of scene." Her going abroad meets my full approval as her physician.

Before his departure this afternoon for Atlanta Detective Baughn was asked whether in any of his interrogations of Pearl Hampton, the negro woman who is supposed to know more about the Beach case than any one else, he succeeded in getting any information from her. He replied that Pearl Hampton had told him that the man who attacked her was the same man who attacked Mrs. Beach, and that he was not a negro.

"I asked her," said Baughn, "if he was a white man, and she told me that he was, and even added in answer to a further question that she did not think he was a Southern man, as he did not speak like one."

Baughn said that during his investigations, while Mr. Beach was still in Aiken, on every occasion when he sought to interview Mr. or Mrs. Beach they insisted upon having their lawyers present, and, although Mr. Beach was not then accused of the crime, he would not agree to give information about the affair except on advice of his counsel.

PARIS, April 11.—Frederick O. Beach, against whom the authorities in Aiken, S. C., have issued a warrant on the charge of assault and battery with intent to kill his wife, wrote a letter this morning declaring that he still had no statement to make in connection with the charge and pointing out that the affair is in the hands of his lawyers.

TO PROVE MRS. GAGE DESCENDANT OF KINGS

ROOSEVELT'S ROYAL ORIGIN

Miss Gage Testifies That an Ancestor of Colonel Was a Scottish King—Threaten Mrs. Gracie with Arrest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Mrs. Archibald Gracie, well-known in New York and Washington society, who is wanted by the Government in the District Supreme Court as a witness in the lunacy proceedings against Mrs. Mary E. Gage, will be served with a writ of attachment if she does not answer the subpoena of the court to-morrow. She was summoned to appear to-day, when the case was again taken up. Deputy Marshals scoured the District this afternoon trying to locate her, but failed. The court anounced that an attachment will be issued if she does not apear to-morrow.

Mrs. Gage, who is charged with threatening the life of Charles J. Bell, a Washington banker and brother of Prof. Alexander Graham Bell, says Mrs. Gracie first poisoned her mind against the banker. It was Mrs. Gracie, Mrs. Gage asserts, who told her that Mr. Bell was doing his utmost to keep her daughter and herself out of Washington society. Then it was that Mrs. Gage said she would horsewhip Mr. Bell, and later declared she would kill him.

Mrs. Gage has been in St. Elizabeth's, the Government Hospital for the Insane, for several days, and observations are being made by specialists. Mrs. Gage will be put upon the stand to-morrow.

Miss Margaret C. Gage, daughter of the accused woman, was the principal witness this afternoon. Miss Gage told the court some hitherto unknown matters about herself and her mother. The same genealogist who prepared the Gage family tree, and discovered that Mrs. Gage is of royal descent, also found that Col. Theodore Roosevelt is a descendant of Kings, one of his ancestors having been a Scottish King, Miss Gage testified.

The prosecution is trying to show that Mrs. Gage is a victim of hallucinations and delusions.

Two large volumes were introduced as testimony to show that she is of royal descent. The volumes were compiled by a genealogist named Browning.

Miss Gage then told of her mother's marital experiences. She said her father, Harley Calvin Gage, was divorced from her mother. Mrs. Gage and Miss Gage lived in Washington eight years prior to the divorce, and for five years lived in New York. Before that they lived in Chicago and Minneapolis.

Mr. Bell's attorneys tried to show that Mrs. Gage and Miss Gage had in reality no right to enter Washington society.

"As a matter of fact," Mrs. Gage's attorneys asserted, "these women were in better society in New York than they tried to associate with here."

Invitations and programmes bearing the names of Miss Helen Gould, Mrs. Frank Gould, Mrs. H. H. Rogers, Mrs. Russell Sage, and other New York women were introduced to bear out the statement.

It is said that when Mrs. Gage takes the stand to-morrow she will give a detailed account of her experiences with the Bells. The attorneys for Mr. Bell, it is understood, will offer "new testimony," and will try to show that several years ago Mrs. Gage threatened to bring suit against Bradstreet's because she was not accorded as high a rating as she declared she deserved.

on disorderly scurrility. The cables will by this time have placed vivid pictures of this contrast in temper and demeanor before readers in every part of the Empire and will strengthen the expressed conviction of all the self-governing dominions that our past delay in giving to Ireland what they already enjoy has been hurtful to the possessors as well as to the victims of minority ascendancy."

Declared Unjust to England.

The Daily Mail, (Unionist,) in an editorial article says:

"The finance of the bill is extraordinary, even fantastical. The English taxpayer is to make over a sum of about £2,000,000 for purely Irish and purely local expenditure. We may grope in all the Constitutions of the world for any precedent for this arrangement. Here are the people of one State required to find money for the Parliament of another State to spend. It contradicts the principles of Anglo-Saxon government, and, indeed, of common sense.

"No contribution of any kind is made by Ireland to the imperial services. She is released from all payments to the army and the navy, to the diplomatic service, to the civil list. She is not even required to pay interest on her own debt incurred in the past, and loans for land purchase are to be raised for her by England.

"The manifest injustice of the bill is accentuated by the remarkable provision that forty-two Irish members shall remain in the imperial parliament to interfere with English and Scottish affairs and determine the imperial policy, though Ireland is not to pay one halfpenny for the prosecution of that policy.

"The bill is a mere makeshift. It has 'provisional' written large upon it. It solves no difficulty, creates fresh, grave complications in the Ulster question, and contains in almost every clause the germs of perpetual strife and friction. It is a surrender to Mr. Redmond's dictation, not a real, serious measure of Federal reform."

Thinks the Government Doomed.

The Times says:

"The scheme which the Prime Minister unfolded is not one that will be received in any quarter with much enthusiasm. It will disappoint the hopes of Nationalist Ireland, it will not allay the fears or diminish the hostility of Unionist Ireland, and, if we are not much mistaken, it will swell the rising tide of opposition in Great Britain to a level high enough to submerge the Government and their bill in the not distant future. It will not even satisfy any of the various schools of theoretical Home Rulers.

"The bill is in all essential points the old impossible bills of 1886 and 1893, with variations for the worse necessitated by the greater complexity of the problem that has now to be solved."

The Daily News (Radical) in an editorial headed "A Great Bill" says:

"The first impressions of the measure are on the whole entirely favorable. It is a skillful piece of workmanship, based on Liberal lines. It is not shadow, but substance. It gives Ireland, if not full satisfaction, at least a substantial fulfillment of her demands. It preserves inviolate the unity of the empire and gives to the minority in Ireland the fullest possible protection against any form of injustice.

"Its passage into law will mark the beginning of a new and happier chapter in the dark story of John Bull's Other Island, will remove one blot upon the records of our external rule, and will convert that bride whom we have wed but never won into a willing member of the household. Ireland, happy, regenerated, and self-respecting, will cease to be a weakness and a shame to the empire and will become a strength and a glory."

Asquith's Speech Masterly.

LONDON, April 11.—In a speech lasting nearly two hours and described by old parliamentarians as the most masterly in recent years, the Prime Minister to-day introduced in the House of Commons the Home Rule bill, which bears the official title "The Government of Ireland Bill."

This is the third attempt of the Liberal Party to settle the Irish question, which caused the disruption of the party under Gladstone and kept it out of power for nearly twenty years. Mr. Asquith seems to have been more successful than his old leader, as his bill meets with support from practically all the Liberals and Laborites and the two sections of the Nationalists, the Redmondites and the O'Brienites.

The Unionists, of course, set their faces sternly against it, and the Ulsterites, through their spokesman, Sir Edward Carson, made it clear that they object to a parliament in any form being set up in Ireland.

The House was crowded when the Prime Minister arose, to the cheers of his supporters. Every seat on the floor and in the galleries was occupied, and even standing room was at a premium. The members of the House had appropriated seats early in the morning, and the galleries were occupied by a distinguished company of peers, politicians, and diplomats, among the last named being the American Ambassador, Whitelaw Reid, who, according to a phrase in one of the London newspapers, "represented 22,000,000 Irishmen."

The Premier was supported by his Cabinet and backed by full benches of Liberals, Laborites, and Nationalists, while facing him were Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition; Arthur J. Balfour, the former opposition leader; Sir Edward Carson, and other front-bench Unionists. John E. Redmond, leader of the Nationalists, occupied his usual corner seat on a back bench, with Patrick O'Brien, the Irish whip, and John Dillon near by, and William O'Brien and Timothy Healy opposite among the Laborites.

Mr. Asquith spent an hour in reviewing previous bills and the changes which have come over the situation since Gladstone's last effort to settle the question, and then took up his own bill, which is divided into four parts—the legislative power of the new Irish Parliament, its executive power, finances, and the position of Ireland after the grant of home rule.

The vote of Ireland, the Premier said, was preponderantly in favor of home rule, and the right of a relatively small minority in Ulster to veto the will of the vast majority of the Irish people could not be admitted. He had always presented the case of home rule for Ireland as the first step in a larger scheme of devolution. The separate concerns of the different parts of the United Kingdom could never be treated adequately until they had been handed over to their special representatives.

The cardinal principle of the present Home Rule bill was, said the Premier, the supreme authority of the Imperial Parliament, while at the same time real autonomy was conferred on Ireland in regard to Irish concerns.

Details of the Bill.

The bill provides for the establishment of an Irish Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Commons, with power to make laws for the peace, order, and good government of Ireland.

The bill provides that the matters to be excluded from the control of the Irish Parliament are the Crown, the army and navy, imperial affairs, the Irish land purchase, old-age pensions, and National Insurance acts, the Irish Constabulary, the Post Office savings bank, and public loans, in addition to the matters excluded by the Home Rule bill of 1893, which left the customs under the control of the Imperial Government.

The Irish Constabulary are to be automatically transferred to the Irish Government after six years, and power is given by the bill to the Irish Parliament to demand the transfer of the Old-Age Pensions and Insurance acts to its control on giving a year's notice to the Imperial Government.

The Irish Parliament is debarred from altering the Home Rule bill or the power to appeal to the Privy Council.

Provision is made for the protection of religious equality in Ireland, the bill stipulating that the Irish Parliament cannot make laws directly or indirectly to establish or endow any religion or to prohibit the free exercise thereof, or give preference or privilege to any religion or make any religious ceremony a condition of validity of any marriage.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland is to have the power to veto or suspend any bill on the instruction of the Imperial Executive.

Any question regarding the interpretation of the Home Rule bill is to be settled by appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The Irish Parliament.

The Irish Senate is to consist of 40 members, and the House of Commons of 164, of which latter number Ulster is to have 59 and the universities 2.

The Senate is to be composed of nominated members. In the first instance the Imperial Executive is to control the nominations with a view to assuring the representation of the minority. The nominations are to be for a fixed term, and as the members retire by rotation the vacancies will be filled by the Irish Executive.

In case of disagreement the two houses are to sit in joint session.

The Lord Lieutenant is to be the head of the executive. There will be no religious bar, and he will hold office for a fixed term.

The authority of the executive is to be co-extensive with that of the Irish Parliament. The 164 Representatives are to be elected by the existing constituencies, but no constituency is to have fewer than 27,000 population.

The collection of all taxes is to remain with the imperial service, and they will be paid into the Imperial Exchequer, which is to pay over to the Irish executive an amount equivalent to the expenditure on Irish services at the time of the passing of the act.

The Postal Services are to be handed over to Ireland.

The Irish Parliament is to have power to reduce or to discontinue the imperial taxes, except the income tax and the stamp and estate duties. It will also have power to alter the excise duties, but, except in the case of beer and spirits, it is debarred from adding to the customs duties anything which will give a greater increase than 10 per cent.

The Irish representation at Westminster is to be 42 members—one for every 100,000 [illegible] population. This provision meets with a good deal of opposition in the lobbies after the debate.

The Financial Measures.

The chief interest in the bill centred in the financial arrangements. Premier Asquith pointed out that the Irish revenue for 1912-13 is estimated at £10,840,000, ($54,200,000,) while the expenditure for Irish services amounts to £12,350,000. He said that pending the time when that deficit could be converted into a surplus, the collection of all taxes, with certain exceptions, had been retained as an imperial service. The bill would impose on the Irish Parliament the obligation to pay all Irish services except reserved services, which would continue an imperial charge until transferred.

There would, said the Premier, every year be transferred from the Imperial to the Irish exchequer a sum representing the cost to the United Kingdom of the Irish services at the passing of the act, the cost to be determined by a board of five, two of whom were to be appointed by England, two by Ireland, and the Chairman by the Crown. That would be the first revenue of the Irish Government; the second would be the Irish postal revenue, and an additional sum was to be paid to Ireland—$2,500,000 the first year and a lesser amount each year until it was reduced to $1,000,000.

The Premier went fully into the question of financial relations, and then took up the matter of Irish representation at Westminster, which he considered justified as, he said, the Imperial Parliament would continue to tax the whole United Kingdom.

At the conclusion of the Premier's speech there was quite a little breeze between him and Mr. Bonar Law over the latter's statement at Belfast that the Government had "sold the Constitution in order to hold office"—a statement which, the Premier said, was a new style of argument in British politics.

Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Irish Unionist Party and member for Dublin University, denounced the Government's proposals as "ridiculous and fantastic" and declared that the safeguards in the bill were delusions. If the Government passed the measure, Sir Edward declared, it would have no power on earth to resist the further demands of the Irish Nationalists.

John Redmond, leader of the Nationalist Party, pronounced the bill a great measure, which would be adequate to carry out the objects of its promoters.

Mr. Redmond admitted that a section of Irishmen were in favor of separation, but said they were the smallest section, and if Ireland obtained the management of its own affairs, this small section would disappear. He declared that the safeguards were adequate, with a nominated Senate and veto by the Imperial Parliament. It was idle to say that the safeguard of the imperial veto was humiliating, when every one of the self-governing colonies was subject to it. He considered the bill a better one on the whole than the bills of 1886 and 1893. In conclusion, he said:

"This is a great measure, and we welcome it. The bill will be submitted to the Irish National Convention, and I shall without hesitation recommend to the convention the acceptance of the bill. I believe that this bill will result in greater unity and strength to the Empire, and will end suspicion and dissatisfaction in this country with regard to Ireland."

The HARDMAN PIANO and the Metropolitan Opera House

THE Hardman is the official Piano of the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Metropolitan Directors and their experts have chosen it on account of its acknowledged superiority.

But this does not mean that any influence can be exerted upon the artists of the Metropolitan Opera in the choice of a piano for their own use.

The fact remains, however, that the Hardman Piano has so impressed its qualities of tone and stability upon the world's great singers that they choose it for their own intimate use in their own homes.

Not the Hardman Piano only, but the Hardman Autotone (the Perfect Player-Piano) is thus recognized by these musicians.

That is why the Hardman is universally known as the Artists' Piano.

Saks Clothes for Men

at 17.50 and 25.00, and just why they are superior to other clothes

¶ The man who buys popular-priced clothes must remember one thing. It is far harder to find satisfaction at a popular price than it is to find it at a higher price. The lower you go in the scale of prices, be it in the purchase of a suit of clothes, a cigar or a sirloin steak, the possibility of getting that elusive thing called satisfaction proportionately decreases. In other words, it is easier to find clothes-satisfaction at 40.00 than it is at 25.00—generally speaking.

¶ But speaking specifically, Saks clothes at popular prices furnish the one and only exception to this rule. Practically, the only difference between a Saks garment at a popular price and a Saks garment at a higher price is in the fabric and the linings, but price considerations in nowise affect the style of Saks clothes at popular prices, because no discrimination is permitted in our designing.

¶ All of Saks garments are designed without reference to the question of price. The average popular priced clothes are designed as popular priced clothes and carry the imperishable earmark of price from the beginning to the end. That is the vital difference between Saks clothes at popular prices and other clothes at popular prices. That is why a Saks garment at a low price is such a refreshing contrast to another production at the same price. That is why the man who wears a Saks garment at a popular price does not advertise the price he paid for it.

LORD STAFFORD WEDS LADY EILEEN BUTLER

GIFTS FROM KING AND QUEEN

Also from Other Royalties and Ambassador and Mrs. Reid, Who Were Present, and Other Americans.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 11.—The most important wedding of the London season was solemnized at St. Peter's, Eaton Square, this afternoon, when the Marquis of Stafford, elder son of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, was married to Lady Eileen Butler, elder daughter of the Earl and Countess of Lanesborough.

Both the bridegroom and bride are very young. The Marquis will not be 24 until the end of August, while Lady Eileen completes her twenty-first year in November.

The church was beautifully decorated, while flowers and two giant palms formed an archway beneath which the couple stood during the first part of the service, which was performed by the Archbishop of Armagh.

Nearly everybody in society now in London seemed to be at the service. Several members of the Royal family attended, these being the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, Prince Arthur of Connaught, and Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck. Others present included the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, Blanche, Countess of Rosslyn, Lord and Lady Castlereagh, the Countess of Warwick, Lord and Lady Brooke, the Duchess of Westminster, Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mrs. Asquith, Count Albert Mensdorff, the Marchioness of Dufferin, Mrs. Winston Churchill, the Countess of Lanesborough, Earl and Countess Grey, and the Marquis and Marchioness of Hamilton.

The bride, who carried a sheaf of white lilies and orange blossoms, arrived with her father, who gave her away. She wore a lovely dress of silver and gold brocade, draped with old lace, and a train of the same materials, her lace veil surmounting natural orange blossoms. She was followed by eight children and six grown-up bridesmaids.

Lord Stafford's gifts to his bride were a diamond tiara, having in the centre three very large solitaire diamonds set in Prince of Wales-feather style, and a pearl dog collar, twelve strands deep, with an oblong diamond plaque and diamond bars.

The Duke of Sutherland gave his daughter-in-law a diamond and sapphire necklace, and to his son an enamel scarf pin set with a large pearl and diamonds.

The Duchess of Sutherland's present was a pair of diamond-leaf sprays, with single sapphires as flower buds, and from Lord and Lady Lanesborough the bride received a circular ruby and diamond pendant and a diamond and violet enamel bow brooch respectively.

The royal gifts comprise a scarf pin from the King and Queen set with diamonds, the whole surmounted by a small diamond crown; from the Duchess of Argyll, a silver gilt casket, and from Prince Arthur of Connaught, a tortoise shell cigarette case having a tiny flower design in diamonds in one corner.

Presents from Anglo-American friends, while fairly numerous, were not specially remarkable. The American Ambassador and Mrs. Reid gave two silver salvers engraved with the young people's coats of arms. Admiral and Mrs. David Beatty gave an old Georgian clock. Mrs. Cecil Bingham sent a gold cigarette box; Lord and Lady Granard, a small opalescent enamel and gold box; Lady Craven, a pink leather blotter with writing accessories to match; Lady Monson, jade and gold hat pins in a case; Lady Paget, wife of Sir Arthur Paget, a blue enamel card case, and Mrs. George Cornwallis West, an orange enamel box and diamond bird scarf pin set with a ruby eye.

WANTS KIPLING PROSECUTED.

Liberal M. P. Draws Government's Attention to the Poem "Ulster."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 11.—Joseph Martin, the well-known Liberal member of Parliament, has announced his intention of asking the Attorney General in the House of Commons if he intends to prosecute Rudyard Kipling for the offense of sedition for the verses entitled "Ulster."

Mr. Martin will also ask if the Government intends to prosecute the publishers of the verses and the printers who set them up in type.

Mr. Kipling's poem was published in The London Morning Post. The last lines are:

What answer from the North?
One law, one Lord, one throne.
England may drive us forth;
We shall not fall alone.

FORBES PRAISES FILIPINOS.

Island's Governor Speaks at a Dinner in Paris.

PARIS, April 11.—The Filipinos have made notable progress in the direction of agriculture and industry in the opinion of Gov. W. Cameron Forbes of the Philippines, who arrived in Paris to-day on the way to London, whence he will depart for the United States on leave of absence.

Mr. Forbes said in the course of an interview that he did not wish to discuss the question of the capability of the Filipinos for self-government, nor was it the time to comment on the independence bills which may be pending in the United States Congress. Speaking, however, purely as an administrator he said he was convinced that the natives of the Philippines have made important economic strides. They had, he said, shown an interest in politcs, and to that they had now added interest in the agricultural and industrial development of the country.

Mr. Forbes was the guest at dinner to-night of the Mayor of Manila and other prominent Filipinos who are now in Paris.

POPE'S GOOD HEALTH BELIES DEATH RUMOR

DUE TO TELEGRAPH ERROR

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, April 11.—The sensation of the day here was the sudden spread of the report that Pope Pius X. was dead. It caused great excitement, especially at the Vatican. There was a rush of anxious persons there, while inquiring telegrams arrived from all parts of the world.

The astonishment of the personnel of the Vatican was equal to that of the inquirers on finding such perfect tranquillity.

The Papal Secretary of State, Cardinal Merry del Val, with Mgr. Canali, was out for his usual daily drive. On re-entering the Apostolic Palace and seeing the unusual excitement, he thought at first that something grave had really happened, but when he learned what was the cause he could not help smiling in such a manner that he reassured even the most incredulous. He also added all possible particulars to demonstrate that the Pope was not only alive, but very well.

Had the Pope been ill he could not have gone through such a hard day's work as he did to-day.

ROME, April 11.—The origin of the astounding dispatch from Madrid, which purported to have the authority of the Papal Nuncio there, announcing the death of the Pope, is incomprehensible to the Vatican, from which no communication was sent which could possibly be construed into such an erroneous report. The Pope's condition to-day was as physically perfect as could be expected in one of his years.

The Pope's physician, Dr. Marchiafava, after ridiculing the report authorized the statement this evening that the condition of the Pontiff is normal and satisfactory.

Cardinal Merry Del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, was more explicit. He said that the Pope had been in excellent health throughout the whole Winter. Indeed, the Pontiff had experienced better health this Winter than in any of the other Winters of his later life. He had suffered no attack of gout, nor even a cold, except an insignificant one a few weeks ago, when audiences were not really suspended, but postponed, in order to give him a little rest before Easter week.

As an indication of the Pope's present strength and health, the Cardinal added: "Every Day the Holy Father rises with the sun, says mass, then takes a cup of coffee without solid food. He deals with all the affairs of the Church, grants private audiences, receives sometimes a thousand people, always a few hundred daily, continuing until 1 o'clock without rest or food, except at times another cup of coffee. After a light lunch his work continues until late in the evening.

"How many young men," asked the Cardinal, "could maintain such a life as does the venerable Pontiff, who has almost completed his seventy-seventh year?"

The Papal Secretary expressed the hope that the Pope would be able to spend an even better Summer this year—first, because he will occupy a cooler apartment, and, second, because the subterranean gallery leading from within the Vatican to the Vatican gardens, which has just been finished, will give the Pope an opportunity to spend considerable time in the open air, free from intrusion. The Cardinal added that the people should mistrust the impression of those who see the Pope, as in good faith they are deceived by his face, which seems to show ill health, when in reality it bears only the marks of care.

The Pope spent many hours to-day in hard work. He first received the Papal Secretary, who communicated to him all the current affairs. Then Cardinal Della Volpe, Prefect of the Congregation of the Index, spent considerable time with his Holiness, informing him on the subject of an examination which had been made of several important books whose authors have presented memorials against their being placed in the Index. Later the Pope received Cardinal Billot of the Gregorian University, with whom he conversed for half an hour regarding the condition of the ecclesiastical studies and work of the Jesuits, of which order the Cardinal is a member. Señor de Estrada, the Argentine Minister at the Vatican, and his family also visited the Pope, as well as Prince Borghese and Count and Countess de Jonghe. With each he spoke with paternal affability. The Pontiff also received in general audience more than 100 persons, including several Americans, to all of whom he gave his hand to kiss.

MADRID, April 11.—The erroneous report of the Pope's death originated through a telegram which was sent to an attaché at the Papal Nunciature announcing the death of his father. The word used was "papa," which means either "Pope" or "father."

The attaché assumed that it was the Pope who was dead, and he so informed the Spanish Government. Premier Canalejas, in turn, communicated the news to the reporters. They flashed the report over the world. King Alfonso and members of the Cabinet were informed and sent messages of condolence to the Nunciature. The Papal Nuncio was absent when the message arrived, and the mistake was not discovered until he returned.

LONDON, April 11.—The greatest consternation was caused this morning by a dispatch from the semi-official news agency in Madrid stating that a private telegram received there from Rome announced the death of Pope Pius, and that the news had been confirmed at the Papal Nunciature in the Spanish capital.

Later in the day came the welcome news from Rome that the report was entirely unfounded and that the Pope was in good health.

Then came the explanation of the report that had shocked the world. The error arose through a mistake in deciphering a message received at the Nunciature in Madrid, as a result of which the Papal Nuncio announced to the Spanish Government that the Pope was dead, and this news was handed by the Ministry to the semi-official Spanish news agency and the Madrid newspapers.

The evening papers in London and throughout the country had in the meantime published the news broadcast in extra editions, and there was a general inclination to give it credence in consequence of the close relations of the Spanish Government with the Vatican.

Clerical and lay circles everywhere were appalled by the news, as no intimation had reached them that the Pontiff was in a critical condition of health. It was known that he had suffered from weakness a few weeks ago, but since then he had resumed his daily receptions.

Anxiety was not allayed for some hours, when the message received from Rome over the long-distance telephone by way of Paris, "The Madrid report of the death of the Pope is untrue," was issued by the papers in later special editions.

In the meantime urgent requests had been telegraphed to Rome for confirmation or denial, but there was a long delay on the telegraph lines, and it was thought that the strict censorship imposed in Italy on war news had perhaps been extended to the news from the Vatican.

When the news came that the Pope was in his usual health and had held his daily reception, there was a great feeling of relief.

'THE PINK LADY' CAPTURES LONDON

CAST IS VOTED EXCELLENT

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, April 12.—Enthusiasm such as is seldom seen in a London theatre at the first night of an American production marked the fall of the final curtain of "The Pink Lady," produced at the Globe Theatre last night by Klaw & Erlanger by arrangement with Charles Frohman. Not one dissenting voice was heard the whole evening, and it is safe to say that all London will be humming and whistling Ivan Caryll's catchy music before many days have passed.

The cast was excellent all round, while the American chorus lived up to their reputation for sprightliness and good singing.

When all is so good it is invidious to single out individuals, but it is only fair to say that Frank Lalor, as the antique dealer, caught on right away, establishing himself as a warm favorite before the end of the evening. Hazel Dawn as the Pink Lady gave a charming performance, fully justifying all the nice things said about her in the last few weeks.

The hits of the evening among the women members of the cast were Louise Kelly as the Comtesse Montanfert and Alice Hegeman, who played perfectly Mme. Doudidier, but every one was good, there not being a weak spot in the cast.

As to the book, little need be said, although it is possible that an exception may be taken to some of the dialogue as being a little indelicate in places.

The audience, which was a very smart one, included many well-known Americans, among them Reginald Vanderbilt, who was with Preston Gibson, and Miss E. Grigsby, attended by William Mandelick, Secretary of the Underground Railway. Among others noticed were Arthur Collins of the Drury Lane Theatre, George Edwardes of the Gaiety Theatre, Alfred Butt, and many other shining lights of the English and American stage.

In response to loud cries for the author, Mr. Caryll, who conducted the performance, appeared, while later Abraham Erlanger was dragged on the stage by several players, meeting with a great reception.

The London Times critic says this morning, in reference to "The Pink Lady":

"A witness of the scenes of enthusiasm which greeted the fall of the curtain said the piece would appeal to a London audience with a greater measure of success than any American musical comedy since 'The Belle of New York,' and we have no reason to cavil at this prophecy. The success of 'The Pink Lady' was genuine and instantaneous, and never for a moment in doubt."

SON TO LADY GREVILLE.

Baron's Wife Is a Niece of Mayor Grace of This City.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 11.—Lady Greville, who before her marriage to Lord Greville was the widow of Henry Kerr of New York, has given birth to a son.

Lady Greville is the daughter of the late J. W. Grace of Leybourne Grange, Kent, and married Baron Greville on Nov. 24, 1909, at St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, when he was known as Capt. Charles Beresford Folke Greville. He succeeded to the title on the death of his father in December of the same year.

Miss Olive Grace, as she was before her first marriage to Mr. Kerr, is also a neice of the late William R. Grace, twice Mayor of this city.

Henry S. Kerr, her former husband, died suddenly in 1907, shortly after his retirement from the banking firm of Redmond, Kerr & Co. of this city. His fortune, estimated at $3,000,000, was divided between the widow and two sons.

SEARCH FOR VALHALLA GIRL.

School Children of Village Join Hunt for Missing Rosie Wren.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 11.—All the school children of Valhalla joined today in a search for sixteen-year-old Rosie Wren of that village, who disappeared on Tuesday evening. The little girl was popular in her home town, and all of her chums are aiding in the hunt. It was reported to-day that the girl was seen on a Harlem train which left Valhalla at 8:12 o'clock on the night she disappeared. As she had no money when she left home it is doubtful if she went very far.

Conductor Northrop of that train says he saw a girl on that train who answered the description of Rosie, and that she paid her fare to the Grand Central Station. She was alone and did not appear to be a runaway.

All the camps of the workmen employed on the new Kensico Reservoir and the Catskill Aqueduct for miles around have been searched by the police, but they are unable to get any trace of the girl. The girl is 5 feet 5 inches in height and has brown hair and eyes.

TAFT GUARDS COURTS FROM IMPIOUS HANDS

President Tells Union League the Nation's Fundamental Liberties Are Threatened.

RECEIVES A GREAT OVATION

Senator Root and Dr. Butler Praise State Convention's Work—President Dines with Yale Classmates.

President Taft came to the city last evening to attend a dinner of fellow-members of his class at Yale, '78, at the University Club, and afterward addressed some 750 members of the Union League Club at their clubhouse, thanking them for their indorsement of his candidacy and making a vigorous attack on the recall of Judges and judicial decisions and kindred principles.

He declared that "impious hands" had threatened "the Ark of the Covenant, which is the independence of the judicial branch of our Government," the hands of "persons, some of them sincere, some of them demagogues, and all of them with an insufficient knowledge of the necessity in the maintenance of liberty and progress, of our Constitution and its guarantees."

The President was greeted with prolonged enthusiasm upon entering the Union League Club, and cheers and applause punctuated his address time and again. There was an enthusiastic and apparently unanimous indorsement of his policies. Yet there was, if anything, a note of fervent appeal in the speeches of the evening. He was greeted as he entered with this shout by George H. Taylor, Secretary of the club:

"Three rousing, ripping, Union League cheers for the President of the United States!"

But these, despite the conspicuous avoidance of any hint of futurity in the form of the cheer, were given with a resounding will.

There was a considerable crowd of men and women in front of the Union League Club when the President's automobile drove up to it at 9 o'clock. The Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street sides of the building were draped with American flags, and above the entrance a great electric eagle flapped its wings.

The President was ushered into the library, where there was a reception. Among those on the Reception Committee with the Chairman, J. Van Vechten Olcott, were George F. Baker, William Barnes, Jr., Albert O. Beebe, Harrison K. Bird, Cornelius N. Bliss, James G. Cannon, Charles W. Carpenter, Louis R. Cheney, Howland Davis, W. Murray Crane, William C. Demorest, H. D. Estabrook, Benjamin T. Fairchild, Walter E. Frew, Frank Jay Gould, Job E. Hedges, A. Barton Hepburn, Brayton Ives, Daniel F. Kellogg, George F. Kunz, Anson G. McCook, Gerrish H. Milliken, Robert C. Morris, William A. Nash, Benjamin B. Odell, Samuel T. Peters, William H. Porter, Alfred E. M. Purdy, Charles M. Schwab, Thomas F. Shaw, Henry L. Sprague, Gilbert W. Thorne, R. W. Van Boskerck, John C. Westervelt, Clarence Whitman, W. Hull Wickham, Arthur Williams, Henry A. Wise, Timothy L. Woodruff, and John A. Wyeth.

After the handshakings in the library, the President was ushered into the large meeting room upstairs, where he was greeted with prolonged applause. He was introduced by Samuel W. Fairchild, President of the club, who said:

"I am sure that many members of this club believe in the old adage, 'One term deserves another; two terms, but not three!'"

The President's Speech.

After the cheering had subsided, President Taft began, declaring that he had only once before looked into the faces of the members of the club, in the Summer of 1904, when, too, there had been a campaign on.

"The issues and subject matter under discussion then were not exactly the same as now," he said, amid laughter. "But that will not interfere with the pleasure I feel in looking at you again.

"The Union League Club of Philadelphia and the Union League Club of New York were formed in the dark days of the war for the Union, to express confidence in the strength of the Government, and to encourage it in its tremendous struggle for its life. They are Republican clubs, but it is not usual for them to take any part in pre-convention campaigns. They have usually thought it neither necessary nor appropriate to consider platforms or candidates before the National Convention had set forth the one or named the other; but circumstances have made the present pre-convention campaign of such a character that both the Philadelphia and New York clubs have indicated in resolutions a conviction, on the part of nearly all their members, that there is something at stake in this campaign that should awaken the interest and arouse the action of all who believe in the principles and form of Government that are embodied in our present Constitution, and who cherish the institutions preserved and secured by that Constitution as essential to the maintenance of liberty regulated by law, and to real progress of popular government toward greater equality of opportunity and greater happiness of the individual.

"The necessity that there was for arousing our people to prevent the abuses of corporate privilege and power, and to wresting from concentrated wealth the exercise of political control, and the success that has attended such agitation among the people, have been taken advantage of by persons, some of them sincere, some of them demagogues, and all of them with an insufficient knowledge of the necessity in the maintenance of liberty and progress, of our Constitution and its guarantees, to propose changes, rather for the sake of change than with any definite plan of improving the body politic.

"Because courts have not manifested as quick perception of the advantages to be realized from these proposed changes, and in some instances have perhaps unduly broadened constitutional restrictions to declare them invalid, it is proposed to change the whole nature of our judicial system and render it subject to popular review, either by what is called the recall of the Judges when their conduct on the bench is not approved by a majority of the voting electorate, or by a recall of decisions, and a reversal of the judgment of the Judges whenever they declare invalid a legislative enactment which they deem to be in violation of the fundamental law.

"It was not until the sensitive nerve of the serious-minded people of this country was touched by the proposition to recall the Judges, or to recall their decisions, that such people of all classes began to realize that impious hands were likely to be laid upon the ark of the covenant, which is the independence of the judicial branch of our Government. A profound protest was heard from all thinking people against the proposal. I am here to-night to express my satisfaction that the members of this club have felt it to be their duty to express to the public at large their sense of the crisis through which our institutions are passing, and the necessity for guarding as we would our liberty and everything that we hold dear in our homes and our life, against the innovations that are so recklessly advocated by men who profess to be acting in the interest of reform and progress. They fail to recognize or appreciate the benefits of our present civilization, and do not seem to understand that the progress already made in this great country of ours from its small beginnings has been due to the constitutional principles upon which this Government was framed one hundred and twenty-five years ago and has been maintained ever since.

"In this contest for the preservation of our ancient landmarks of Government, and for the security of life, liberty and property involved in the maintenance of an independent judiciary, we may from time to time suffer a temporary defeat, but those of us, and they are most of us, who have an abiding faith in the judgment and good sense of the American people, may well have confidence that in the end the real benefit of the people will prevail, and that they will defend and protect those institutions that have served them so long and so well.

Senator Root's Address.

The President was cheered for more than a minute when he ended his speech, and scarcely had the cheering subsided when it broke out for as long a period again.

President Fairchild then introduced Senator Elihu Root, who sat at President Taft's left, as the next speaker in this meeting, which he characterized as "an old home-coming night, when we all come home to see the old folks."

"I am afraid I'm a little older to-night," declared Senator Root, "because I've just come down from the State Convention. When a New York State Convention of more than 1,000 members and the Union League Club are both practically unanimous in support of the same proposition, it must surely be something fundamental, and not a matter of ordinary patronage or profit; but a matter involving a fundamental principle. We and the representatives of the Republican Party were unanimous on one proposition, and the reason is that that proposition involved a moral principle on a par to-day with the moral principle involved in 1860. At that time as good and honorable men as existed anywhere were to be found in this country holding a brief for negro slavery and against the assertion of the equal rights of man.

"To-day there is a recrudescence of the assertion that a majority is entitled to do whatever it chooses, bound to recognize no principle of justice, no great fundamental principle of government, no everlasting right. Against that assertion all moral men must be arrayed. For it means that the whim and passion of the moment is sufficient justification for any conduct.

"You cannot have one system and part of another. You cannot have a system in which the popular majority is supreme over the principle of justice, and in which the principle of justice also controls the popular majority.

Principle Above Impulse.

"This Government is founded on the proposition that principle is above impulse—that in all the acts of a nation, however great and overwhelming may be majorities, the eternal laws of God shall control. These principles we have put into our fundamental law, and we call them our Constitutional limitations.

"It is now proposed to thrust them aside whenever the majority sees fit. The rule of impulse, the rule of the moment, is to take the place of the ever-guiding principle. We are told that the unanimous feeling of such a club as this counts for nothing, because we are all rich men. I wish we were. To oppose the breaking down of the rules of restraint, of right conduct, written in our Constitution, is enough now to give a man a reputation for great wealth. You can borrow money now on the strength of saying that you believe in the Constitution!

"The real meaning of such a phenomenon as that of this club's supporting these principles is the possession of industry, of thrift, of enterprise, of courage, of the force and power which have enabled this Nation to conquer a continent, to build up a civilization from ocean to ocean, and establish law and government and peace throughout our land; it means that all these forces and qualities are arrayed against the new doctrine that men shall be permitted to do whatever they please against the laws of right conduct. The fundamental qualities of our Nation are thus arrayed against the preachers of the gospel of freedom run into license.

"For forty-three years I have been a member of this club, and never have I seen a time when a declaration for unceasing effort for the preservation of our country under the Constitution was more urgently needed than now. In this new trial that has come upon the country I know that all of you will act like men worthy of your high traditions, and the great and honorable name of the institution to which you belong."

Dr. Butler Praises Convention.

Senator Root's address was received with prolonged applause. Mr. Fairchild then introduced Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, who had come straight from the State Convention at Rochester, and, as he explained, "a little short of sleep and long of tobacco smoke."

"Unlike the former speakers," he said, "I am neither a President of the United States nor have I been a President of your club. I belong to that fortunate class that will be amazingly petted and coddled for the next few months and then forgotten—the plain people. But some of us plain people are mightily stirred up over conditions and tendencies as we see them to-day.

"After more than thirty years of observation and experience of political conventions, I can honestly say that I have never seen a convention the members of which were so serious, so thoughtful, so weighted down with a sense of responsibility, as that which has just adjourned.

"The newspapers have said there was not much enthusiasm there. Well, there was not; but, more important than enthusiasm, there was the deepest and most intense feeling, the most serious discussion of fundamental principles. And in the end there was all but absolutely unanimity. It was an impressive and inspiring sight. Some mistakes were made in reporting the spirit and temper of the convention. There was absolutely no criticism or abuse or sneering, direct or indirect, put upon any public leader. The men were too serious for that."

Dr. Butler then reviewed the planks of the Rochester Convention, mentioning them briefly, that dealing with corporations and trusts, that on workmen's compensation, that on the tariff, that on economy in government, and concluding, as he turned to President Taft:

"All of them elements of progress, Mr. President, every one of which are associated with your name and your recommendations to the Congress and the people of the United States. What we did insist on, however, was that this should all be done in accordance with the traditional institutions of our Nation's past. We insisted that there should be no short cuts across lots that might interfere with the individual liberty of even the humblest citizen in the land. Progress we wanted and progress we stood for, but orderly, legal progress, a policy of real construction and advance.

"The people can be trusted. The people will rule. But they will rule in accordance with the rule of reason and of right when they have had time to understand it."

Following Dr. Butler's speech, the meeting adjourned, to meet again at dinner, and thereafter, as President Fairchild put it, "to talk a little more and then a little more." The additional talk, it was said, would take the form of a short conference at which reporters were not to be present.

Among the guests at the dinner were Senator Root, Joseph H. Choate, Chauncey M. Depew, Gen. Horace Porter, George R. Sheldon, Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the President; James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture; Major Thomas L. Rhoads, Medical Corps, U. S. A.; Col. George Andrews, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Seth Low, Judge Charles M. Hough, Judge Veeder, Judge Walter C. Noyes, Judge George C. Holt, Otto T. Bannard, William Berri, William Barnes, Jr., Judge Julius M. Mayer, R. Lancaster Williams, Henry W. Anderson, Dr. Joseph K. Dixon, Charles P. Taft, and Samuel S. Koenig.

TAFT AT YALE MEN'S DINNER.

Accompanied on Visit to City by His Secretary and Physician.

President Taft arrived in the city last evening at 6:03 o'clock on the Washington Express over the Pennsylvania Railroad to attend a dinner of the Class of '78 of Yale at the University Club, and to deliver an address before the members of the Union League Club. On the same train with the President was Secretary MacVeagh, who lunched with him en route.

The President was accompanied from Washington by his Secretary, Charles D. Hilles, and Major Rhoades, his physician, acting as his aide in place of Major Butt, who is returning from abroad. Two Secret Service men were with the party. William H. Law and James M. Lambertson, of Harrisburg, Penn., acting as a reception committee for the Class of '78 of Yale, met the President at the Pennsylvania station.

Leaving the station, the President's party, including Henry W. Taft, escorted by Chief Flynn and Detective Henry, of the Secret Service, and a detail of city detectives and motor policemen, went first to the home of Henry W. Taft, 36 West Forty-eighth Street, where the President's brother left him, and then proceeded directly to the University Club at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street.

The dinner of the Yale Class of '78, at which President Taft was guest of honor, was a private affair. It is an annual event, and was given this year by Mr. Lambertson. Leaving the University Club shortly after 9 o'clock, the President proceeded to the Union League Club, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street.

From the Union League Club the President was driven to the Pennsylvania station. His car was attached to the midnight train.

ROOSEVELT IS DEAF TO COMPROMISE TALK

No One Dares Suggest It to Me, He Exults, Home Again from the West.

SEES PLAIN SAILING AHEAD

While Awaiting the Expected Knockout in Pennsylvania, He Will Invade New England.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., April 11.—Back from his tour of West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and Illinois, and enthusiastic over his success in Illinois and in Maine, Col. Roosevelt declared this evening that, as far as he is concerned, there is nothing in the talk of a compromise candidate being nominated at the Republican National Convention at Chicago in June. He said he was making his fight for the people, and would have no offers to make to obtain the support of the New York State delegation if such a thing were possible.

The renewal of rumors that Supreme Court Justice Hughes or another might be put forward as a dark horse, and that Col. Roosevelt, despairing of getting enough delegates to obtain his own nomination, might consent to a compromise in order to end the hopes of President Taft, was put directly up to the Colonel to-night, and without a moment's hesitation he replied:

"Nobody must dare suggest compromise to me."

That ended the matter so far as Col. Roosevelt was concerned, for he absolutely refused to consider any further question along that line.

The Colonel did not seem to be the least bit worn out by his ten-day trip when he arrived at the Jersey Central Station at Jersey City at 4 o'clock this afternoon on his special train, and he pushed his way through a cheering crowd, waving his hat and smiling. He boarded a ferryboat, which took him to the Twenty-third Street Ferry in Manhattan, and went at once to the Pennsylvania Station, where he was met by Mrs. Roosevelt. He talked to the reporters for a few minutes at the station.

The Colonel was told that there were rumors that machine leaders in New York and other States might soon make overtures to him, especially if he captured a majority of the delegates in Pennsylvania.

"But I have no offers to make," he replied.

The Colonel did say that he was greatly pleased with the crowds that had greeted him all along the line on the last day of his trip, and that he was confident that from now on things would go his way. He had knocked the bosses through the ropes in Illinois, he declared, and looked to Pennsylvania to knock them out.

"I am a warrior, not a prophet," the Colonel reiterated when he was asked flatly how he thought the vote would go in Pennsylvania on Saturday. But it was very evident from his demeanor that he is full of confidence. His reception at Reading and Easton added to this confidence.

While awaiting the outcome in Pennsylvania Col. Roosevelt has no intention of remaining idle, and after a night at Oyster Bay he will start out at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon on a tour of some of the New England States in the hope of capturing delegates. He will make his first stop at Springfield, Mass., where he will deliver an address before the Traveling Men's League in the evening. Saturday he will spend campaigning in New Hampshire, making speeches at Concord, Nashua, and Manchester. He will start back for Oyster Bay Saturday night.

Col. Roosevelt's campaign manager, Senator Dixon, has been urging him to invade Nebraska and other Western States, and if that plan is carried out the Colonel will leave either Tuesday or Wednesday evening of next week, to be gone until the following Saturday.

The Roosevelt Committee in the Metropolitan Tower gave out a statement last night claiming that of the 452 delegates to the Republican National Convention elected to date 130 are for Col. Roosevelt and only 40 for President Taft.

COLONEL ASSAILS POSTMASTER.

Tells Reading Crowd He Had No Right to Send Out Circular.

READING, Penn., April 11.—"I hope you'll vote day after to-morrow the way you shout now," said Col. Roosevelt to the crowds which met him on the last day of his campaign in Pennsylvania.

On the way from Philadelphia to Reading stops were made at Norristown, Phoenixville, Royersford, Pottstown, and Birdsboro. Col. Roosevelt did not attempt to do much talking, contenting himself with a sentence or two at each place. Large crowds came out to see him.

At Reading, where the Colonel remained for half an hour, he was taken to Penn Square. One of the largest crowds of the day greeted him. In his speech he made reference to a circular sent out by Postmaster A. M. High to the voters of Reading, and said:

"In this city of yours I saw a circular that has just been sent out by the Postmaster telling you how to vote. Now this is not a Federal officeholder's job. This is the people's job, and I ask you to rebuke the effort to control your votes by the professional bread and butter politicians."

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senator Dixon, Chairman of the Roosevelt National Committee, stated to-day that 2,600,000 cards have been distributed to the voters of Pennsylvania, bearing the names of the Roosevelt delegates to be voted upon at Saturday's primaries, and indorsed with a fac simile of Col. Roosevelt's signature. This action is due to the charge that delegates not in sympathy with Col. Roosevelt have been put on the tickets in many districts as the "Roosevelt delegates."

PEOPLE WON, SAYS PERKINS.

Says Illinois Was Moved by Principles in the Primary.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Principles, not men, dictated the action of the State of Illinois in Tuesday's primary election, according to George W. Perkins, recently a partner of J. Pierpont Morgan, who arrived in Chicago to-day.

"It was purely a question of principles, to which the question of individual candidates was subordinated," said Mr. Perkins. "The people of Illinois showed conclusively that they are fitted to deal with important questions sanely when these are submitted to them through the medium of the popular ballot.

"The handling of large trusts is one of the principles involved in this campaign. Undoubtedly it played an important part in the primary election. When we see one element bidding us rejoice because the Standard Oil Trust has been disbanded, and then see the price of oil go up as a result, we are impressed with the fact that something is wrong.

"The real trouble, of course, is not with business because it is big, but because, being big, its vastness gives to certain individuals an opportunity for more power than it is safe to give any one person or group.

"It is here and not in nagging and smashing at business wherever it appears to be reaching its fuller stages of development that the Government should stop. The Standard Oil Company as a company is not a danger. It is a collection of books and papers stored in an office in Wall Street, and books and papers alone, without human direction, could injure no one.

"It is when men get down to the Wall Street office in the morning and begin to use those books and papers for their own personal aggrandizement and against the public good that the Government should step in. Big business in itself is a blessing, not a curse, provided we can curb the undue power it gives to certain individuals."

TAFT GETS KENTUCKY.

Twenty-three Delegates to Roosevelt's Three—No Bolt.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 11.—Immediately following the selection of delegates at large and their alternates the Republican State Convention, which has been in session for two days here, adjourned to-night at 6:40 o'clock.

The Roosevelt forces did not bolt, and twenty-three delegates from Kentucky, including the four delegates at large, will support President Taft, while three, one from the Fifth District and two from the Eleventh, will go instructed for Col. Roosevelt.

Following are the delegates at large: United States Senator W. O. Bradley, Louisville; W. D. Cochrane, Maysville; James G. Breathitt, Hopkinsville, and the Rev. J. Edward Wood, a negro, of Danville.

The alternates are: L. L. Bristow, Georgetown; J. C. Speight, Mayfield; W. J. Seitz, Morgantown, and the Rev. Stafford Campbell, a negro, of Lexington.

The report of the Committee on Credentials gave President Taft delegates from seventeen counties which were contested by the Roosvelt forces, and gave Col. Roosevelt seats from six counties which were contested by the friends of the President. It was stated last night that if these delegations were thrown out the Roosevelt forces would send a contesting delegation to Chicago, but this afternoon, when the report of the committee was read, the Roosevelt forces remained in the hall, though all of them voted against the report.

Scoring the Taft machine for importing votes from West Virginia and Ohio to take part in the county mass conventions last Saturday, Clayton B. Blakey of the Credentials Committee offered a minority report, in which he asked that the Taft delegates from twenty-eight counties be ousted and Roosevelt delegates seated.

The minority report was voted down by 1,722 to 684. Chairman Bradley then read the majority report, which gave Taft seventeen of the contested counties and Roosevelt six. The report was adopted by a vote of 1,872 to 484.

CUBA COLD TO KNOX ON VISIT TO HAVANA

A SPEECH OF REASSURANCE

Secretary of State Says Our Good Faith Toward Cuba Has Been Proved by Our Deeds.

HAVANA, April 11.—Cuba, for whose liberty America gave of her blood and treasure, to-day received the American Secretary of State with official friendliness, but without anything in the nature of a popular demonstration.

When the United States cruiser Washington, with Mr. Knox and his party aboard, entered Havana Harbor this morning, the guns of Cabana answered her salute. On the steamer Victoria Luise, anchored near at hand, "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played, and hundreds of tourists lined the rails, waving their handkerchiefs. The cruiser responded with the German national air.

A welcoming party boarded the Washington and presented several floral pieces to Mrs. Knox. Several hundred persons were assembled on the peir when the party landed an hour later.

The arrival was unique in that, for the first time in nearly two months, the Secretary on touching soil was not greeted by the Red, White, and Blue, nor heard the welcome strains of the American National anthem. There was no music, no guard of honor, no enthusiasm, such as the party had become accustomed to, and no soldiers lined the streets.

Waiting automobiles carried the visitors through undecorated thoroughfares to a hotel, where a floor had been reserved for them. The only American flag sighted during the drive flew over the American Club.

Secretary Knox called on Secretary of State Sanguily, in the morning, and later on President Gomez. The Cuban State Secretary returned the call in the afternoon. The American Minister, Arthur M. Beaupré, entertained the visitors at tea at the legation at 5.

The dinner this evening at the office of the Secretary of the Interior, Señor Machado, was an elaborate affair, covers being laid for 160. Señor Sanguily is generally reputed to be anti-American, but nevertheless made a flattering address of welcome.

Secretary Knox's response was a reassurance of the disinterested purpose of the United States toward Cuba, and was intended to allay suspicion of aggression, which is a grievance of a faction of Cubans still unfriendly toward the United States. At the same time Mr. Knox warned Cubans against permitting the Government to fall into the hands of those who would exploit it for selfish ends, thus neutralizing the good effects of liberty.

"It has been my high privilege," said Mr. Knox, "to be the President's chosen instrument for conveying to the independent Nations of the Caribbean at this time, when the completion of the Panama Canal is near, a message of fraternal good will and assurance, if, indeed, assurance is necessary, and of the deep sense of responsibility felt by the Government and people of the United States that the great work which we have undertaken shall helpfully contribute the well-being of the Commonwealths of the Western World and be instrumental in bringing closer all peoples of the Americas, inspiring them with broader confidence, more intimate sympathy, and more practical reciprocal helpfulness in the promotion of their mutual advantage and coordinate development.

"But, as I said at Panama, intelligent consideration of the relations of the United States to the other American republics makes it clear that our policies have been without a trace of sinister motive or design, craving neither sovereignty nor territory. The special purpose of my mission having been accomplished, it is alike appropriate and gratifying that on the homeward journey I should have the opportunity to get into closer personal touch with the one sovereign people of the whole Western World, who, above all, are in a position to know and appreciate the broad and essentially conscientious policy of Anglo-Saxon America toward Latin America.

"So far as Cuba is concerned, our record speaks for itself. It is consistent and unblemished. It was formulated and proclaimed before the first shot was fired at Manila in initiating the conflict to free from crushing despotism 'this fairest land eye had ever seen,' and which happily ended in gaining free Cuba for free Cubans.

"That policy has been lived up to ever since. It needs no reiterative protestations. Good faith is a think that proves itself by deeds, not words. Our deeds with respect to the Cuban people are before you. Look to them for fresh assurance, if there be any doubting Thomas who thinks he needs it, that the United States stands firmly as a true and whole-hearted friend of Cuba, glad of the work it has done for the Cuban people and ready to aid them to conserve the civic and material benefits which it was our good fortune to be instrumental in helping them to win.

"First among these benefits is self-government. We hold that all peoples are fit to work out the highest ideals of self-government by creating for themselves and by their own effort a healthy national life, inspired by safe and sane exercise of the popular will, homogeneous in all its parts, free from radical weakness or corporeal blemish, self-respecting, and imbued with respect for the rights of all at home and abroad.

"Providence has called upon free Cuba to be a model state among the popular commonwealths of the world and has opened the way to the achievement of that noble purpose. That is the goal for which we have, with you, spent our blood and treasure, and to which our earnest efforts will ever be directed. At the beginning of Cuban political life was the affirmation of the brotherhood of the American and Cuban peoples. Let us ever be brothers. While liberty is attained through patriotic valor, yet it is only through fraternity and unselfish coordination that it is perpetuated.

"The crisis in the life of any nation that has thrown off the yoke of tyranny is the period of rehabilitation. When the cohesive bonds of a common peril are relaxed by the removal of the danger, and liberty succeeds oppression, unselfish fraternity must be substituted for the unity which the common danger furnished during the struggle for national rights.

"'A people liberated from oppressive tyranny are no better off if unrestrained through selfishness, which almost inevitably leads to anarchy. A people so situated cannot profitably exercise the right of self-government unless they work faithfully together with singleness of aim. Mistrust, jealousy, selfishness, apathy will rob a people of their birthright. There is always more to unite than to separate all classes of citizens, and in Cuba, as in all republics, all classes should be alert in the consciousness of their civic duties, and should not remit the destinies of their country to the hands of a few, who, with nothing to lose and everything to gain, make a business of the politics of their country.

"It is the fervent prayer of my Government and my countrymen," said the Secretary in conclusion, "that free Cuba abide steadfastly in the high station to which Providence has called her, sturdy with the strength of stable self-control, free from the infirmities that beset weak peoples, earnest in the path of self-development."

Señor Sanguily, speaking on behalf of President Gomez, extended a cordial welcome to Secretary Knox. He saluted him as a harbinger of peace, who came "not bearing the sword of conquest, but extending branches of olive and laurel and peaceful messages from the greatest Republic to those fiery little republics shaped to her image, although under different conditions—some born, as the most recent was, at the magic touch of her diplomacy, others, as our own, by the assistance of her arms." The Secretary continued:

"Americanism is either an empty word or a leaven of order and dignity, which implants in all peoples the seed of vigorous virtues. Whatever may be the changes in the application of the Monroe Doctrine, we know that they can never mean a harassing, illegal, and humiliating suzerainty, consisting in constant arbitrary intriguing of an alien Government in the private normal life of sovereign nations. If to counsel us in the difficulties of National life, pointing out the dangers born of inexperience, is what may be called a preventive policy, no reproach can be laid at your door, and we should be blameworthy in failing to take advantage of the benefits so offered."

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The President's yacht Sylph will meet the cruise Washington at Point Lookout on April 17.

Secretary Knox and his party will b transshipped at that point and brough to the capital, thus concluding the ex tensive Central and South American tou which began at Key West on Feb. 23.

URGE NEEDS OF Y. W. H. A.

At First Luncheon Workers Report $3,000 in New Gifts.

The first of the series of daily luncheons which are to be held during the campaign of the Young Women's Hebrew Association to raise $250,000 by April 25 took place yesterday at 12:30 on the third floor of the old Tiffany Building, Broadway and Fifteenth Street. The Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris was the principal speaker.

Although the workers for the cause had a few morning hours only in which to work and though many of them failed to report, the Executive Committee received assurances of $3,000 in new subscriptions—at the estimated rate of $1,000 an hour. This brought the amount already subscribed up to $69,600.

The luncheon party cheered the announcement made by Campaign Manager Louis Allen Abramson that two non-Jewish contributors, entirely unsolicited, had donated checks of $500 each. The donors were Cleveland H. Dodge and his sister, Miss Grace Dodge. Miss Dodge sent a note wishing the movement for a new Y. W. H. A. all possible success.

In his talk to the workers the Rev. Dr. Harris urged them to present the claims of the association to a new building not as a matter of charity, but as a proposition of social justice. The more fortunate, he said, should help their less fortunate sisters in this community. Conditions in city life, he said, made it necessary to have an adequately equipped young women's association to maintain the high standard of Jewish womanhood.

Mrs. Israel Unterberg, President of the association, urged the workers to bring their friends and all interested in the cause to the daily luncheons. She stated that personal invitations are not necessary, and that those who become interested in the campaign, either through reading accounts in the newspapers or otherwise, will be welcome. She announced that the speaker at to-day's luncheon will be Miss Sadie American, President of the Council of Jewish Women.

The campaign headquarters have been handsomely decorated with American flags and Zionist banners. A telephone has been installed, so that business men who attend the luncheons or who come to the headquarters to assist in the campaign may keep in touch with their offices. The telephone is 3160 Stuyvesant. Workers who are unable to attend the luncheons are requested to report subscriptions by telephone, so that they may be announced in the daily total, which will be compiled at luncheon time each day.

PANAMA "ERUPTION" A YARN.

Report of Disaster Near the Canal Proves Baseless.

PANAMA, April 11.—Investigation to-day shows that the report that thousands of persons had been killed and Indian villages swept away by the eruption of Chiriqui Peak, near Bocas del Toro, in Panama, was baseless. There has been no eruption of Chiriqui Peak and Panamans are at a loss to know how such a report originated.

The report of the eruption and loss of life was brought to Mobile yesterday by Captain Olsvik of the steamer Fort Morgan. He said the eruption took place April 5 and that he saw flames shooting from the peak. He added that reports of the large casualty list were brought to Bocas del Toro by refugees.

PICKS OUT PERELLA AS BANDIT SHE CHASED

RECOGNIZES HIM AT SIGHT

Frank Perella's cousin was married yesterday in old St. Patrick's Cathedral, at Prince and Mott Streets, and for the first time in eight days Perella left his home at 215 Mott Street to attend the wedding. He was at Elizabeth and Prince Streets when Detectives Botti, Slevin and Glynn stepped up and arrested him.

They took him to Police Headquarters and put him in a line with a dozen other men. Then Miss Elizabeth J. Foley, of 207 Logan Street, Brooklyn, cashier for William Schwartz, a manufacturer of clothes at 65 Bleecker Street, looked over the line. Instantly she picked out Perella as the man who on April 2 blackjacked old Joseph Lobora almost in front of the Schwartz store when the old man was escorting her from the National Butchers & Drovers' Bank at Broadway and Third Street with $2,444.34, the week's payroll.

Perella broke down and wept, declaring that he had had no hand in the hold-up. Miss Foley was certain in her identification, however, and Perella was locked up. According to the police, he served nine months in the Catholic Protectory in 1903 for larceny, went to Elmira in 1904 for burglary, and spent two years and six months in Sing Sing, beginning early in 1909, for larceny.

Perella was caught through his picture in the Rogues' Gallery. Miss Foley recalled perfectly the looks of the man who had sprung on old Lobora from behind and clubbed him four times over the head with a blackjack. The girl had had a good look at his face when she sprang at him with a hatpin and bumped him out of reach of the old man, who was staggering under the blows, but still clutching the grip that held the money, and she had watched him closely as he ran through Bleecker treet and disappeared around the corner of Lafayette.

HOLD-UP MEN CONVICTED.

Parisi and Debiase, Who Robbed Miss Nichols, Found Guilty.

Frank Parisi of 66 Catharine Street and Raphael Debiase of 169 Mott Street, two of the men who attacked Miss Ella A. Nichols as she was leaving the Germania Savings Bank, at Spring Street and the Bowery, on March 16, and stole her handbag and $97, were convicted of robbery in the first degree yesterday before Judge Foster in General Sessions and remanded one week for sentence.

Both Parisi and Debiase while in the Tombs said that they were the victims of a police plot and that a detective whom they could positively identify had asked them to hold up Miss Nichols. They used this as a defense yesterday, although they refused to take the stand. John O'Connell told of the two confessions made by the defendants when arraigned before Lieut. Charles McKinney.

In these confessions both men confessed that the plan to rob Miss Nichols had been arranged in the cigar store of William Jones, at 328 East Fourteenth Street, the night before the robbery, and that Pete Romahia, "Pete the Burglar," had told them that he knew of a woman who every Saturday took between $1,000 and $1,500 from the Germania Savings Bank, and asked them if they would help him hold her up. They readily assented, and spoke to Antonio Crisculo, who also agreed to help.

Both Romahia and Crisculo are in the Tombs awaiting trial on the same charge. The jury was out only twenty minutes.

Albruzzo, Taxicab Bandit, Sentenced.

Jess Albruzzo, one of the informers on Geno Montani, the chauffeur, who drove the taxicab in which the two East River Bank messengers were held up and robbed of $25,000 on Feb. 15, was sentenced to not less than three nor more than six years in prison yesterday by Justice Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on his plea of guilty to robbery in the first degree.

Edward M. Brandt Dies Suddenly.

Edward Moore Brandt, the yachting tor of The New York Herald, and for writer of The New York Herald, and for newspaper, died suddenly yesterday afternoon from heart disease at his home, 252 West Thirty-fourth Street, in his seventy-sixth year. Mr. Brandt was at his work yesterday, and was not complaining of feeling badly. He returned to his home shortly before 5 o'clock, and soon afterward was stricken, dying just as Dr. Louis Stern reached his side. Mr. Brandt was born in Trenton, N. J., and was educated at Trenton Academy and later in the School of Naval Engineering.

Bureau to Fight Loan Sharks.

District Attorney Whitman announced yesterday, through Assistant District Attorney Lloyd Stryker, that in view of the recent decision of the Apellate Division of the Second Department in the case of John K. Schultz, which makes it a crime to charge more than the legal rate of interest on a loan, he will establish a bureau, with Mr. Stryker at its head, to prosecute any case against loan sharks.

BUILT LIBRARY WITH NICKELS

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 11.—The money that built the Van Wormer Library at the Cincinnati University was saved nickel by nickel by Asa Van Wormer, according to Mrs. Stella Sellers Blaesi, who testified to-day in Common Pleas Court. Mrs. Blaesi is the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Sellers, who was for thirteen years housekeeper and nurse for Van Wormer, and, with her daughter, lived in the Van Wormer home.

Mrs. Sellers is suing for $37,000 worth of First National Bank stock, which was a part of Van Wormer's $500,000 estate when he died in 1909. Mrs. Sellers alleges that in 1907 Van Wormer signed an agreement to give her the stock upon his death. It is admitted that he gave her $20,000 in various amounts during his life. Mrs. Blaesi declared that Van Wormer was exceedingly plain, and had no modern conveniences in the house, with the sole exception of a furnace. She said they had no city water.

Van Wormer during several years, she said, had a favorite dog and a cat, which he insisted upon having at the table with them for every meal, and that he insisted upon letting the dog sleep near him. Mrs. Blaesi testified that because of Van Wormer's ways it was difficult to keep the home orderly, and that the total of $3 a week was what he allowed the women for household expenses.

The first attack upon the will by relatives because half the estate was left to charity was settled in another court a few weeks ago. It is expected that the hearing of the present case will consume several days. Mrs. Sellers contends that the $20,000 she received from Van Wormer before his death does not represent the amount he intended to give her for services. She declares he told her she should have enough to give her an income of $200 a month.

HELPED TO SELL PAINTINGS.

Marshall Clapp Gets $11,977 for Bringing Art Dealer Customers.

A Supreme Court jury returned yesterday to Justice Cohalan a verdict for $11,977 and interest against the estate of Hermann Schaus, a Fifth Avenue art dealer, in favor of Marshall Clapp, for commissions on the sale of more than $100,000 worth of paintings and other works of art. The suit was on a verbal contract to pay Clapp 10 per cent. of the proceeds of the sales, which Schaus made to customers brought in by Clapp.

Adam K. Stricker, who tried the case for Clapp, brought several of the leading art dealers of the city to court to testify that it was a custom in the trade to pay 10 per cent. commissions to agents who bring purchasers to art stores. Among these witnesses were C. E. Snedecor, Louis Ralston, and Charles J. Prinz. James Graham and Samuel Russell, professional art brokers, also testified.

Thomas Henry Burchell of 69 East Fifty-fifth Street, who bought $104,375 worth of the paintings, testified that he had never been in Schaus's galleries until he had been taken there by Clapp. Some of the paintings which Mr. Burchell bought were "Vache Blanche," by M. Dieterle, for $1,850; "Cottages near Torquay, England," by J. Rix, $2,000; a painting by J. Cazin, $8,000; "La Mort de Cesar," by J. L. Gérome, $3,583, and "Le Marabout dans La Harem," by the same artist, $2,500.

Mr. Schaus died Feb. 9, 1911. His estate was represented in the suit by Kellogg & Rose. H. Randolph Guggenheimer was attorney of record for Clapp.

ALL CANDIDATES APPROVED.

President Butler Says This Election Is Only a Question of Doctrine.

One hundred and fifty delegates, representing civic organizations at forty American colleges, assembled at Columbia University yesterday in the sixth annual convention of the Intercollegiate Civic League.

President Butler of Columbia greeted the visiting collegians in a speech, in the course of which he declared that all of the candidates for the Presidency were men personally fitted for the office through training and ability. He mentioned specifically the candidacies of President Taft, ex-President Roosevelt and Senator La Follette on the Republican side, and Governors Harmon and Wilson, Speaker Clark and Representative Underwood of the Democrats, making the point that the issue before the American people is not, therefore, one of personalities, but of the respective doctrines for which the candidates stand.

The Civic League convention began at Columbia yesterday with a luncheon in Earl Hall, after which the delegates sat for a group photograph on the Library steps. Later in the day a business session was held. Although members of the League were designated to lead in the discussion, no set speeches were made, and the session was informal.

In the evening the delegates were entertained at the City Club, after which they left for Washington, where they are to be received to-day by Chief Justice White, Ambassador Bryce, Secretary Fisher, Speaker Clark, Congressman Underwood, Senator Borah and President Taft, the latter receiving the college men at the White House.

COURT FINDS SUBWAY CONTRACTS LAWFUL

BARGAIN NOT LEGAL MATTER

Only Plain Violation of Constitution, Says Justice Blackmar, Justifies Disregard of Legislative Acts.

Supreme Court Justice Blackmar handed down in Brooklyn last evening his decision on the three injunction suits brought by the Admiral Realty Company, John J. Hopper and John R. Ryon, to prevent the city from taking any steps to formulate its subway contracts with the Interborough and the B. R. T. He decided in favor of the city with costs, upholding its demurrers, and ruling that there is nothing in the proposed contracts in violation of the State Constitution. It is understood that an appeal will be taken immediately, and every effort will be made to carry the questions involved through the Appellate Division to the Court of Appeals, in order to get a final adjudication of the controversy before the Summer vacation.

Justice Blackmar relied a great deal on the case of the Sun Publishing Association vs. the Mayor, an action brought at the time that the present Subway was under discussion. It was settled then that the building of a subway is a proper city purpose, and the leasing of a subway to a private corporation by the city was not the equivalent of the city's giving its property or lending its credit to such a corporation. Starting from this the Court declared that it had no need to consider whether the bargain was a good or a bad one as far as the city was concerned, and that it was clearly within the right of the city to construct a subway as a public work for the convenience of its citizens. Moreover, it was held that as the preferential payments, of which so much has been heard, are to be paid only out of the earnings of the new rapid transit lines, this could not be in any way construed as such a lending of the city's credit to a private corporation as the Constitution prohibited.

Not Concerned with Bargain.

The court began by defining the scope and nature of a taxpayer's action, and pointed out that it could not be asked to enjoin official acts merely because they might be unwise or improvident.

"They can interpose," Justice Blackmar said, "only to confine the officials within the scope of the powers conferred upon them and to prevent fraudulent acts. It follows that I am not concerned with the question whether the proposed contracts are wise or improvident, or whether the city is getting a good or a bad bargain. As there are no allegations of fraud, collusion, or bad faith, the only question is whether the contemplated action of the officials is within the scope of the powers conferred upon them."

The court then described briefly the outlines of the Interborough and B. R. T. contracts and, taking up first the former, pointed out:

"The new construction in connection with the present Subway will form two complete lines through Manhattan Borough, each terminating in the Bronx at one end and in Brooklyn at the other; a lateral line to Queens County, and feeding extensions reaching out by branches in the outlying districts of the Bronx, Queens, and Brooklyn Boroughs."

Of the Interborough proposal the court has this to say:

"The proposal seems to be indefinite in its terms. I have adopted the interpretation of it which appears to be acquiesced in by counsel, though I confess I cannot find them all distinctly stated in its terms."

Justice Blackmar defined the alleged illegality as lying in the proposed pooling of receipts from the old and new systems and the preferential payments to the Interborough. These, it was contended, violated the constitutional provision that no city shall give any money or property or loan its money or credit in aid of any corporation, nor shall it incur any indebtedness save for a city purpose. There was nothing in this, the court held, to deny the right of the city to build subways and lease them to the Interborough.

Intent of the Constitution.

The court held that the intent of a written constitution must be determined in the light of its history. The purport of the provision under consideration was to prevent a municipality from lending its funds or its credit to aid such corporations as were then known.

"At that time all railroads were built and operated by private corporations in the interest of their stockholders. The notion that they owed any duty to the public was embryonic. They frequently exploited rather than served the people. * * * In examining the question, therefore, the consideration that the proposed roads are municipal roads, serving a city purpose, is of great importance. The city may devote its funds to securing the performance of a proper city purpose. All money raised by taxation is so devoted. The city purpose in securing a municipal road is not to make money. Profits may arise incidentally, but the city purpose is to promote the welfare and convenience of the citizens."

After drawing this distinction between a private and a municipal railroad enterprise and incidentally declaring a city justified in charging a 5-cent fare, even though it be unprofitable, Justice Blackmar took up the arguments against the $6,335,000 preferential payment to the Interborough on the ground that it amounted to the pledging of the city's credit. Of this he said:

"If the argument is valid, any lease profitable to the lessee would be unconstitutional, for it would furnish the basis of borrowing. This would mean that every contract with the city is invalid, if profitable, which is a reduction ad absurdum.

"The argument that the preferential assignment to the Interborough Company of a portion of the receipts of the combined system constitutes a lending of credit seems to me artificial. The Interborough is entitled to a preferential payment out of the earnings only. A deficiency in any year is cumulative, but only out of the earnings. In no contingency is the city's credit pledged for this sum, or any part of it. It is begging the question to call the provision a guarantee, and then declare it is void, because it is called a guarantee and not because it is one."

Agreement Not a Partnership.

The court dismissed the argument against the mingling of public and private funds, on the ground that it constituted a partnership between public and private interests, as not being founded on any prohibition in the Constitution. For, at any rate, the proposed contract was not a partnership, according to the accurate meaning of the word of law.

Passing on the B. R. T. contract Justice Blackmar held that it was similar to that proposed for the Interborough, but rather more favorable to the city, in that the B. R. T. owns the tracks, it intends to contribute to the agreement, and the preferential payments are not cumulative.

Then the court notes that the Rapid Transit act has been amended by the Wagner act since the suit was argued, and points out that as the acts in question are in the future, it must decide the questions at issue under the law as it exists at the time the decision is rendered, and not at the time the action was begun.

"As the proposed contract is authorized by the statute it is legal unless the statute is unconstitutional. The action, therefore, becomes practically an inquiry into the constitutionality of the statute. All intendments are in favor of the constitutionality of the statute. It is as much the duty of the Legislature, the Mayor, and the Governor to consider the constitutionality of pending measures when exercising legislative powers, as it is of the courts when passing upon them judicially. Nothing but a plain violation of the Constitution justifies the courts in disregarding an act of the Legislature."

The contracts have not yet been drawn, the court points out, but it has a right to assume that they will square with the act. In conclusion Justice Blackmar says:

"An examination of the bill which recently became a law shows that a pooling of the receipts of the new subways with those of the railroads operated by the lessees is authorized, and so is the so-called preferential payments therefrom to the lessee.

"These are the fundamental provisions which were challenged as illegal, and I have confined my inquiry to them. As these provisions are authorized by law the only question left is whether they violate the Constitution. I hold that they do not and therefore direct judgment for the defendant with costs."

MISS MORGAN VISITS CIRCUS.

Chats with Performers During an Early Morning Call.

Accidentally, as far as the press agent of the circus is concerned, the Woman's Welfare Department of the National Civic Federation expressed a wish several days ago to have the Mikado's Royal Troupe of Athletes give a jiu-jitsu exhibition before a meeting of working girls to be held in Terrace Garden this evening, to teach the girls how to defend themselves if molested. Accidentally still, it was discovered that Miss Anne Morgan was a member of the Vacation Committee of the federation, and a letter was hurriedly dispatched to Miss Morgan asking her to visit the circus whenever she willed.

Miss Morgan was there yesterday morning, before the acts of the show were in progress, and devoted about an hour to chatting with the various performers behind the scenes. First of all, she talked to "Mother" Talbot, mistress of the wardrobe, who with several assistants was making skirts for the ballet dancers in the wardrobe room. "Mother" Talbot told her visitor that she had 5,000 costumes for the 1,300 performers with the show, and that not so much as a spangle had been lost since the beginning of the season here.

"I've been with the circus twenty-three years," proudly declared "Mother" Talbot.

Thereafter Miss Morgan chatted pleasantly with Sandwina, the mighty German giantess, who tosses half a dozen men in the air by the nape of the neck. With her Miss Morgan conversed easily in German, the next moment in Italian with Miss Jardo, the Italian gymnast, and a moment later switched to Spanish to question Victoria Codona, "the prettiest little girl of the circus," about her acrobatic feats.

Miss Morgan was especially interested in Eugene Dekkoc, the tiny "cataleptic boy," who can make himself rigid as a stone statue while fellow-performers catch and toss him about from one end of the ring to the other. She told Eugene she wanted some of her little friends to see him perform next week, and with that in view engaged a box for the proposed party. Miss May Wirth, the Australian equestrienne, next chatted with Miss Morgan in fluent accents of the Vaterland, in which she rivaled Frau Sandwina and almost equaled Frau Bradna, the Italian equestrienne.

Miss Morgan left the circus at about 10 o'clock, three-quarters of a minute before the press agent called up the newspapers to tell them that he didn't care for publicity, but it might interest them to know.

ROBERT GOODBODY'S ESTATE

Robert Goodbody, a broker, who died on April 13, 1911, left property in this State valued at $350,004.21, all in personalty, according to an appraisal filed yesterday in the Transfer Tax office of the Surrogates by Deputy State Controller Fraser. He owned no realty here, but in Ireland his holdings were extensive. These consisted mostly of farm land. His entire estate at the time of his death was valued at $728,862.03, less liabilities of about $75,000.

Mr. Goodbody owned a seat in the New York Stock Exchange, and this is valued at $68,000. His other securities included 50 shares of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, $6,975, and 400 shares of the Western Union Telegraph Company, $29,000. His sole interest in the good-will of Robert Goodbody & Co. is valued at $75,715.24, and the balance due from the trustees of the firm is $207,704.07.

According to the terms of Mr. Goodbody's will the beneficiaries and amounts of the legacies are as follows: Margaret J. Goodbody, his wife, the residue of the estate and one-third of his interest in the company, the whole worth $132,008.41; Isabel S. Goodbody, a daughter, $20,189.40 and interest in the real and personal property in Ireland; Hannah F. Goodbody, a daughter, receives the same; Thomas P. Goodbody, a son, $30,284.10; William U. Goodbody, a son, a one-third interest in the company and $39,448.15, and to Marcus Goodbody, a son, is bequeathed the seat in the New York Stock Exchange, a third interest in the company, and $5,313, in all $97,884.75.

The home of the Goodbodys is at Haledon, N. J. The company's offices are at 80 Broadway.

WANTS TO CHANGE LAWYERS.

W. T. Gridley Must Explain Why He Refused Client His Papers.

Willis T. Gridley, a lawyer, of 170 Broadway, has been cited to show cause before Surrogate Cohalan to-day why he has not handed over to D. E. & J. F. Lynch, lawyers, of 2 Rector Street, the papers concerning the settlement of the $800,000 estate of William J. Lester or be punished for contempt of court.

Mr. Lester's will was contested by his nephew, William J. Lester. Mr. Gridley was the lawyer for the contestant. Lester became dissatisfied with his attorney and obtained permission to transfer the settlement of the case to the Lynch firm. The papers were demanded from Lawyer Gridley, but he refused to give them up.

HEAVY STRIKE VOTE CAST BY ENGINEERS

Ninety-three Per Cent. of the Men on 34 Out of 50 Railroads for Quitting Work.

AGREEMENT STILL EXPECTED

Railroads' Representatives Believe a Strike Will Be Averted—Engineers' Chief Confident Men Will Win.

When the committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers finished counting ballots for or against a strike on fifty Eastern railroads at the Broadway Central Hotel yesterday the vote, it was stated, indicated that the engineers would declare for a strike by more than 90 per cent. The ballots of members of the brotherhood on thirty-four railroads had been counted up to last evening, and the remaining votes, representing the engineers on sixteen roads, will be counted by 10 or 11 o'clock this morning.

There are about 6,500 engineers on these roads in the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, in which are firemen and engineers who are not in the engineers' brotherhood. These engineers, it was declared, are also taking a strike vote, and have declared practically for a strike. The committee of railroad managers representing the fifty roads will be notified of the result of the counting of all the votes to-day as soon as the returns are tabulated, and the vote will then be made public.

According to representatives of the railroads no strike is expected. A representative of one of the roads said that he "felt pretty sure" that a strike would be averted, but he would not give his reasons for thinking so. There had been reports that some of the railroads, including the Pennsylvania, had offered the engineers concessions on the condition that they return to the system of each railroad making a contract with its own employes. Representatives of the Pennsylvania said, however, that this road had made no concessions, and that a strike was not expected, but the company was prepared for a fight if the engineers quit work.

When he was asked last evening if he heard of any measure contemplated by the railroads to head off a strike, as had been reported, Grand Chief Stone said:

"I have not said there would be a strike, but we are going to win. I am confident of that. The vote, from the indications now, will be fully 93 per cent. for a strike. As a matter of courtesy, when the counting of the vote is completed to-morrow morning, we will first notify the committee of railroad managers and then make the result of the vote public. Those members of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen who are engineers are, I understand, voting for a strike and are with us. We are sure of those not in the Brotherhood, and I have not the slightest doubt the firemen will stand by us."

As to a report that Chief Carter of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen had asked him to withhold any strike action until the firemen made their demands and that a united fight of firemen and engineers would be made, in which the railroad telegraphers might take a hand, he said he had nothing to say on that matter. He understood that the firemen were voting on the question of making demands.

He knew nothing of any move on the part of President Taft to bring both sides together under the Erdman Mediation act. Either side can apply for mediation under its provisions. Both sides must be willing, however, before there can be arbitration.

The present demands of the engineers involve 25,700 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, about 8,500 members of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen who are engineers, and 2,000 non-union engineers. It was learned last evening that Commissioner John Williams had instructed the heads of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to watch the situation. The board would have jurisdiction in the case of railroads in this State, but has no mandatory power if either side declines arbitration.

RIO GRANDE WAGES UP.

Railroad and Its Employes Adjust Their Differences.

DENVER, April 11.—All differences between the employes of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad and the management relative to wages and working agreements were adjusted here last night at a meeting between General Manager Brown and a committee representing the men.

The most important concession made by the road was a wage increase of 7 per cent. to the firemen. The management agreed to allow 95 per cent. of the yardmen to become affiliated with the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Heretofore the maximum was 70 per cent.

P. R. R. DIVISIONS FOR PEACE.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 11.—A large majority of the engineers on the Maryland & Delaware Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad have voted against going on strike, it was reported to-night. The Maryland Division extends from Philadelphia to Washington; the Delaware Division runs from Wilmington to Delmar, the entire length of the State.

Supt. A. J. Whitney of the Maryland Division expressed the belief that the engineers would decide against a strike. The counting of the vote has not been completed.

Baltimore Stevedores Strike.

BALTIMORE, April 11.—More than 1,000 stevedores employed along the docks at Locust Point went on strike to-day to try to enforce a demand for an increase of 5 cents an hour in wages. The steamship companies affected are the North German Lloyd, the Hamburg-American Steamship Company and the Johnston Line. There is a possibility that the strike will spread to all the lines entering this port.

ALTMAN GOT THE HOLBEIN.

But Intimates That the Price Was Much Less Than $250,000.

Hans Holbein's portrait of Margaret Wyatt, (Lady Lee,) sold by Gimpel & Wildenstein supposedly for $250,000, was acquired by Benjamin Altman. The purchase price has not been disclosed. Mr. Altman was asked last Tuesday afternoon by a TIMES reporter for a statement. Through his representative, M. Friedman, he denied that he had acquired it.

Mr. Friedman explained yesterday that Mr. Altman had the purchase of the portrait only under consideration when questioned last Tuesday. He declared further that the price reported to have been paid for the work was by no means correct, and intimated that $250,000 was much in excess of the actual price paid. The portrait of Margaret Wyatt is the first important work of Holbein that has been obtained by an American collector.

MINERS NOW NEARER A PEACE AGREEMENT

Sub-Committee at Philadelphia Conference Reports Substantial Progress.

WILL MEET AGAIN TO-DAY

Wages, Recognition of Union, and Conciliation Board the Three Main Points at Issue.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—The sub-committees of miners and operators, appointed at the Conference yesterday to take up the work of trying to reach an agreement on a new working arrangement for the anthracite mine workers, held a three hours' session here to-day and at its conclusion gave out a brief statement that progress had been made. The committee will go into session again at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning and will probably hold an all-day meeting. No statement as to the result of the committee's labors will be made until a report is ready to present to the full committee of operators and miners.

Both operators and miners to-night expressed themselves as satisfied with the progress made. One of the members of the committee said:

"There was a general discussion of the differences between us. It took a wide range. We touched on almost every point of difference and we cannot tell when we will get through. We have hardly begun."

It was learned to-night that the three main points touched upon were wages, recognition of the union and the board of conciliation. So far as it could be learned there were no definite proposals offered by either side, but it is fully believed that concessions by both sides will be made. An increase in wages is looked for for the men. The general impression still prevails that a 10 per cent. advance will be finally offered if the miners recede from all or most of their other demands.

Some of the members of the miners' executive boards are said to be willing to waive the check-off demand, provided the operators will permit a closed shop or be willing to sign an agreement as between the operators and the United Mine Workers of America. This sort of a contract would not bind the coal companies to grant the same wages and conditions of work to the non-union men and would have the result of forcing unorganized men into the miners' union. The operators still stand on their statement, however, that they will not grant any more recognition to the union than it has at present.

The miners are contending for the abolition of the Board of Conciliation or a more convenient system of dealing with local grievances within a reasonable time. It was said at the headquarters of the miners to-night that if the operators agree to a change in the methods of the board in handling grievances and decide complaints within a reasonable time limit the mine workers might accept such a modification of their demand on this question.

None of the big coal operators was here to-day with the exception of President Baer, of the Reading Company, near whose private office the committee held its session. Mr. Baer did not go near the committee room and left his offices an hour before the committee adjourned for the day. In leaving he said to the newspaper men that there would be nothing to say until the committee had made its report and that he was not a prophet. He appeared to be well satisfied with the situation.

The executive boards of the miners from the three anthracite districts are still here waiting on the sub-committee. They will hold no meetings until the sub-committee is ready to make a report.

There was a little stir about the hotel where the miners are making their headquarters when John Mitchell, former President of the Miners' Union, made his appearance. Mr. Mitchell came here to-day to make an address to the local Carmen's Union and said he had no other business in this city.

"I am hopeful that the miners and operators will sign a satisfactory contract," was all that he would say.

The situation in the coal fields remains unchanged. The suspension continues complete and the miners are patiently waiting for news from this city. They expect an early resumption and the same expectation prevails among the members of the Miners' Union now in this city.

SOFT COAL MEN AGREE.

More Than Ninety Per Cent. Vote to Indorse Cleveland Terms.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—"Ninety per cent. of the soft coal miners have approved the proposed two-year wage contract," said Edwin Perry, Secretary Treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, to-day after he had received telegrams from representative local unions throughout the country reporting results of yesterday's referendum election.

Though perhaps 25 per cent. of the miners of Indiana and the Southwest voted in the negative, because of certain local conditions, Western Pennsylvania, Illinois, and other districts were practically unanimous in indorsing the new agreement, Mr. Perry said.

The ballots are being returned to the miners' headquarters here, and the tellers will begin counting them next Monday morning. The result probably will be announced officially Monday night. The miners' National officers expect that with the wage question settled district differences between men and operators speedily will be bridged over and all the bituminous miners will be back in the pits on May 1.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 11.—Miners of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, yesterday voted by an overwhelming majority to accept the terms of the Cleveland conference, which is based on $1 a ton coal for the miner. The result of the balloting was announced at the district convention in session here this morning. This, it is announced by officers of the union, means that 50,000 men in the Pittsburgh district will return to work next Monday.

GEN. KEARNY'S BODY LIES IN CITY HALL

Military Pomp Marks Removal of Noted Fighter's Remains from Trinity Church.

DOWNTOWN TRAFFIC HALTED

10,000 Persons Witness Ceremonies at City Hall—Coffin to be Taken to Arlington To-day.

With military honors so elaborate as to halt downtown traffic and office work for some time during the busy forenoon yesterday, the coffin containing the remains of Major Gen. Philip Kearny was removed from Trinity Church, and, after being carried on a flag-draped caisson though lower Broadway was placed in the rotunda of City Hall to remain there in state overnight. In accordance with the long-expressed wish of the veterans of Gen. Kearny's first New Jersey command, the coffin will be taken to the National Cemetery at Arlington to-day, where it will lie side by side with the remains of many other of this country's great fighters.

Services In Trinity Church.

At 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning while the various troops of regulars and National Guardsmen were forming, with picturesquely contrasting uniforms, in side streets around the old church, the Rev. Dr. Manning, the Rev. Joseph W. Hill, the Rev. Bruce V. Reddish, the Rev. J. Wilson Sutton, and Chaplain Smith,, who has charge of Trinity Chapel on Governors Island, conducted services in the church. These services consisted of the Lord's Prayer, the Nineteenth Psalm, the Lesson, the Benedictus, chanted by the choir, and the playing of the Dead March from Saul on the great organ by Moritz E. Schwartz. Every seat in the big church was filled with the white-haired civil war veterans.

The remains were then carried out to the Broadway curb in front of the church where the coffin was placed on a caisson, draped simply with an American flag and drawn by six artillery horses. Here is the order in which the procession started:

Brig.-Gen. George B. Dyer and staff.
Essex Troop Cavalry, N. G. N. J.
Battery Field Artillery, N. G. N. Y.
Battery Field Artillery, N. G. N. J.
Battalion Twenty-ninth Infantry, U. S. A.
Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y.
Grand Marshal George H. Stevens and staff.
Commissioners appointed by Gov. Wilson of New Jersey.
Caisson.
Carriages containing members of Kearny family, (Messrs. Thomas and Phil Kearny, grandsons of Gen. Kearny,) Gen. George B. Loud, Commander Department of New York, G. A. R., and comrades of Gen. Kearny who served with him in the Army of the Potomac.
Major Gen. Daniel E. Sickles.
Gen. Nicholas W. Day, Senior Vice National Commander in Chief G. A. R., and others.
Grand Marshal S. H. Mildenberg and staff.

The procession marched down Broadway to Beaver Street, through Beaver to Broad, through Broad to Wall, through Wall to Broadway, and up Broadway.

Sword Cuts Lieut. Roome.

While the Essex Troop of the New Jersey National Guards was passing 52 Broadway, the horse of First Lieut. Bertram Roome, who was in command of the troop, slipped on the car track. The officer, like all his comrades, had his sword drawn at salute. When the horse went down on his knees, Lieut. Roome flung up his sword arm to keep his balance and cut a long gash in his forehead. The horse recovered himself quickly and Lieut. Roome, as though nothing had happened, rode along at the head of his men with blood streaming down his face. At the armory of Essex Troop, in Roseville, N. J., later he was said not to have been badly hurt.

About 10,000 persons were waiting outside of the plaza in front of City Hall to witness the ceremonies there. But the Plaza itself was absolutely bare. Police Captain Jacob A. Brown of Traffic Squad A, who was trained in the German Army, had made the Plaza arrangements according to a plan of his own, which was somewhat different from the way most police arrangements have been made at public events in this city heretofore. First, Capt. Brown had the plaza's concrete pavement scrubbed so clean and smooth that the glitter of a pin could almost have been seen on it. Next, Capt. Brown stationed only four policemen in the whole broad square. One stood at each corner of the City Hall steps. They were a straight-standing, smartly uniformed quartet, and the effect which this simple arrangement made in the big open space was unusually impressive. A number of other uniformed policemen were stationed at the various entrances of City Hall Park, but they did their work of keeping the crowd back so unobtrusively that they were hardly noticed.

Mayor Makes Brief Speech.

When the flag-draped caisson and its escort reached the plaza Mayor Gaynor, Charles F. Hopkins, the Chairman of the New Jersey commission in charge of the coffin's removal; ex-President Thomas J. Hillery of the New Jersey Senate, who represented Gov. Wilson; Major Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, and Gen. George B. Loud, Commander of the Department of New York, G. A. R., made brief informal speeches from the City Hall steps.

"It is very fitting that the remains of this great soldier," said Mayor Gaynor, "should be taken from their temporary resting place and translated to the great cemetery at Arlington, there to remain to be treasured by the Nation forever. He was a very brave man and a great soldier. He died on the field of battle. His deeds will ever remain to be emulated by those who come after him. And his name will ever be revered by the American people. I am very glad to participate in this official ceremony over his remains as they pass from this city."

COURT UPHOLDS SHUBERTS.

What Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the Shuberts, styled "a malicious effort to force a receivership so as to hurt the good name of the Shuberts throughout the country" was yesterday blocked by Supreme Court Justice Bischoff, who refused to appoint a receiver for the play, "The Blue Bird," provided the Shuberts gave a bond within forty-eight hours guaranteeing to Liebler & Co. their share in the profits of the production.

Justice Bischoff stated vehemently from the bench that he would not appoint a receiver with instructions to continue the production of the play at the Shuberts' expense.

"I surely will not give any one the opportunity," he said, "to advertise that a play is being produced under the auspices of the Supreme Court of New York."

Liebler & Co. applied to the Supreme Court for a receivership to insure the $17,500 share which they had by contract in the Shubert production of "The Blue Bird."

"The man accountable for the money herein involved," said Mr. Untermyer, "is worth $2,000,000 and does a business of $40,000,000 a year. This malicious move is only a pawn in the game of getting possession of the theatrical business of the country. The real movers in this action are not Liebler & Co., but Klaw & Erlanger, the only competing firm save the Shuberts that can route a play from New York. In order to get this motion before the court the Lieblers had to allege that the Shuberts were insolvent, and this is not the fact."

DEED TO JEFFERSON'S GRAVE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—That the grave of Thomas Jefferson is the property of the Nation is the discovery reported by Miss Martin W. Littleton and others interested in the movement to have Monticello bought by the American people.

According to the documents, Jefferson's grave was given to the Nation more than thirty years ago by heirs of the Randolph family. When Uriah P. Levy, an officer of the navy, after willing his money to his family, sought to make the American people the legatees of Monticello, the Randolph family gave the burial plot of Jefferson, which is in the heart of the Monticello property, signing a quitclaim of ingress and egress.

Speaking of this matter, Mrs. Littleton said to-day:

"The Randolphs, who are the direct descendants of Thomas Jefferson, inherited only the family burial ground. The rest had to be sold to pay the debts of Jefferson incurred while he served the public.

"Uriah P. Levy bought Monticello, and at his death willed it to the people. That will was broken, so the people have never owned Monticello. The Randolphs then did all they could by deeding to the Government the grave and the two rods of ground surrounding it. Congress gratefully accepted that bit and erected there a tomb in the place of the former one, which was destroyed."

It is expected that the Daughters of the American Revolution, who will meet here next week, will join with other organizations which are interested in the movement to buy Monticello. The plan is now to introduce a resolution in Congress requesting the present owner of Monticello, Congressman Jefferson Levy of New York, to fix a price on the place in order that the Nation may have an opportunity to regain it by purchase through popular subscription.

FOND OF BABIES, STEALS ONE

Rose Rapport, who lives with her mother and married sister, Mrs. Jennie Fleischman, at 1,437 Madison Avenue, had to go to Mount Sinai Hospital yesterday for a slight operation, and in the absence of Mrs. Fleischman, Mrs. Raport, who accompanied her daughter, took her granddaughter, Ruth Fleischman, ten months old, and the child's nurse, Annie Meyers, with her. Rose and her mother entered the hospital, leaving Annie and the baby on the sidewalk.

Annie remembered that she had not said good-bye to Rose, who was planning to spend several days in the hospital, and she ran inside to do so. She came out within five minutes, but the baby was gone from her carriage. The frightened girl ran in and told Mrs. Raport, who fainted. Doctors revived her and she recalled that just before Annie left the child a young girl about 17 years old had sat down beside her on a bench where she was waiting for Rose to be examined, and commenced to talk to her about children. The girl carried a paper parcel, and left the hospital as Annie entered. A paper parcel was found in the carriage.

The doctors recalled that a young girl, whose name and address they gave to the police, had been at the hospital and had been examined there. She had removed her corsets, and on leaving had wrapped them up in paper instead of donning them again. A pair of corsets were in the parcel in the carriage. The hospital folk told the police that the girl had visited the hospital several times, and each time had told of her great love for children, stopping to look at and play with every baby, either in a ward or with its mother at the hospital. The police who will not tell the girl's name or address, went to her home expecting she would take the baby there.

VAN NESS'S MANY GIFTS.

Lawyer Parshall Tells of Property Transfers to Wife.

William A. Parshall, a lawyer, of Port Jervis, who was counsel for the late Cornelius H. Van Ness of Cornwall, again was a witness all day yesterday before Surrogate Fowler in hearings on the contested will of Mr. Van Ness, which he drew and to which he was a subscribing witness. It was Mr. Parshall's second whole day on the stand.

He testified that he had drawn for Mr. Van Ness in 1901 various documents transferring important pieces of his estate to his third wife, Mrs. Alice Wood Van Ness. On May 31, 1901, Mr. and Mrs. Van Ness went to a local safe deposit company, he said, and Mr. Van Ness turned over $300,000 or $400,000 worth of railroad bonds to his wife. Mr. Van Ness gave him $40,000 worth of the bonds and a check for $7,000 for his legal services.

A month later Mr. Van Ness had him draw up a deed conveying his house at Cornwall to his wife for $1 and "natural love and affection." Later Mrs. Van Ness had him draw a deed selling the house for $15,000 to James Stillman. When Mr. Parshall testified a few minutes later that in November, 1901, Mr. Van Ness had given a bill of sale covering all of his personal property to Mrs. Van Ness, Surrogate Fowler asked:

It is the contention of Mrs. Alice Van Ness Parsons, daughter of the first Mrs. Van Ness, and Harriet B. Morse and Marie V. Pierce, nieces of the second Mrs. Van Ness, that the will under which the third Mrs. Van Ness is the principal beneficiary was obtained by undue influence and misrepresentations, and that the ante-mortem transfers to her are also open to the same kind of attack in proceedings to set them aside.

MRS. BROKAW DENIES SPITE.

Makes Affidavit to the Luxury to Which She Was Accustomed.

In an affidavit filed in the City Court yesterday, Mrs. Mary F. Brokaw, second wife of William Gould Brokaw, who married him in September, 1907, denied that she had run up large bills against her husband out of spite, after domestic disagreements. Mrs. Brokaw also denied that she had been taken off a farm by Mr. Brokaw when he married her. Mr. Brokaw's first wife, Carolie C. Coudert, obtained a Rhode Island divorce in 1898.

Revillon Frères, the furriers, are suing Mr. Brokaw for $770 for furs supplied to his wife in 1908. In his answer Mr. Brokaw declared that he and his wife were then separated, and that at the time she bought the furs she had a bank account of her own and should be held responsible for her purchases. He also pleaded that the furs were luxuries and not necessities. Mrs. Brokaw did not get a court separation until February, 1910, when Justice Putnam gave her a decree.

Mrs. Brokaw told in her affidavit of the luxury in which she lived on her husband's farm at Great Neck, L. I., before their disagreement. The house, she said, had fifteen bedrooms, eight bathrooms, a gymnasium, shooting gallery, billiard room and Turkish bath. There were twenty-four house servants, ten farm servants, two chauffeurs and thirty sailors, the crew of the yacht, Sybarita, in constant attendance, she said. A dozen racing horses and five motor cars were also maintained on the premises. Her husband's income, she said, was $100,000 a year, and she had accounts at fashionable establishments in London, Paris and New York, with her husband's permission, she declared.

An award of $12,067 to Mayor Gaynor as executor and trustee under the will of William Ziegler, who made a fortune in the baking powder business, for commissions from Nov. 30, 1910, to Nov. 30, 1911, was approved yesterday by Surrogate Cohalan. Similar awards were made to E. Matilda Ziegler and William S. Champ, who hold similar positions in relation to the estate. An award of $2,500 to Charles E. Lydecker, special guardian to William Ziegler, Jr., the infant beneficiary of the estate, was also approved.

The estate amounted to $13,242,127.68 in 1910 and was increased to $14,626,414.94 in 1911 by various additions, which included $612,948.64 added to the principal from various investments and $770,369.62 accumulated previous income incorporated in the body of the estate. In the fiscal year for which the accounting was made the income of the estate was $1,123,256.45.

CHILDREN GIVE PARTY FOR JOHN BURROUGHS

THEY ACT IN A PLAYLET

In Which Uncle Sam Promises to Protect the Birds — Songs and Dances and Many Flowers.

John Burroughs, who celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth on April 3, had another birthday party yesterday morning with his spiritual contemporaries of the Horace Mann School. At the close of the party, when all the children were seated around him on the floor of the Thompson Gymnasium at Teachers College and Mr. Burroughs rose to speak with his arms full of flowers, he came right out, regardless of the sensitive feelings of the scientists and authors who had visited him at the official party, and declared that this second one had been the gayest and happiest party he had ever had. The children clapped their hands, and then Mr. Burroughs went on:

"I hope each of you will have as many birthdays as I have had, and that they will all be as happy as this one. I wouldn't mind having four or five a week if they were all like this."

While he was speaking and all during the songs and dances of the children of the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades four canaries sang from among the green palms of the background quite as if they had been on the programme for a quartet. And the other numbers were almost like the birds' in spontaneous and unrestrained execution.

When Mr. Burroughs had taken his seat at one end of the gymnasium with Mr. Dutton, the Principal; Mr. Pearson, in charge of the elementary school; Mrs. Mary Pearle Anderson, in charge of nature work, and Mrs. Jean Dwight Franklin, the children all stood around him and sang a birthday song that Mrs. Franklin had written and Miss Helen Latham, teacher of music, had set to an old German tune. This is the song:

Come, Uncle John, to-day is Spring;
Come, for the world is a wonderful thing,
'Tis full of robins and bees and flowers,
Of happy children and golden hours.
Come, dance and sing, laugh and play,
For you're only seventy-five to-day.
Hooray! Uncle John, hooray!

Then came "The Appeal of the Birds," a playlet in which the birds appealed to Uncle Sam to save them from destructive man. One after another the bluebird, the oriole, the robin, the meadow lark, the humming bird, and even the not entirely innocent woodpecker asked Uncle Sam to save them from the women who want birds for their hats, the hunter of eggs, the cats that walk by night, and the bad boys who know no better than to kill birds. Uncle Sam promised.

After two songs, "Indian Lullaby" and "Pussy Willow's Secret," came the rose dance, lead by Dorothy Fairchild. Fifty children circled around Dorothy while the piano played a catchy little dance tune, and then, two by two, they came forward to the centre and each got a rose from Dorothy. Then they circled again and finally lined up in front of Mr. Burroughs. Dorothy placed the basket before him, and then, two by two again, the roses were placed in it. And when they were all in Dorothy took them and placed them in the hands of Mr. Burroughs. Then they danced away again and went to their places, while Mr. Burroughs bowed his thanks.

"I want Elizabeth to meet Mr. Burroughs," said the little girl, holding up the doll.

"Why, I shall be delighted to meet her," replied Mr. Burroughs. And he took Elizabeth on his lap and talked to her about an interesting bird he had recently met up at Slabsides on the Hudson.

After the reception, when Mr. Burroughs was leaving for Pelham to spend a few days before going back to his country place at Slabsides, he spoke of the party as one of his greatest surprises. Mrs. Franklin had suggested it to Mrs. Anderson, and the whole party had been arranged by Mrs. Anderson in two days.

"Once before at Pasadena," said Mr. Burroughs, "the children gave me a party like this. I remember looking out of the window one morning and seeing a great line moving down the street, bearing flowers. They stopped before my house and sang songs, and then left all the flowers with me. This is the end of my birthday celebration. I have been in a whirl for a week. I want to get back to my work now. I never felt better, I think. I should like to get out and climb a mountain. I think I could do it as well as ever I could—a little more time would be needed perhaps—but I can still tire out young climbers."

A reception was given for Mr. Burroughs on Tuesday at the Museum of Natural History, at which 300 writers and scientists were present. Henry Fairfield Osborne introduced Mr. Burroughs, who spoke briefly.

FOSDICK IS HUNTING GRAFT IN BRIDGES

HAS OFFICIALS BEFORE HIM

Testimony of La Chicotte in Manhattan Bridge Suit Will Be Investigated.

Raymond B. Fosdick, Commissioner of Accounts, has begun an investigation into the relations between certain engineers in the City Department of Bridges and the contractors who build bridges. The cause of this investigation, as Mr. Fosdick stated it yesterday to a TIMES reporter, was evidence given by H. A. La Chicotte of the Bridge Department, in the recent suit of Cornelius J. Sullivan against Patrick Ryan, who won the contract for building the Manhattan Bridge with his bid of $6,493,223.

La Chicotte, although he denied at first having received more than $1,500 for his advice to Ryan in framing his bid, admitted under examination that he had received $40,000 from the same source. In his testimony, moreover, La Chicotte declared that Leon Moisieff, another city engineer of the Bridge Department, was similarly employed by Cornelius Sullivan for the purpose of aiding him to get the contract for Ryan, in which, by the verdict of the jury on Wednesday, Sullivan had a financial interest.

Yesterday, Cornelius J. Sullivan and a number of men high up in the Bridge Department appeared, in obedience to mandatory subpoenas, before Commissioner Fosdick. Patrick Ryan and his attorney, J. B. Wait, have been subpoenaed to appear to-day.

The purpose of Commissioner Fosdick's investigation is maniflod. He wishes first to verify the statement that Leon Moisieff did consult with the contractors in relation to the size of the bid to be entered for building the Manhattan Bridge. La Chicotte was removed from the Bridge Department in January, 1905. In April, 1907, he was reinstated in a less important position at the same salary by order of the Appellate Division. He has now pending in the Supreme Court a suit against the city for his full wages of $6,000 a year during the time of his suspension, less $1,500 which he swore in his affidavit was all that he received from the Ryan-Parker Company during the interval that he was not employed by the city.

La Chicotte further admitted that he had continued working for Ryan after office hours, even when reinstated. The position that La Chicotte held in the department prior to his removal in 1905 would have made him the logical member of the staff to have charge of the Manhattan Bridge for the city. He thought that he would occupy the same position on being reinstated. But he was placed in one of less trust after 1907, and has not since been taxed with responsible duties.

The most important aim of the investigation will be to ascertain whether there was a leak somewhere which enabled Ryan to enter his estimate at so near a figure to that of the Pennsylvania Steel Company. A comparison of the detailed estimates shows that in some cases there was a margin of not more than $100 between the bids of the two companies. It was shown that the Ryan-Parker Construction Company was a paper corporation formed solely for the purpose of building the Manhattan Bridge. Neither Patrick Ryan, who was a concrete contractor, nor Cornelius Sullivan, who at the time was connected with an advertising concern, had had any experience with bridges, whereas the Pennsylvania Steel Company is often called the "Bridge Trust." Ryan and Sullivan both profess that their close estimate under $6,500,000, which barely gave them the contract, was the result of hard guessing and good luck. Commissioner Fosdick, however, is not satisfied with that explanation.

Mr. Sullivan stated yesterday that there had never been a bridge built in this city from which the contractors did not derive 50 per cent. profit.

"The Manhattan Bridge," he said, "did not cost over $4,000,000, and the Williamsburg Bridge, which was awarded on a $12,000,000 contract, did not cost over $8,000,000. So huge are the profits that an engineer's advice wouldn't do any good. Getting a contract is simply a matter of good guesswork."

Bids for the Manhattan Bridge contract were due in June, 1906, and in August it was announced that Ryan had obtained the award. It came out in court that La Chicotte had spent hours with Ryan during the few days prior to the date for entering the estimates. Moisieff was said in the testimony to have been similarly engaged.

Commissioner Fosdick would not reveal the names of the important members of the Bridge Department who appeared before him.

"I don't wish to give their names," he said, "nor to state the exact character of their evidence, for fear of weakening our case. If there have been any leaks in the past which helped contractors frame their bids, we can, at any rate, so revolutionize conditions that no leaks may occur in the future."

WESTERN UNION'S NEW MOVE.

Offers Telephone Subscribers Commission on Telegrams.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Certain subscribers of the Bell Telephone Company, which controls a majority interest in the Western Union Telegraph Company, are made agents of the latter organization and will receive a commission of 10 per cent. on all messages forwarded to the telegraph company over the telephone company's system, according to a new move on the part of the Western Union.

The project has attracted the attention of the Government attorneys and agents of the Department of Justice, however, who are at present engaged in investigating the legality under the antirebate law of the arrangement. It is also intimated that the lines of the inquiry are being directed to the point that the Bell Company and the Western Union are attempting to create a monopoly in violation of the Sherman act.

Limits to Private Police 'Phones.

"The department provides for 600 local calls per annum for official telephones in residences. All local calls in excess of 600 per annum and all toll charges will be charged by the Telephone Company to the official to which residence a telephone is assigned. Long-distance connection on official business may be obtained through 3100 Spring."

ABDUL BAHA HERE.

Leader of the Bahai Movement Comes to Present Peace Message.

Abdul Baha, a distinguished Persian, who is at the head of the Bahai movement for the unification of religious, arrived in New York on the White Star liner Cedric yesterday. It is his first visit to the United States, and with the single exception of a short visit to Paris and London last Summer, this is the first time in more than forty years he has left the "prison city" of Acre, in Syria, to which he and his father, Ben Ullah, the founder of the Bahai movement, were exiled by the Turkish Government fifty years ago.

Abdul Baha comes to us on a mission of peace and will deliver one of his principle addresses before the Peace Conferenct at Lake Mohonk the latter part of this month, after which he will deliver addresses before various peace societies, religious organizations, and educational bodies. As he puts it, he is ready to speak "wherever an audience can be found to welcome peace and promote the realization of the brotherhood of man."

When the Cedric was opposite the Statue of Liberty Abdul Baha extended his arms in a salute and referred to his own long exile in Syria. Then he talked of world-wide peace, which he termed the greatest of all causes. The diversity of faiths and the lack of universal auxiliary languages he mentioned as the obstacles that are to be surmounted in the attainment of the peace program.

Here a reporter interrupted to ask what "Bahai" means.

"It means," answered Abdul Baha," to love all the world, to love humanity, to serve it, to work for universal peace and universal brotherhood."

The skyline of New York greatly interested Abdul Baha. He called the big skyscrapers "the minarets of Western world's commerce and industry."

On the pier a thousand people, most of them followers of Abdul Baha, were there to greet him and the welcome pleased him immensely.

Fellow-passengers of Abdul Baha were Senator Pasquale Fiore of the Italian Senate in Rome, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Barber, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Francis E. Clark, Tomaso D'Armato, Chancellor of of Italian Embassy in Washington; Dr. J. M. Knott, Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Millar, who have been on a tour of the Nile country; Mr. and Mrs. John Paret and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Tyler.

ART MUSEUM'S PICTURES.

A New Whistler and Portraits by Two Noted Artists on View.

The Recent Accessions Room at the Metropolitan Art Museum has new pictures to show its visitors to-day, two portraits of dignified looking gentlemen—"John Julius Angerstein," by Sir Thomas Lawrence, and "Portrait of Dr. Black," by Sir Henry Raeburn, both gifts of Victor C. Fischer. Every one admitted to the room yesterday gazed admiringly at the new Whistler, "Cremorne Gardens No. 2," a purchase of the museum, with its soft green tones, Japanese-like touches of red, and graceful figures. Then there is another very nice picture by F. C. Friescke, "The Toilet," a gift of Rodman Wanamaker. It is not an unusual subject, a lady with her toilet not yet completed regarding herself in the glass, but the colors, and there are so many of them, evidently put in just for fun, but so nice and gay and altogether attractive.

In the centre of the room, in a case, is a more serious treasure—an early Attic vase, of a between period in which few examples are to be found, after the geometric designs of the tenth and eighth centuries before Christ and a little before the black-figured style of 600 B. C. It is a large vase—too large, it is thought, to have been placed inside a tomb, but probably used in the nature of a tombstone on the outside, with its figure decoration on the front, where it will be seen, and the simpler decorations for the back. The story represented is that of the Centaur Nessos, who is being savagely attacked by Herakles, whose figure shows vigorous action and his face a pleased and happy smile. There is an interesting four-horse chariot.

The Assyrian art collection of the museum is increased by a valuable loan by J. Pierpont Morgan of three bas-reliefs, large alabaster slabs belonging to the palace of Ashurnasirpal, a King of Assyria in the ninth century B. C. Another Morgan loan is a collection of 363 objects in gold, silver, and bronze, found in ten ancient cemeteries in France in the Marne and Aube Valleys. MRS. NICODEMUS FREED AS INSANE

Not Mentally Sound When She Shot Husband, but Sane Now, Jury Finds.

PRAISE FOR JUDGE ROSALSKY

Jurors Commend Court's Handling of the Trial—Prisoner Prays While Verdict Is Being Reached.

After deliberating for an hour and thirty-five minutes yesterday the jury in the case of Mrs. Genevieve Nicodemus, on trial for shooting and killing her husband, Francis Nicodemus, on Oct. 8, brought in a verdict of not guilty and was discharged with the thanks of the court by Judge Otto A. Rosalsky.

Judge Rosalsky gave the case to the jury at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and retired to his chambers. Mrs. Nicodemus was taken to an ante-room in the custody of a Deputy Sheriff and spent all the time praying. The jury was permitted to take forty-five minutes for luncheon. Judge Rosalsky was informed that the jury had agreed at 3:50 o'clock, and after entering the courtroom gave orders that all the doors should be locked, instructing the court attendants to refuse admittance to reporters as well as to spectators, although several reporters had entered the courtroom through a rear door with him.

Immediately after Judge Rosalsky entered the courtroom the jury filed in and Mrs. Nicodemus began to cry, while her counsel, Abraham Levy, put his arm about her. The clerk of the court asked the foreman if the jurors had agreed, and Foreman George W. Doland looked at the defandant and, smiling, said:

Mrs. Nicodemus's Joy.

"Not guilty!" shouted Mrs. Nicodemus, throwing her arms in the air. "Oh, my God! my God! Tell mamma I am not guilty! Oh, I am not guilty! I can go home! Tell mamma and papa I am coming home!"

After quiet had been restored Judge Rosalsky said:

"Gentlemen, by your verdict you have imposed a duty upon the court—that of determining whether or not this woman is insane."

"Your Honor misunderstood us," replied Foreman Doland. "The jury concluded that the defendant is not now insane, but was at the time of the shooting."

He then handed the Judge a sheet of paper, which said:

"We, the undersigned members of the jury in the case of Mrs. Nicodemus, desire to express our sincere admiration, respect, esteem and confidence in the presiding Judge, Otto A. Rosalsky, for the able and fair manner in which he has conducted this case under the circumstances."

Oscar Zimm, Assistant District Attorney Moss's assistant, went out in the hall and informed Mrs. Anna Nicodemus, the mother of the dead man, of the verdict. Mrs. Nicodemus did not understand at first, and after an interpreter had been called, who explained to her, she said:

"No, not crazy, bad woman."

Pats Foreman's Cheek.

The defendant's mother, father, relatives and friends were then allowed inside the courtroom, and after she had kissed them all Mrs. Nicodemus went to the jury box and shook hands with each juror as he went by her. When Foreman Doland passed she grasped his hand and attempted to say something, but could not. Instead she put her hands to his face and patted him on the cheek. She then threw a heavy veil over her head and went over to her mother.

"Aren't you going to get your hat, Gen?" asked Mr. Levy.

"No; you had better send for it. I don't ever want to see the inside of the Tombs again," he answered.

She then left the Criminal Court Building with her mother, while her hat and coat were handed to her on the street. Both mother and daughter then got into an automobile provided by Mr. Levy and were driven uptown.

AUTO DRIVER CONVICTED.

Dugan, Who Ran Down McDermott, Guilty of Manslaughter.

After having been out twenty hours the jury in the trial of Daniel A. Dugan, Jr., son of District Court Judge Dugan of Orange, N. J., charged with manslaughter returned a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation of mercy, yesterday afternoon in the Quarter Sessions Court in Newark.

Dugan drove an automobile which ran down and killed Leo F. McDermott last Christmas Day at Main and Day Streets, Orange. Just previous to striking McDermott the Dugan car knocked down Miss Sylvia Tichenor and painfully injured her. In this accident young Dugan is under indictment for atrocious assault. He was also jointly indicted with his cousins, Louis Nolte and James A. Clarke, Jr., for assaulting Ovidio Bianchi, who tried to arrest Dugan after running down McDermott.

Dugan, with his father, was in the courtroom when the jury announced its verdict. After Judge William P. Martin announced that sentence would be passed on Monday young Dugan, who is under heavy bail, left the room with his father.

The maximum penalty for manslaughter is ten years. It is believed that an appeal from the verdict will be taken by Dugan's counsel. Dugan's friends expressed the opinion in the Court House yesterday afternoon that Dugan will probably get off with paying a heavy fine or will be placed on probation. The latter course would give the court jurisdiction over him for several years.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL DIES AT HIS DESK

HE HAD SERVED FIFTY YEARS

Celebration Had Been Planned Last December, but Was Prevented by His Daughter's Death.

Evander Childs, Principal of Public School 10, Eagle Avenue and 163d Street, the Bronx, was going over his mail in his office yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, when the bell rang through the building to call the pupils to the assembly room for morning exercises. Mr. Childs started to rise, telling his secretary, Miss Alice Stear, that he was going to the assembly room. But before he was on his feet he fell forward with a cry and struck heavily on his desk.

Miss Stear screamed and attracted the attention of several teachers who were passing by the office door. Word was immediately sent to the Principal's daughter, Miss Ella Childs, who is a teacher in the schools. While pupils were sent out for a physician, efforts were made to revive him by rubbing his temples. Dr. Vincent Quinn, of 889 Cauldwell Avenue, arrived a few minutes later and found that the Principal was dead.

In the meantime the pupils, of whom there are 3,589 enrolled at this school, had gathered with many of the teachers in the assembly room and were waiting for the exercises to begin. They did not know what had happened until a teacher came from the office with word that the Principal was dead. To this announcement it was added that school was adjourned for the day. The school flag was soon at half mast and the children were filing out. The order to adjourn was given by Egerton L. Winthrop, President of the Board of Education, who had been notified immediately of the Principal's death.

Mr. Childs was 72 years old. He had been associated with the city schools for more than fifty years.

Mr. Childs was born in New York City, where members of his family have lived for many generations, one of his ancestors, Francis Childs, having been one of New York City's first newspaper editors. He was a graduate of City College and shortly after graduation began his career as a teacher. He was Vice Principal of Public School 51 for many years. He had been a Principal since 1891. He lived at 68 West 119th Street.

MOON
THE CHARACTER CAR

Self-Starting

Why the Rattler Rattles

The man buying his second car looks into the strength of the chassis before testing the motor's horsepower. Eating up mileage is one thing and doing it in comfort and safety is another—and more important.

The chassis built to sell looks all right in the salesroom and works all right on the road—for a short while. Then the suspicion of a rattle lifts its warning note. The motor is too strong for the chassis and presently you have a rattler on your hands.

The chassis of the new Moon "40" is 33⅓ per cent. stronger than the horsepower you buy. That means that our transmission and steering gear, universal joints and back axles would handle a 60 horsepower motor as well as the 40 horsepower you buy or the 46 horsepower (actual brake test) we deliver, and with equal safety. Can you wonder why the new Moon "40" is noiseless, or why it outwears all but the highest priced machines? Come in to-day and see this car—notice the T-head long-stroke motor; the stylish, classy outlines; the many exclusive Moon features that make for your comfort, and you'll join the universal chorus now praising "The Character Car."

HOPPE RETAINS 18.2 BILLIARD TITLE

Calvin Demarest Defeated in Hotel Astor Ball Room by 500 Points to 440.

Willie Hoppe, the 18.2 balkline billiard champion, successfully defended his title by defeating Calvin W. Demarest of Chicago last night 500 to 440 before an enthusiastic assemblage in the ballroom of the Hotel Astor.

Although the champion won, it was only after a hard struggle, and for a time it appeared as though the title was about to change hands.

After a poor start Demarest took the lead and later held his formidable rival even until the thirty-third inning when Hoppe came within three points of winning out. The rest was easy.

Demarest's open style of play pleased the spectators more than the careful nursing of the champion.

The Westerner made the high run of the evening with 98, but lost out on total average 14 10-35 to 12 16-17.

After the match Demarest said that he was well pleased with his showing and that he would have beaten Hoppe had it not been for the three fouls charged against him by referee Cutler.

Among the billiard stars who watched the match were Slosson, Daly, Kline, Mayer, De Oro, Gardiner, and Foss.

Hoppe started off with a count of 5, while Demarest missed his opening shot. In the second inning the champion got the ivories together and ran up a total of 24, which he repeated in the third, giving him a lead of 62 to 22.

The Chicago man warmed up in the fifth and sixth, when, with a brilliantly played 47 and 40, he went ahead of Hoppe, 116 to 93. Unlike the champion, the Westerner played the more open game and took greater chances. Low scores were in order from this point to the twelfth inning, when Demarest ran 45, making his total 180, as against 109 for the champion.

Hoppe came back strong in the sixteenth, when in a clever series of massé and draw shots he topped his opponent's previous high score with a total of 66, bringing him to within 4 points of the score.

It was Hoppe's turn to take the lead following his advantage with a 14, 54, and 27, while Demarest was evidently in trouble.

With the total 321 to 219 against him, Demarest in the twenty-second inning showed a clever series of plays up and down the table, making 98 before missing, a performance which landed him within 4 of Hoppe's figures.

In the twenty-seventh session of the series the two aspirants for championship honors were tied with 384 points each thanks to another high run of 51 by Demarest.

The strain of the even contest apparently affected both players, as each fell down on comparatively easy shots until the claimant for the title ran up 43 in the thirty-first inning, only to be followed by Hoppe's 45 immediately afterward, making the contest 445 to 436 in the champion's favor.

The score follows:

Hoppe—5 24 24 9 17 14 0 2 1 1 0 12 0 6 66 14 54 27 1 6 4 34 0 25 8 2 28 0 1 0 15 45 52 3. Total—500. Average, 14 10-35. High run, 66.

Demarest—0 8 14 7 47 40 6 10 1 2 0 45 2 0 3 2 3 3 23 2 1 0 98 11 0 5 51 0 2 2 43 5 1. Total—440. Average, 12 16-17. High run, 98.

BOSTON, April 11.—Dr. Harris of Chicago defeated Warren of Boston, 50 to 47, in to-night's three-cushion match of the National Billiard League. Dr. Harris made a high run of 3 and secured an average of .43. Warren equaled Harris's high run and averaged .40.

TO START OCEAN FLIGHT.

Duke of Connaught Will Send Aviator on Transatlantic Trip.

The Duke of Connaught, Governor General of Canada, and Premier Borden will officially start the Sloane aeroplane on its attempted flight across the Atlantic Ocean next August. Word to this effect was received yesterday by telegram from Dr. J. C. Cadegan at Glacé Bay, N. S. The royal party, with other high Canadian Government officials, have announced that they will be in Glacé Bay at that time. The Canadian Government is deeply interested in the transoceanic flight, and is making preparations to provide a warship patrol.

Dr. Cadegan of Glacé Bay is making preparations for the flight in Canada. Some time during this week he will have a conference with John E. Sloane. They will have a consultaion with the Ministers of War and Militia for the Dominion.

Dr. Cadegan has already made arrangements for the accommodation of the staff that will go to Glacé Bay to take care of the aeroplane. He has also provided shelter for the machine. A bungalow on the Mira, a Nova Scotian Summer resort, has been placed at the disposal of the aviators and guests. It is expected the start of the transoceanic flight will be made from what is known as Marconi's Tablehead. The first stop will be made at Newfoundland. August has been chosen as the time for the flight because a careful study of the weather charts has revealed that this is the most ideal season of the year.

VIRGINIA ATHLETES WIN.

Capture Southern Intercollegiate Track and Field Championship.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 11.—The University of Virginia, with 121 points, to-day won the annual Southern intercollegiate track and field meet. Three Virginia records were broken, Jones capturing the two-mile race in 10:17, Blanchard winning the shot-put with 40 feet 10 inches to his credit, and Gooch taking first honors in a broad jump of 22 feet 5⅞ inches. Later he cleared 22 feet 10⅛ inches.

George Washington University took second place, and the other institutions in the order named were Emery and Henry College, Virginia Military Institute, Johns Hopkins University, and William and Mary College.

Dundee May Box Kilbane.

The featherweight elimination tournament, which has been going on at the Empire A. C., has been declared closed by the McMahon Brothers, and the honors go to Johnnie Dundee, the local featherweight. No attempt will be made to match Dundee with either Jimmy Walsh or Joe Coster, in view of the outcome of their bout Wednesday night. Dundee is now being besieged with offers for bouts from various clubs, but expects to rest up for at least three weeks. There is a strong prabability that Dundee may soon be seen in a bout with the featherweight champion, Johnny Kilbane. Scotty Montieth, manager of Dundee, will post a foreit of $1,000 to-day for such a match, 122 pounds ringside, at the Garden A. C. Montieth is satisfied to accept the offer of the Garden A. C. for such a match and guarantee Kilbane the amount he demands for a bout here. From present indications it will remain only for Kilbane to agree to the match.

Big French Bulldog Entry.

From present indications all former records for French bulldogs will be surpassed at the annual show of the French Bululdog Club of America, which will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York City, on Saturday, April 20. The classification this year has many innovations, including classes for all different colors, and for the first time in the history of the breed there will be classes, for dogs under sixteen pounds, under 22 pounds, and not exceeding 28 pounds, also classes for dogs never having won a first prize, in fact, it might be said, classes for every division and rating of dogs. The list of special prizes, which include many of $10 in gold, up to gold medals and trophies, to the value of $250 each, far exceed any previous offering, and make a grand total of nearly 200, the majority of which are open to all. Premium lists and all information may be had from the show Secretary, Charles G. Hopton, Room 510, Gaiety Building, Broadway and Forty-sixth Street, city. Entries close to-morrow.

SULLIVAN IS APPOINTED.

President Taft Names New Yorker as Commissioner to Olympic Games.

Notification was received yesterday by Terence Farley, Chairman of the Metropolitan Association, A. A. U. Registration Committee, from Congressman E. F. Kinkead of New Jersey that President Taft had appointed James E. Sullivan the American Commissioner to the Olympic games in Stockholm next July.

This information came from Mr. Kinkead, who is a former amateur athlete, football player, and a personal friend of Mr. Sullivan, to Mr. Farley in response to a request that the Congressman use his influence with the President in having the appointment made, the letter reading as follows:

> I have much pleasure in advising you that I have received a letter from the Secretary to the President notifying me that Mr. James E. Sullivan has been appointed American Commissioner to the Olympian games, and I know that this news will be as pleasing to you as it is to me. I do not believe that the President could possibly have made a better choice in his selection.

The notification is viewed with the greatest of satisfaction, because of the general movement made by athletic clubs and individuals to that end. It is conceded that possibly no man in the United States is better qualified to fulfill the duties of the position as evidenced by his work at the Olympiads at St. Louis and London.

Mr. Sullivan would make no statement regarding the appointment, referring all inquirers to Washington.

W. DRAY FOR OLYMPIAD.

Former Intercollegiate Champion Will Try for Place on Team.

America's athletic forces for the Fifth Olympiad to be held this Summer in Stockholm were augmented yesterday when it became known that Walter Dray, formerly of Yale University and a three-time intercollegiate champion pole vaulter, would try to win a place on the team at the contests to select eligibles in Chicago May 25. Dray will be a decided accession to the team, as when he temporarily quit the game in 1908 he had just made the world's record of 12 feet 9½ inches.

Because of this performance he was chosen a member of the London team from the United States in 1908, despite the fact that he had been beaten in the tryouts by Gilbert, Nelson, and Cooke. He made the intercollegiate record of 12 feet 5½ inches in 1907, which he increased one inch the year later.

Dray is conceded to be a natural pole vaulter, having been a student of the game since he was 12 years of age. He was a spectator of the success of the American representatives in London, at which sports his father desired his nonappearance as a contestant. Dray has been doing 12 feet in all of his indoor work in Chicago, and in his first outdoor practice has duplicated this fine height. His friends anticipate that he will vault 13 feet in the tryouts.

Pittsburgh to Help Olympic Fund.

James E. Sullivan, Secretary of the American Olympic Committee, yesterday received word from the Pittsburgh Athletic Association that at a meeting of the Board of Directors it was decided to send a card to all members urging them to contribute to the Olympic fund, and it is expected that the committee will receive $1,000 from this source. Julian W. Curtiss also received a check from the Philadelphia Swimming Club for $10.

Blackburn Wins on Rollers.

In the fourth race of the series at the Metropolitan Roller Rink last night at the four-mile distance for the professional championship William Blackburn of this city was returned the winner in 13:28, with F. J. Clark, New York, second, and C. Lowney, Newark, third. The winner got home by a margin of four yards, with one yard separating the other placed men. Blackburn led past the first mile mark in 3:30, with Lowney the leader at two miles in 6:52. Blackburn was again seen in front from the third mile on to the end, although he had to show his best pace to lead Clark, who was making his professional debut.

Jack Johnson Sued for $1,500.

CHICAGO, April 10.—"Jack" Johnson, the heavyweight champion pugilist, to-day was made defendant in a suit for $1,500 filed by George Little, his former manager. According to the complaint the suit grew out of the loan of a diamond ring to Johnson.

NEW YORKERS WIN WRESTLING BOUTS

NEWARK, April 11.—New Yorkers fared exceedingly well in the preliminary bouts of the wrestling championships of the Amateur Athletic Union held here to-night under the auspices of the National Turn Verein. On account of the big entry list only part of the semi-final bouts were run off, and on Saturday night the finals will be decided.

The best bout of the night was between Henry J. Spanjer of Chicago, and champion of the Central Association, competing as unattached from Chicago, and Theodore McLear of this city. The two grappled for twelve minutes without the referee being able to render a decision. Both men were allowed to move into the final under the new rule, which was first put into effect at the metropolitan championships held in New York recently.

Another good bout was between J. Waldo Smith of the New York A. C. and Peter Elfner of the National Turn Verein of this city, which resulted in the former winning after a hard match in 2 minutes and 37 seconds. Louis Ruggiero, the 115-pound champion of the Grace A. C., New York, came through in his match with flying colors as he pinned the shoulders of Charles Rogerson, the most dangerous man in the class, to the mat in 1 minute and 39 seconds.

One of the popular wins of the night was that of Emery W. Payne of the Franklin A. C. of New York, who received the referee's decision over L. Buyukas of the Greek-American A. C., New York, in the heavyweight class after wrestling 9 minutes. Both men displayed much cleverness, but the former was the aggressor all through the match. W. S. Connor of the Doyle A. C., Baltimore, had the distinction of gaining the quickest fall of the night, when he threw Eugene Reichart of the National Turners in the 158-pound class in 15 seconds.

All of the metropolitan champions who competed are sure to wrestle in the finals. Wrestlers from all parts of the country competed, and those from Montreal were easy for the New Yorkers. Emil Schalk of Chicago, who rode to this city on freight trains in order to compete, qualified for the final by disposing of Ben Mendelsohn of the Educational Alliance, New York, in a tough bout. The summary:

MIKE GIBBONS TOO SKILLFUL FOR SMITH

Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul boxer, and Jeff Smith of Bayonne, N. J., entertained a capacity house last night at the National Sporting Club in a clever ten-round exhibition of boxing, in which the St. Paul favorite won by a comfortable margin. Gibbons weighed 152 pounds and his opponent scaled 152¼ pounds.

The Jerseyite put up a good exhibition against Gibbons, and always tried his best, which made the contest as fast as could be expected. Smith depends largely on his ability at infighting, at which kind of work he usually shows to best advantage, but Gibbons kept at long range almost throughout, and held his man safe at all times.

It looked as though Smith was going to give the St. Paul man a hard go by successful work in the second round, after Gibbons took the honors in the first, but Gibbons opened up full force in the third, and after some brilliant work completely outclassed Smith. Gibbons landed the honors by comfortable margins in the first, third, fourth, eighth, ninth, and tenth sessions. The second and sixth rounds were in favor of Smith, and the others were even.

Gibbons continually worked a stiff left jab to the face, the first blow struck of this nature sending the Jerseyite across the ring. After the first and second rounds, which ended rather tamely, with each man winning a round, Gibbons displayed his skill with a continual volley of lefts to the face. This was the first real work done, and during the session Gibbons was all over his man, and brought first blood, which came from Smith's mouth from a number of short right hooks.

By his continued aggressiveness Gibbons easily earned the honors in the fourth round, but on some of his leads he was somewhat anxious and missed by small margins. After this time he fell back, and after a slow session neither man showed to advantage in the fifth, while Smith was credited with the better work in the sixth. He started to mix matters with Gibbons, but was willingly met by Gibbons, and in a long exchange both men landed some hard body punches.

Smith also showed up well in the seventh round, and at the start got in his best work of the bout by scoring with three hard left jabs to the face without a return. After this Mike opened up, and before the end came had managed to even up the score by forcing Smith around the ring and scoring short rights to the ribs.

The seventh round ended the work of the Jerseyite, as he appeared to be well used up, and somewhat slow on his feet. Gibbons opened the eighth with straight left jabs, and was all over Smith. Smith was wild and missed two hard swings for the face, while Gibbons continued to peg away at his face and scored three lefts in succession without a return. Gibbons did all the work, while his opponent was on the defensive throughout and bled heavily from the mouth.

The ninth and tenth sessions were all in favor of Gibbons, who feinted and jabbed at will.

Timely Words to Intending Automobile Purchasers

WHEN you buy an automobile you make an investment. The dividend on that investment depends on the amount of pleasure and satisfaction the car gives you. The value of the investment depends on the intrinsic worth of the car and HOW the manufacturer backs it up. The first step toward making the purchase of an automobile a matter of good business as well as pleasure is to see and learn about

THE Marquette

Your highest ideals of luxury in appointment, in refinement of design, in completeness of equipment, will be met by the Marquette. But, getting back of these, is the value which comes from the assurance of responsibility which none but a big institution can warrant.

The manner in which this backing expresses itself in dependable, and prompt service to owners has had much to do with placing the Marquette in its present dominant position among high-grade cars.

So, if the viewpoint of investment appeals to you, don't fail to have the Marquette demonstrated to you before deciding on a motor car. Learn at first hand its great worth, its many superfine qualities, and the exceptional value of the service facilities at the command of owners in this city and vicinity. THE MARQUETTE COMPANY
Broadway and Fifty-ninth Street

You light the Cole from the seat. The Cole has the only dynamo electric lighting system that never gets out of order.

Have you ever gotten out of your motor car about ten miles from home on a rainy night to light the lamps and headlights—and found the oil gone and the acetylene tank empty?

If you have, you will appreciate the Ward-Leonard Dynamo Electric Lighting System, standard equipment on Cole Motor Cars.

A switch on the dash lights all lights

It is a fool-proof, trouble-proof and absolutely reliable system for lighting all motor car lights by a simple turn of a switch on the dash. You can light any light you want without leaving your seat.

The system consists of a shunt-wound dynamo, a storage battery and a control box. There are no lamps or tanks to fill and your battery is automatically charged. The whole system weighs less than 30 pounds and cannot get out of order.

No Ward-Leonard System has ever got out of order

So far as we know, the Ward-Leonard Dynamo Electric Lighting System is the only electric lighting system ever manufactured about which the makers did not receive at least one complaint. There are over 2,000 in use, and all have worked perfectly from the day they were installed.

If the 1912 Cole had no other distinctive feature, it would deserve the inspection of every motor car owner or prospective owner.

You start the Cole from the seat

But the Cole also has a self-starter, as simple and efficient as the dynamo lighting system. Just pull a handle on the dash and off you go. The Cole has a powerful long stroke motor (4½x5¼); unit power plant (no danger of faulty alignment and consequent loss of power); 3-point suspension (eliminates all motor strains); closed valves, clean, silent; Bosch dual ignition; Timken axles front and rear (full floating rear).

Long wheelbase means easy riding

And, most important of all, the Cole has a 122-inch wheelbase, which means easy riding always, no matter how rough the roads.

The Cole is made in seven different bodies, all on one chassis. Price $1,885. Can't you find time to call at our showroom and see them to-day?

Time of game—One hour and forty-five minutes.

A crowd of more than 25,000 baseball fans ruled with a high hand at Washington Park, in Brooklyn, yesterday, at the opening game between the Giants and the Brooklyn Club and defied the combined efforts of the police, club management, and ball players to bring about law and order. The park contained several thousand more persons than its normal capacity, and when the stands had filled long before 2 o'clock, the crowd poured out on to the field and became unmanageable. It was a woeful exhibition of mismanagement, and absolutely spoiled what might have been an exciting ball game. As it was, the contest, played within a small area, with the people jammed up close to the base lines and intruding into the outfield, developed into a farce which was won by the Giants by a score of 18 to 3.

Several times during the afternoon the crowd nearly became riotous when the special policemen employed by the club tried to push them off the playing field. They protested that they had no place to go, that they had paid to get in, and were going to stay. The special police were helpless. Deputy Police Commissioner Walsh was appealed to, but only laughed and said that he could not order policemen within the gates of the baseball park.

Mayor Gaynor arrived at the park about 3:30 o'clock, after the specials had opened a lane through the surging mob. He was swallowed up in the gathering, and was surprised at the condition of affairs. The management appealed to the Mayor to call out the reserves, but he wanted to see first if the specials were unable to clear the field. It did not take long to show him, for the specials failed miserably to even clear the infield.

Ball Players Charge Crowd.

The ball players of both teams took their bats and, forming into a long line, charged the crowd, but the fans fought back and refused to give way more than a few feet. Then Mayor Gaynor sent word to Deputy Commissioner Walsh to call out the reserves. They arrived after the time of the starting of the game, 4 o'clock, and their entrance was very dramatic. At the sight of the battalion of bluecoats the men and boys in the front of the crowd turned and tried to run out of the way. They could not go very far, for the field was crowded in every direction.

The police soon learned that there were too many people in the park to clear the whole playing field. There was no place to which the crowd could retreat if they did fall back under the clubs of the policemen. The stands were jammed, even the aisles being so choked that it was impossible to get out.

With such a mob on the playing field the crowds in the front of the stand could not see the players. They remonstrated loudly and hissed and hooted Deputy Commissioner Walsh and President Charles H. Ebbets for permitting such a state of affairs. The crowd became angry and began to throw big wads of paper at those in front of them. Fans became quarrelsome, and there were continuous wrangles and fights in various parts of the stand. Many people in the boxes became disgusted and left their seats. But the park was so congested that all avenues of escape were closed. Serious-minded men began to speculate on what would happen if this howling, jostling, irritable crowd of disappointed fans carried things a little further.

Club Sells Too Many Tickets.

The management of the Brooklyn Club stopped the sale of tickets too late. At about 2:30 o'clock, when the sale was stopped, there were probably 8,000 more people in the park than could be accommodated. At first the crowd was good natured and had a merry time guying and fooling with the special policemen, laughing at their efforts to restore order. But when the greater part of the crowd realized that they couldn't even get a glimpse of the game their attitude changed completely.

Half of the 25,000 or more persons there did not see the play at all. Hoodlums raided the boxes and took all the chairs vacated by disgusted occupants and carried them out close to the base lines and stood up, forming a bank of humanity that hid the playing field from those behind. The police were not able to clear the whole playing field. In right, centre, and left field the crowd pushed up to within a dozen yards of the bases and pop fly balls from the bats of the players were swallowed up in the mob and counted for two base hits. Of all the two base hits which the batsmen made, not one of them would have escaped the clutches of a player on an open field.

The players were disgusted after the first inning and the game lapsed into a burlesque. Beginning at 4:30, a half hour late, the game dragged along for an hour and three quarters and, after playing six innings, when the score was 18 to 3 in favor of the Giants, Umpire Klem called the game on account of darkness.

When the gates of Washington Park opened at 12:30 several thousand persons were waiting to obtain admission to the park. In an hour the stands were filled and an endless crowd was being dumped at the Atlantic Avenue Subway station and at the Third Street station of the Fifth Avenue Elevated by every train.

Manhattan Turns Out Big Crowd.

Every train was crowded, and Manhattan was sending over as many or more people to root for the Giants as Brooklyn was bringing out to boost the Trolley Dodgers. Shortly after 2 o'clock Washington Park held the biggest gathering in its history. And still they were piling in. Fourth Avenue and Third Street, at the entrance to the park, was so jammed with people clamoring to get in that it was impossible for persons who held box tickets purchased several days ago to get near the gates.

The scene inside the park for a time was one of gayety and festivity. Shannon's Twenty-third Regiment Band played popular airs, and enthusiastic Brooklynites blew horns, rang cow bells, and added to the vocal disorder with every kind of an ear-splitting device that the hawkers could dispose of.

It was impossible to get into the stands by the regular stairways, and the crowd had to go out upon the open diamond. If they happened to hold box seats, they had to fight their way to them. Many never reached their seats.

The crowd was made up of many kinds of people. Men prominent in New York sporting circles were there. Also doctors, lawyers, Judges, and business men—all out for a holiday. Also many fans from South Brooklyn, Sicilians, Neapolitans, and good Romans, who know lots about the American game. The Gowanus Canal district was largely represented. So was Wall Street and Flatbush. In the grand stand there were many women, although some of the late comers who had women escorts turned back rather than risk rough handling in the overpopulated park.

When the Brooklyn team ran out from the clubhouse, all in fine, new white suits, a great cheer went up, and the players were soon swallowed in the crowd which rushed out upon them. They had no chance to even practice throwing the ball around.

Presents for Elks on Ball Team.

Then the Pinkertons made their first attempt to clear the field. They tried to push the men and boys back. Many were toppled over in the crush. Hats were smashed and coats were nearly torn off spectators' backs. The crowd openly defied the special policemen and rushed back on to the field. The crowd was quiet for a few moments, while a number of Brooklyn players who are members of the Elks were presented with pins. Manager Dahlen, Coach Keeler, Trainer Commerford, and Players Erwin, Wheat, Barger, and Rucker each received a gift. Manager Dahlen also got a floral horseshoe from admirers.

The Giants got a great reception when they came on to the field. You could not see them, but the roar of the fans from Manhattan indicated their coming. They were lost in the crowd also, and when they started batting practice the crowd fell back a little to avoid the ball. Every ball that was hit into the crowd was pocketed by the fan who caught it.

The specials had a hard time making way for Mayor Gaynor and his party, which included Borough President Steers and Barney York. The city's chief official was finally taken to his box, but found the crowd piled up so high in front that he couldn't see the players. When Mayor Gaynor was asked to throw out the first ball he could not see the diamond, so he just tossed the ball over the crowd's heads. The game was supposed to start then, but it was half an hour before the crowd gave the players any room to begin the contest.

Just as soon as one place on the diamond was cleared another part of the mob would rush in and occupy it. It was an aimless, shifting mass, disappointed and mad at being constantly nagged by the police.

Bert Maxwell, one of the Giants' new pitchers, made a hero of himself by lifting three women up over the Giants' bench, so they could escape from the crowd and get to their seats. The crowd had taken possession of the players' benches of both teams, and the players had to occupy seats on the ground.

Mayor Gaynor Wanted to See.

Mayor Gaynor complained that he could not see the game, so chairs were placed along the first-base line for himself and members of his party.

As soon as the game started, protests began to come thick and fast from those who occupied the boxes and the front rows of the stand. They could see nothing of the game, and left the park in disgust. The only ones who saw the game at all were those in the top rows of the stand, the squad of policemen lined up in front of the crowd, and the boys who were standing on chairs and benches along the base lines. The policemen became so interested in the game after the first inning that they made no attempt to try to govern the crowd, and let the boys do as they liked.

Old New Yorkers who have been going to baseball games for a good many years said they never witnessed such an exhibition of poor management. The surprising part of it is that club owners who have had years of experience in handling crowds did not anticipate a crush like yesterday's, but the overcrowding could have been avoided. No one was injured, but that was the only redeeming feature of the greatest baseball fizzle New York has seen in many a day.

GAME THAT FEW SAW.

If you saw the opening game in Brooklyn yesterday between the Giants and the Trolley Dodgers you saw something which half the distracted, disgruntled crowd at Washington Park didn't see. Standing on the back of a chair, in constant dread of falling and breaking one's well-known neck and stretching one's gaze over the heads of the inquisitive populace in front, one could see an occasional pop fly as it soared above the crowd and disappeared. That counted for a two-base hit, and the Giants made just a dozen of them, all of which would probably have been neatly caught if the Brooklyn fielders had had elbow room.

The score was 18 to 3 because the Giants were able to hit the service of Nap Rucker, Cy Barger, and Dent in the air and land the pill into the crowd, which was only a short distance from the plate.

The game, as it appeared from the press box, was a beautiful exhibition of English tweed, Derby, and Fedora hats, to say nothing of the expanse of wide and narrow manly backs. The only way that authentic news was obtained from the front was received from two brave men who climbed up the wire of the backstop like a couple of monkeys and yelled down the proceedings to the news-hungry prose writers, scribbling at the press benches.

Before the game was over it was easy to understand what was happening. A loud, raucous roar like the mob clamoring outside the Bastile was a sure indication that one of the Giants had pumped the ball into the crowd for a double. A much quieter roar meant a single. A soulful groan was indicative of a Brooklyn pitcher blowing up.

A severe blow in the side of the head with a big bundle of paper meant that there was some one in your immediate rear who wanted you to sit down.

It's 4:30, the game is on. What are they yelling about now? Why, Rucker just put a strike over on Devore. Crack! Doyle (the guy out there in front says it's Doyle) smashed a grounder to Hummel and he fumbled it. Then, if you had a neck like a giraffe, you'd see this: Stack wished himself over back of second and stabbed a sizzler from Snodgrass's bat and forced Doyle at second. What are they laughing about? Gee, didn't you see? Snodgrass is out stealing second.

Hurrah! Something happened then, but what? Did he? Sure, Daubert spanked out a single off Rube Marquard. Well, now they're groaning, did the umpire rob 'em? No, Daubert overran first base and got caught. This is a fine way to see a ball game. Wish Klem would call the game.

The next fifteen minutes, a continual roar. Careful research revealed that Herzog, Meyers, and Marquard had laced out doubles and the Giants have three runs. Rucker, they say, is pretty sore that the Giants are fattening their batting averages on him with a lot of punk pop flies into the mob. Don't blame him. But there's just where Marquard was a fox. He twisted the ball so pop flies didn't result. He made the Dodgers hit the ball along the earth, the only place the Giant fielders could get them.

Kindly explain this delay in the fourth. Rucker said he had enough of that kind of ball, so Barger went in. More roars, more Giant hits, more delays, and four more runs. Gee, Ebbets will get panned for this.

Sit down, you big clam; let's see what's the excitement here in the fifth. Oh! be quiet; we'll write you a letter about it. If you must know, there were fuor more doubles and Barger vamoosed, passing his job to Dent, a youngster. What do you want to know the score for? Yes, five, that inning, count 'em. Satisfied.

What's that? More doubles? Where? To centre? Say, you don't mean that, do you? Four more runs. Good night, let's chase over to the Subway.

Reds Win Before Record Crowd.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 11.—Before the largest crowd that ever saw a ball game in this city, Cincinnati defeated Chicago in the opening game of the National League season here to-day by a score of 10 to 6. The game marked the formal opening of the new grandstand and park. Both Cole and Frank Smith were forced to retire early in the game before an avalanche of hits. Charles Smith, who relieved Cole, did little better, and was supplanted in the final inning by Richie. Humphries, who relieved Frank Smith for Cincinnati, had the visitors at his mercy with the exception of the seventh inning, when a single and triple allowed a run to come over. The game was remarkable for the good fielding considering the number of runs scored. Bates, Egan, Bescher, and Phelan starred at the bat for the locals, while Sheckard and Schulte hit well for Chicago. Score:

President Lynch Sees Boston Win.

BOSTON, April 11.—President Thomas M. Lynch of the National League saw the lowly Boston team of last season, now rejuvenated, defeat Philadelphia with Alexander pitching, by a score of 7 to 4 in the first game of the season to-day. A crowd which nearly filled the grounds applauded the frequent and heavy hitting, Spratt of the locals leading with a home run, triple, and single. The usual opening ceremonies marked the beginning of play on the local grounds for the forty-fifth year. Mayor Fitzgerald threw out the first ball. The score:

NOVEL RECORD IN GAME.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 11.—What is claimed to be a unique record in professional baseball was made here to-day in the game between Kansas City and Columbus when the ball tossed out by the umpire at the beginning of play was used throughout the entire nine-inning game, no other being required.

SUNDAY BASEBALL GAMES.

The Ridgewood Club will open up their new park Sunday at Wyckoff Avenue "L" Station, when they meet their old rivals, the Hoboken Club. Manager Hussey has secured an entire new club this season. Doc. Scanlon who was with the Brooklyn National League team will be on the slab for Ridgewood with Freddy Hohman behind the bat, while the infield will be composed of McKeon, first base; Shortell, second base; Jimmy Hall, short stop; Hoag, third base; Lynch, Christ, and Egan in the outfield.

At 149th Street and Eighth Avenue on Sunday the newly organized Manhattans will play the crack Poughkeepsie Club at 3 P. M. The field which was formerly McNulty field has been entirely renovated and in the future under new management will be the home of the Manhattan Club, and will be called Manhattan Field.

Red McMahon, owner of the Lincoln Giants, will reopen Olympic Field, 136th Street and Fifth Avenue, next Sunday, when the Murray Hills will line up against the Colored Stars.

The Bronx Athletics, under the management of Billy Jordan, will open their season on Sunday at Bronx Oval, 163d Street and Southern Boulevard, playing one of New York's best semi-professional teams. The game will be called at 3 P. M.

A ninth-inning batting rally by the Boston Red Sox furnished the only discordant note in an otherwise successful inaugural of the baseball season on the Hilltop yesterday afternoon, the Yankees losing their 1912 opener to the Beantown warriors by the score of 5 to 3. The rally arrived at a time when 12,000 fans were getting their throats in order to sing a few paens of joy over the successful début of Manager Harry Wolverton as a Yankee chieftain, a few more for the stellar mound work of "Slim" Ray Caldwell and some for the Yankee team. The storm of Boston bingles swept Caldwell from the scene, buried Wolverton and his Yankees in defeat, and drowned out all the bubbling enthusiasm.

All the usual first-day features attended the Yankees' opening. Flags of all nations decked the fence, vari-colored pennants floated to the chilling breeze above the stands, and both grand stand and bleachers were decorated with the Stars and Stripes. Prince's Military Band discoursed music of the popular brand before the game and between innings, and the usual official flavor was added to the occasion in the throwing out of the first ball. Supreme Court Justice Edward E. McCall did the honors in this particular and made a most creditable showing, although a trifle shy on both speed and control. Then there were presents for the new manager, and the usual welcoming cheers for all the old and new favorites.

The crowd did not come up to expectations. The conflict with the Giants-Superbas opening on the other side of the bridge had its effect on the attendance, and there was plenty of idle space at either end of the big stands. A lonesome rooter viewed the battle from the centre-field bleachers for four innings before he was joined by a companion. The twenty-five-cent section in the extreme right field corner was the only part of the stands which held a capacity crowd.

Splendid Welcome for Wolverton.

Manager Harry Wolverton received many assurances of welcome from the crowd. He was recognized as soon as he emerged from the centre field clubhouse shortly after 2 o'clock, and the applause which started in the right field bleachers had traveled to the left field end of the stands before he reached the players' bench. Harry liked the demonstration, but his features did not betray the fact. When he took his first turn at the bat in the Yankees' preliminary practice the noise burst forth again. But the real ovation was saved until the presentation of the floral horseshoe and the loving cup just before the game began. Across the floral piece was a silk ribbon marked "Success." This was the gift of local admirers. The loving cup, which was suitably engraved, was the gift of the Board of Trade of Oakland, Cal., where the new Yankee pilot spent the last two seasons as manager of the club representing that city in the Pacific Coast League.

The Boston team was the first to enter the field, coming from the clubhouse about 1:55 o'clock. The sight of anybody in baseball toggery was welcomed by the hungry fans, who had waited six long months for such a scene, and the 5,000 persons present at the time gave the visitors a hearty cheer. "Jake" Stahl, the new manager of the Red Sox, was picked out for special demonstration, and he had to doff his gray cap several times in acknowledgment. Five minutes later the Yankee squad burst forth from the clubhouse and there was a scene of general jubilation until all the athletes had reached the bench. The crowd looked in vain for several of the favorites, notably Manager Wolverton and Hal Chase. Chase did not arrive for fifteen minutes after the vanguard of the Hilltop army, and the reception to the peerless first sacker was second only to that accorded to Wolverton. Street and Wolter were other late arrivals, and the welcome-to-our-city noise was handed out in plenty to both athletes.

New Men With Yankees.

The Yankees presented a natty appearance in their new uniforms of white with black pin stripes. George McConnell, the big hurler obtained from the Rochester Bronchos at the close of last season, attracted considerable attention in the preliminary practice. The visitors were attired in the combination gray uniforms with red trimmings, the same as last year, the only difference being that "Red Sox" instead of "Boston" appears on the shirt.

Both managers sent out teams that differed but slightly from the aggregations which closed the 1911 race. New York's only change was behind the bat where "Gabby" Street, the ex-Senator, did the honors. In every other position the line-up was the same as that which finished the last campaign. Boston, too, showed only one change and in this instance also a veteran was in charge, Jake Stahl being the player and first base the position. The only recruit who edged his way into the struggle was Simmons, the Rochester slugger, who was picked to unload a clean-up drive with two gone in the ninth inning. The best he could do was to pop a foul to Stahl.

Street's début as a Yankee can hardly be termed a glittering success. He made two fancy throws to second base which turned back ambitious Speed Boys, one of his throws figuring as the second part of a double play. But he also made a throw to second which tore up the centre field, and on another attempted steal he helped out the Red Sox runner by dropping the ball. The worst was yet to come, and it was one of those performances which recall a certain celebrity named Barry. It happened in the fourth inning when Street dropped a third strike on Charley Wagner. The ex-Senator made a speedy pick-up and saw Duffy Lewis make a fake start from second to third base. He held the ball, debating with himself as to whether he should throw to first or second base and reached a decision about the same time that Wagner arrived at first base in safety.

Game Lacks Enthusiasm.

The game itself was not of a nature to keep the several thousand fans keyed up to an enthusiastic pitch. There was a flying start by both teams which made the fans forget for the time about the chilling weather, and each team also favored with a rousing finish. During the interval the pitchers had the opposing batsmen so tightly in their grasp that there was little to enthuse about. In the third inning Harry Hooper brought the crowd to its feet with a sensational running catch of a drive to right field by Birdie Cree and in the eighth inning Cree made a spectacular stab of a long wallop by Tris Speaker. It was the only drive of the game good enough for more than one base, and Cree had to go back to the left field bulwarks to gather it in.

Joe Wood, always an enigma to the Yankees, had the hilltoppers well under control at all stages yesterday. A bit of wildness in the opening inning paved the way for New York's first run and an exhibition of outfield throwing by Nunamaker was responsible for the other tally, which the Yankees picked up in the first inning. The run scored in the ninth was a gift, coming because Charley Wagner chose to play for another base runner when the Red Sox held a three-run lead. Five scattered hits was the extent of the damage to Wood's speed and benders in the first eight innings, the only bunched hitting coming in the ninth inning, when Joe could afford to ease up a bit. The Yankees got only one runner beyond second base between the first and the ninth innings. Wood featured for both teams with the stick, getting a pair of sharp singles and losing another hit on a fancy catch by Harry Wolter. It was Joe's smashing single past Earl Gardner in the ninth inning which gave Boston the winning run and another count, which was not needed.

Caldwell's hit allowance up to the final inning was more scanty than that of Wood, but his control was bad and sharp fielding by his mates pulled him out of trouble on more than one occasion. He had the bad habit of passing the first batsman, and after twice escaping successfully under such conditions he repeated in the ninth inning and paved the way to his own defeat. In the final chapter he "blew up" completely, and the tail-end of the Red Sox batting order garnered four successive singles. Lewis got the first single of the quartet, after Street had dropped a high foul fly, but the new catcher had to bump against the box seats and reach into the crowd to get his hands on the ball so he can hardly be considered as an assisting party in the defeat which followed.

Red Sox Score First Run.

The Red Sox started off auspiciously, Hooper getting a clean single to left field. After Yerkes had fanned, Hooper stole second and hustled along to third while Street's throw was mussing up the lawn in centre field. Stahl hit a long fly, which Cree grabbed close to the left field foul line, and Hooper registered.

Here come the Yankees. Wolter worked Wood for a pass and galloped along to second base when Bert Daniels drove a sizzler through the box and out to centre field. Chase sacrificed both runners along with a bunt to L. Gardner, and Wolter raced home, while Yerkes was throwing Cree out at first. Hartzell walked and stole. Nunamaker tried to get Daniels at third base and threw high, allowing Bert to score.

That ended the run getting until the ninth inning. The Red Sox had runners on third base in the second and fourth innings, but could not count. The Yankees saw third base in the third inning only, and a catch by Hooper prevented trouble. In the ninth after Stahl walked, L. Gardner sacrificed, and then followed singles by Lewis, Wagner, Nunamaker, and Wood, scoring four runs. Vaughn succeeded Caldwell after Wood's single, and quickly retired the side. For the Yankees Hartzell and Dolan opened with singles, Earl Gardner grounded out at first, Dolan was thrown out at third on Street's grounder to Wagner, and Simmons, batting for Vaughn, fouled out to Stahl.

Johnson's Wild Throw Loses Game.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Philadelphia won the opening game of the American League season here this afternoon from Washington, 4 to 2. Coombs, although wild, did not allow a hit until one man was out in the eighth inning. Then the visitors hit safely three times and scored two runs. Johnson was very effective except in three innings, in each of which the home team made two hits. The visiting twirler lost his own game in the fifth inning by making a wild throw, which let in two runs. A large crowd turned out and witnessed the march of the players across the field, the flag raising, and the throwing out of the ball by Mayor Blankenburg. The score:

Joe Jackson Eclipses Ty Cobb.

CLEVELAND, April 11.—The largest crowd ever in the new league park attended the opening of the Cleveland season, Cleveland defeating Detroit, 3 to 2, and the game going eleven innings. The winning run was scored on Turner's single and Easterly's double. Delehanty's error, Turner's sacrifice, and Mitchell's single produced Cleveland's first run, while Bush's error, Ryan's steal, Hohnhorst's sacrifice, and Turner's out sent Ryan across in the fourth. Detroit tied the score in the sixth on a pass to Cobb, errors by Hohnhorst and Turner and Delehanty's out. Much interest was displayed in the rivalry between Cobb and Jackson. The latter took off the honors with three hits, two stolen bases, four put outs, and an assist. Lajoie was twice purposely passed with Jackson on second and two out. The score:

Chest of Silver for Callahan.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The American League baseball season was opened in Chicago to-day with a 6-to-2 victory for the local team over St. Louis. "Big Ed" Walsh was in fine condition, having only one bad inning, in which three hits and a balk, called by Umpire Evans, gave the visitors their score. The game was featured by the hitting of Callahan and the spectacular fielding of Hogan, Rath, and Lord. Mayor Harrison presented a chest of silver to Manager Callahan, the gift of some of his friends. The weather was ideal and a large crowd was present. Score:

JOSHUA CRANE BEATS PENNELL AT TENNIS

Jay Gould, the American champion court tennis player, refereed the match in the final round of the series arranged to provide an opponent for him in the challenge match for the American title scheduled for to-morrow, and witnessed the triumph of an American, Joshua Crane of Boston, over Vane Pennell of England, by a score of three sets to two, after a series of games which bristled with keen play. The final score was 6—3, 2—6, 3—6, 8—6, 6—1.

The Racquet Club court was the scene of the contest, which had as a gallery the largest crowd of onlookers of the tourney. Although the beaten player had a host of adherents, the well-known stamina of Crane, who was the American title holder before the advent of Jay Gould, caused the Bostonian to be the favorite during the course of the speculation which ensued over the result of the match.

Crane won the first set, lost the next two, gathered in the fourth, which went to "vantage," and captured the deciding set by 6—1. The winner's brace in the fourth, which proved to be the turning point of the battle, was the best exhibition of "come back" ever witnessed in the club, as Crane was four games down before he let out the speed which his followers were afraid would never be shown.

Mr. Crane, who has been playing the game for seventeen years, never appeared to better advantage as he displayed every variety of stroke known to the expert, usually being on the ball no matter what part of the court it had been slammed into, and in combination he was as cool as the proverbial cucumber, a phase which stood him in good stead when defeat was staring him in the eye in what to him will be a memorable fourth game.

Pennell, a former champion of England, showed his best work on the hazard side of the net, some of his "gets" being applauded vociferously because of the cleverness of the returns in combination with the seeming nonchalance of his play.

Crane's victory earned him the right to play Jay Gould in the challenge round to-morrow, and the enthusiasts are priming themselves for a match of still greater excellence than that of yesterday.

Pennell won the toss and chose the hazard side of the court at the outset. Crane slammed over his twisting railroad service which the Englishman returned with a half volley which the American failed to get over the net, thereby losing the first point of the match. He made ample amends, however, by annexing the next three, reaching the grille for his winning point of the game.

The second game was long-drawn-out, both men playing the chases perfectly, with the result that it was deuce-vantage a dozen times before Pennell placed the game to his credit. In the next game, which Pennell also won, he displayed a wonderful propensity to get the ball from almost any position. Then they see-sawed in the matter of games won until the marker, Jack White, called three-all.

In rapid-fire order Crane accounted for the next three games and the set, the concluding game being won by a love score. The opening game in the second set went to the Englishman through the inability of Crane to play his chases, and following this Pennell soon had his opponent four-down. Although Crane corraled the next two by virtue of some fine forces to the dedans, that was as near to victory as he got in that set, which was won by Pennell by 6—2.

Crane was the winner of the first game in the third set. The pair then alternated in the matter of wins until the fourth game, won by Pennell, which he supplemented with victories in the next three, gained mainly by effective work on the tambour. Crane pulled the eighth game out after his opponent had him 40 love, but the set went to the Englishman by 6—3, with the set score 2 to 1 in his favor.

It was the fourth set that caused such a furore among the adherents of both men, as Pennell started off at runaway speed by gathering the first four games straight, the first and fourth of which were love games, Crane being apparently unable to locate the sphere, although he tried hard at these stages. The Englishman had his opponent racing back and forth across the court in a fashion which proved futile as far as winning points was concerned. Crane at this juncture showed in bad form by appearing to be extremely wild in his returns, the ball going out of court many times.

The American took a brace in the fifth game, and carried off the honors, blanking his opponent in a love game. He won the next, and after Pennell had taken down the succeeding game Crane made the tally five-all, necessitating a "vantage" set. Crane continued his fast pace, and won the next after his opponent had scored the first two points. Some great volleying periods were seen before he was able to capture the game.

Pennell won the next set after some beautiful rallies, but victory finally perched upon the banner of Crane by 8—6, with the set scores two-all. There was no letup to the pace of either in the final set, in which Crane carried off the first two games. Pennell showed his speed in the third game, and nearly blanked the American, but this proved to be the beginning of the end, as he did not tally another win. The sixth set Crane played through without giving his opponent a point, ultimately achieving victory of game, set, and match with a cross-court smash which the Englishman could not locate.

LESLIE HARVARD STRONGMAN

Breaks All Strength Test Records of University, Scoring 1,513 Points.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 11.—Harvard's strongest man is F. H. Leslie, '12, of Milton, who, with 1,513 points, has broken all strength test records of the university, according to figures made public to-night. The points were scored under the system which has been in vogue since 1904. Leslie played guard on the 'Varsity football team last year, and is considered one of the Crimson's best shotputters. None of his competitors in the strength tests exceeded 1,300. All candidates for Harvard's athletic teams have to take the tests every Spring.

This is the second time in Leslie's college career that he has ranked first in the tests. The last year he was beaten by Fred Huntington, the centre of the football eleven. Leslie is 6 feet tall and weighs 180 pounds.

Anglers at Long Beach.

The Spring fishing season which started this week at Long Beach has been remarkable for the big catches of flounders. Capt. Mollitor, the piscatorial authority of that region, said yesterday that black fish will soon begin to bite. Fluke will not come in until about May 15, and other fish habitat in Long Beach waters will make their appearance at various times thereafter. There has been no surf nor deep sea fishing, and will not be for some time to come, the water being too cold as yet.

LIMITED AUTO RECIPROCITY.

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—There is sadness in the hearts of the chauffeurs in New Jersey to-day as the result of the announcement that they are in no way to enjoy the benefits from the recently enacted Reciprocity bill. It had generally been understood that this reciprocal agreement, whereby automobile owners of New York are to be allowed to travel in New Jersey fifteen days a year without obtaining a New Jersey license, was also to apply to chauffeurs, but now they have been informed that the New York chauffeur will not be allowed to drive in New Jersey, nor the New Jersey chauffeur in New York, without obtaining drivers' licenses for both States.

This unfortunate state of affairs is brought about automatically by the wording of the law of the two States. In this case, however, New York takes the initiative in obstructing full reciprocity.

Clause 4, Section 289, of the Callan law provides "That non-resident chauffeur who has registered under provisions of the law of the State of his residence, substantially equivalent to the provision of this section, shall be exempt from license under this section, and provided further, he shall wear the badge assigned to him in the State of his residence, in the manner providd in this section."

New Jersey's law is not "substantially equivalent" and makes no provision for a badge to be worn by the chauffeur.

In view of this paragraph, the office of the Secretary of State of New York rules that chauffeurs provided only with a New Jersey license, positively will not be allowed to operate in New York. Any other ruling would be directly contrary to the specific wording and intent of the Callan law.

Clause 8 of the supplement of the New Jersey law provides, "that the provision of the section shall be operative only to the extent that under the laws of the State in which such chauffeur or driver resides, substantially similar exemptions and privileges are granted to chauffeurs registered under the law of this State."

Although Commissioner J. P. A. Smith of New Jersey is anxious to interpret the new law here in as liberal a way as possible, he in turn is left no alternative but to rule that New York chauffeurs will not be allowed to drive in New Jersey unless provided with a driver's license from that State.

This ruling holds good until such time as New York can and will recognize the New Jersey chauffeur, but of course does not affect reciprocity as regards car registrations or owners' driving licenses.

He will be accompanied by David Bruce-Brown and Ralph De Palma, drivers.

AERO CLUB HEAD REMOVED.

President McCornick of Aeronautical Society Charged with Neglect.

Alleging neglect of duty, the Aeronautical Society adopted a resolution last night removing Willis N. McCornick from the office of President, and electing Thomas A. Hill, First Vice President, to the position for the remainder of the term, pending the annual election on May 9.

While the action of the members was not unexpected, it caused a great surprise in aeronautical circles. Mr. McCornick was formerly one of the most active members of the organization. He left for South America last December, and it was understood that he would return before Feb. 1. Mr. McCornick has not been heard from since his departure, in spite of the efforts of the other officials of the club to locate him. When Mr. McCornick left for South America he intended touring Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay, as manager for Leon Garras, Rene Barrier and Edmund Audebars, who are giving aeroplane exhibitions.

The resolution depriving Mr. McCornick of the Presidency of the society was passed at the general meeting last night in the society headquarters, 250 West Fifty-fourth Street. In moving the President's removal from office Lee S. Burridge, first President of the society and one of the Directors, stated that the welfare of the organization depended upon the action, as Mr. McCornick has attended few meetings of the society since his election. The motion was seconded by Hugo E. Gibson and passed unanimously.

An amendment to the by-laws was also passed, which provided that "directors having been elected and having served for four successive years shall not be eligible for re-election until at least one year shall have intervened."

After the adoption of the two resolutions, addresses on aeronautics were made by Ladis Lewkowicz, Miss E. L. Todd, V. Raschella, Guido Blenio, M. B. Maus, John E. Sloane, Hugo C. Gibson, J. L. Erskine, Wilbur R. Kimball, and Joseph C. Stephenson.

GEORGIAN COURT POLO.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 11.—Mrs. George J. Gould was an interested spectator at the polo practice on the Georgian Court ground this afternoon. With Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. J. R. Fell, Miss B. Claflin and the Misses Randolph, she occupied a box seat in the grand stand.

Twelve men were on the field and the games were divided so that all could participate. Ten periods of six minutes' duration were played. The first four periods and the last two provided most interest, for in these periods the best players were opposed. Foxhall Keene did not show up as well as on the previous occasion, though he played a good game, scoring two beautiful goals in single handed efforts. He was well matched by Rawlins and Thomas. "Monty" Waterbury and Loew gave a clever exhibition, as did also Rawlins and Stevenson. Final result: Blue, 5; Red, 3¾.

The extra players who took part in the cut-in games were P. S. P. Randolph, Sr., P. S. P. Randolph, Jr., J. R. Fell and W. L. Goodwin. Line-up:

Red.—No. 1, W. R. Grace; No. 2, J. A. Rawlins; No. 3, M. Stevenson; back, J. B. Thomas.

Referees—H. L. Herbert and S. Lee.

Chicago Loses Athlete Whiting.

CHICAGO, April 11.—Lawrence Whiting, Captain-elect of the University of Chicago 1912 football team, has quit school and will not return. Whiting sent his resignation to Coach Stagg last night and immediately left for St. Louis, where he said he would engage in business. The track team, as well as the football squad, will suffer by the departure of the athlete. He was counted on for points in the high hurdles. Whiting has played centre rush on the football team for two years, and was one of the strongest of the team's linesmen last Fall.

Numerous golf tournaments will be held during the Summer season at Maplewood, N. H., under the auspices of the Maplewood Country Club, of which Dr. F. D. Bailey is President. Tennis tournaments, baseball, trapshooting, and target events are also scheduled.

RECIPROCITY.

It is announced officially that the Dominion on Tuesday signed an agreement of reciprocity with the British West Indies. More exactly, the agreement is signed only with those islands which will make a bargain with Canada, but the latchstring is left out for those other islands which now are not responsive. The reason for the exception indicates the interest of the United States in this family arrangement. Both Canada and the British islands of the Caribbean fear retaliation by the United States, and some fear it so much that they abstain until they remark the fate of the bold bargainers who have reached an agreement. The abstention of Jamaica is more significant than either the abstention or the co-operation of all the others. Jamaica's population is half that of all the Antilles, and its trade is richer, in even larger proportion. But the interests of Jamaica are rather with the United States than with Canada, so much so that it trades with us rather than with the Canadians, despite exceptional telegraph and steamship facilities for trading with Canada. Even so, Jamaica is doing better without the Dominion reciprocity arrangement than it could do with it. So would the other islands if they had equally good communications with the United States. The improvement of the communications is the objective of the agreement even more than the improvement of trade. The basis of the bargain is that an artificial stimulation of steamship and telegraph communications may result in an equally artificial stimulation of trade.

Americans will rather smile than rage at an arrangement so natural and creditable to all concerned. Americans also have thought that trade can be built on a foundation of making it expensive for themselves and difficult for their customers. We have learned better, and so will the Canadians. As the result of our enlightenment we offered them admission to a trade which aggregates more than Canada's total trade across oceans, including the inconsiderable West Indies, the Mother Country itself, and the rest of the world. That Canada should reject an overture so considerable in itself, and so fraught with prospects of future enlargement, and that Canada should then make such frantic attempts to recoup its loss, is cause only for marvel here. If there is cause for any resentment it is only by Canadians against those statesmen who involved Canada in such inconsistencies, and who undertake to reconcile them by the same discredited arguments as they used against reciprocity with the United States. Trade with the United States was treason to the Empire, and therefore it was necessary to put away the profits which merely awaited harvesting. Now the same sort of humbug — meaning no offense — is being preached to entice the West Indians into an inferior trade arrangement. At the love feast which marked the climax of the bargain Mr. READ, the delegate from British Guiana, said West Indians "naturally would prefer to buy "from their kinsmen than from those "under foreign flags."

Then they must be different from either the Canadians or the residents of the British Isles. Canadians prefer to trade with their neighbors on this continent rather than with their Motherland, just as their brethren across the ocean prefer to trade wherever they find their profit, thinking no more of national boundaries than of religious faiths. Neither race nor religion taints an honest profit. The Dominion Government, smarting from its discipline because it stands between Canadians and a natural business, sees that its course is provocative of more disloyalty than the bargain which they defeated, and which approaches ratification with every day which passes.

The Dominion knows that the arrangement just concluded will become futile just as soon as we make up our minds to offer the West Indies a better bargain. There is not an island in the Caribbean which is not envious of the prosperity which we have bestowed upon Porto Rico and Cuba, and which would not take the same thing for themselves. And their consciences might be easy in so doing. Trade follows profit, and profit keeps flags flying among honest nations. It is envy of the Americanized West Indies which drives the other islands into an arrangement with Canada because they think none possible with the United States. The islands are economic derelicts unless they attach themselves to their natural commercial sphere. Only their experience with our tariff "big stick" prevents their doing so. This clearly appears from this passage in the official announcement of the arrangement:

> The agreement is between Canada and the interested colonies alone, and leaves both with complete liberty to adjust their tariffs as respects all other countries.

The gentlemen at Washington who have been thinking of retaliation would do well to take notice that this trade can be clubbed away, but that it is anxious to be allowed to flow in its natural channel.

THE BASEBALL SEASON.

The baseball season began yesterday with all the expected enthusiasm. From now throughout the Summer and early Autumn baseball will be the uppermost topic with the people in all parts of this country. The crowds assembled at the games will surpass in numbers and lung power, in genuine interest in the proceedings and extent of information concerning them, the political convention crowds. In one's goings about it is not easy to find men who can discuss the complex political situation with sound intelligence and perfect comprehension, but in all walks of life accurate knowledge of the standing of the clubs, the reasons for the triumphs of one and the failure of another will be found on every hand. It seemed last year that the enthusiasm for baseball could go no further, that it must begin to wane. But the present outlook is that there will be a larger, noisier manifestation of interest in the National game in 1912 than there was in 1911.

The chill in the air yesterday did not keep the habitual "bleachers" at home or at their work. There were vast crowds of spectators at the game in Brooklyn and at the American League Park. Boys of all ages have been looking forward to the opening of the season, and the bright sunshine served to keep up their spirits in spite of the rather low temperature.

Perhaps a great deal of time is expended on baseball which might be more profitably bestowed elsewhere. A grave statistician might produce some startling estimate of millions of wasted hours and billions of unearned dollars. But it is an open question. The potentates of old believed thoroughly in keeping their subjects interested in sports when they were not needed in battle. The spectators at baseball games get the benefit of the open air, and probably most of them would find nothing to do more useful to the State if there was no baseball. It is a fine game, and the liking for it is infectious. Men of all trades and professions, women of all sorts, take some interest in it, but the wiser ones spare time to think of something else.

THE THIRD HOME RULE BILL.

After an interval of nineteen years in which, as the Prime Minister said in his introductory speech, "the persist-"ence and insistence of the Irish de-"mand for home rule has remained "constant," the British Government introduced yesterday the third bill offered in twenty-six years to establish a separate Parliament at Dublin. The vote of Ireland, all these years, has been preponderantly in favor of home rule, the noisy dissenters of Ulster constituting only a small minority. The new bill for the government of Ireland differs in many features, in some radically, from its predecessors.

Irish home rule first became a subject to be reckoned with after the passage of Mr. GLADSTONE's bill securing popular suffrage to Ireland in 1884. Before that time the Nationalists constituted a small, if vociferous, minority of the Irish members at Westminster, the majority being of the moneyed and landholding class. After 1884 the Nationalists numbered 83 out of 103 Irish members, and their potency was soon manifested. That they might exert a vast influence as holding the balance of power between the two great parties was clearly recognized. Some of Mr. GLADSTONE's critics asserted that his advocacy of home rule was founded chiefly on his desire to undo the work he had thus wrought, but there is no room to doubt that he had begun to think seriously of Irish home rule many years before.

The first Home Rule bill, introduced in 1886, wholly excluded Ireland from representation in the British Parliament. This was an error which the Liberals, who were opposed to the principle underlying the measure, turned to good account. It was the ostensible reason of the withdrawal of a large contingent of the party, led by the Marquis of HARTINGTON and Mr. CHAMBERLAIN, who called themselves Liberal Unionists and joined issues with the Conservative Party. Mr. GLADSTONE's second Home Rule bill, introduced in 1893, after the political career of CHARLES STEWART PARNELL had ended, gave Ireland eighty members in the Imperial Parliament, but withheld from them the right to vote on any measure exclusively affecting Great Britain. While no cry of taxation without representation could be raised, the restriction was unpopular. GLADSTONE's influence carried the bill through the House of Commons, but it was defeated by a vote of ten to one in the upper house, and the Government did not appeal to the country. The next year Mr. GLADSTONE retired from political life.

There is no GLADSTONE to back the third Home Rule bill. There is no equal of PARNELL in the present Irish contingent. Mr. ASQUITH's measure will be supported with respectable ability by JOHN and WILLIAM REDMOND, JOHN DILLON, and a few others of relatively large stature. The new bill provides for a Senate at Dublin comprising 40 members, and a House of Commons of 164, 59 of whom will represent unconquered Ulster. This Parliament will make laws for the government of Ireland, but will touch no concern of the Crown or the army and navy, will have no voice in imperial affairs, or, at present, in the matters of Irish land purchase, old-age pensions and national insurance, the Irish Constabulary, or the Post Office savings banks. But in relation to some of these matters the powers of the Irish Parliament will increase automatically with the lapse of time. The new bill, however, grants fewer powers to the Irish Parliament, in the beginning, than were granted by the rejected bill of 1893. For the rest, it provides for religious freedom in the fullest sense, and the needful checks upon extravagance and misgovernment are to be held by the Imperial Government. The Chief Executive, with the veto power, under the authority of the Imperial Executive, will be the Lord Lieutenant.

The Irish representation at Westminster, which now numbers 103 members, will be reduced to less than the number specified in the bill of 1893. This fact alone should serve to subdue the English opposition to the bill. The large Irish membership has been a disturbing factor in legislation for many years.

A WORD WITH THE SUN.

The Sun laments the endeavor of THE TIMES to protect its right to Capt. AMUNDSEN's narrative of his dash to the south pole, which THE TIMES bought, paid for, and copyrighted. With some of The Sun's allegations we deal specifically in another column. Its general contention that a narrative like AMUNDSEN's should not belong exclusively to those who pay for it, lest such a "monopoly" undermine the foundations of this and other republics, and its singular plea that THE TIMES's defense of its property is not in accord with journalistic ethics, demand a word here.

So far as AMUNDSEN's narrative is concerned, whether The Sun's paraphrase constituted an infringement of THE TIMES's copyright or not will be left to the courts. Whatever offense there may have been, it was much aggravated by the fact that The Sun had the opportunity of purchase, yet chose a course of which the best that can be said is that it was less expensive. But that THE TIMES was justified in apprehending infringement by The Sun, and in seeking by injunction to prevent it, is shown by certain practices of that journal which have been for some time easily discernible by qualified observers. Of these practices others besides ourselves have had cause to complain. We spare The Sun the humiliating details, merely remarking that in a notable and recent instance it received a sharp public admonition for the unauthorized use of an afternoon newspaper's foreign dispatches. This admonition it heeded; and it restrained itself considerably in its appropriation of the Amundsen narrative. The Sun's obedience to injunctions, official and unofficial, may be imperfect, but it is gratifying as far as it goes. When this obedience becomes complete, The Sun will have no further occasion to complain of the application of any law, copyright or other, that interferes with parasitism upon the enterprise of its neighbors.

THE CITY'S FERRIES.

Dock Commissioner TOMKINS has submitted to the Mayor a report of the operation of the city's ferries for the last three years. The mere fact that the report is made in a comparative form through a series of years is encouraging, for seldom are city reports made in the manner usual with all well managed private enterprises. It is further encouraging to remark that the receipts have increased, or it might more fairly be said have been increased by better management, by $96,866, or 10 per cent. At the same time expenses have been decreased by $65,764. The result on all ferries is a decrease in the deficit from $678,676 to $482,912, or 28 per cent.

It would be agreeable to infer that the deficit would disappear in four years, but that would not be justified. There is an ominous footnote, "Depreciation for 1911 not included $135,636." In other words, the omitted depreciation almost accounts for the reduction in the deficit, and may come to surpass it. It must be remembered that the boats on the city's largest ferry were supplied from tax money, and in time must be replaced from it, since there are no signs that the profits will ever allow such charges against them. Repairs are included, although depreciation is not, and it is to be remarked that the charge is increasing faster than the deficit decreases, or by 47 per cent. against 28 per cent.

The deficit is not all loss. The badness of the previous service was unendurable, and had a deteriorating effect upon the city's taxable estate in Richmond County. It was worth while to check this tendency, and it would be better yet to devise some method of both reducing the ferry's deficiency and increasing taxable values. The report has nothing on this head, but the Mayor has suggested that the city's ferry ought to give transfers to the city's subway. This would give two rides for one fare, and make fairer competition with other boroughs which both have the single fare and also a through ride without change. Richmond cannot have this until the tunnel across the Narrows is built, and that cannot be until the dual subway has been in operation some time. Then the city's ferries will be put out of business except for wheeled traffic, the deficit will become uncontrollable, and the plain question must be answered whether the ferry shall be abandoned like the private ferries or supported as a necessary expense.

A DISAPPEARING INSTITUTION.

Secretary BENJAMIN R. ANDREWS of the School of Industrial and Household Arts at Columbia says that household economics was taught in the young women's seminaries of this country as far back as 1835. Now 132 schools give collegiate degrees for proficiency in the courses in homemaking.

But conditions in the home have changed within seventy-five years. The original teachers of housekeeping trained their pupils in butter and soap making, knitting, spinning, weaving, the manufacture of garments, and many kindred occupations, which have been segregated from the home and specialized in factories. Were domestic servants as plentiful now as then, housewives would have nothing to do.

Most of the present teaching of housekeeping is confined to the use of mechanical substitutes for the house servant. "We are already teaching laundry work," Dr. ANDREWS says; "you should see the array of mangles "and other washing machinery in our "basement." Such of the arts and crafts of housekeeping as could be transferred to factories equipped by machines have departed from the home. For those that remain machinery is being brought in, and the women are being taught to use it. Thus the last of mediaeval institutions, that of mistress and servant, is disappearing.

The Colonel is unanimously "turned down" in his own State. At the Rochester Convention the Republicans, with abundant instance and specification, denounced and repudiated his nostrums, and in their convention yesterday the Democrats declared that they are "unalterably against de-"structive innovations and vagaries "which would weaken and destroy the "courts, which are the safeguards of "our liberties."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A New-Old Peril of the Sea. After the collision in Southampton Harbor between the Oceanic and the Hawke, the theory that the larger vessel had drawn the smaller against itself by suction was offered in explanation. The theory was not new, but it had never before received very serious consideration, and though it was accepted as accurate by the British Admiralty Court, and by that court held to relieve the cruiser's navigator from responsibility for the collision, doubts as to the accuracy of the decision remained in many minds, and do yet, for that matter.

It is easy to talk about "suction," as between two ships, but it is not at all easy to understand how such action can exist to any large extent in an unconfined and mobile liquid like water. The question, however, is not one of opinion or comprehension, but of fact, and now comes the tearing away from her moorings of the steamer New York when the big Titanic steamed slowly by her. In some manner or other an enormous force was evidently exerted, for the New York's hawsers were broken and she drifted helplessly out into the harbor until reached by the tugs that came to her assistance.

This time a collision was averted, but the believers in the suction theory, naturally enough, are much confirmed in their faith by the novel and remarkable incident. Of course, the enormous size of the new liners might easily make serious an effect of motion through the water that with smaller vessels would be slight and long unnoticed. For centuries sailors have yarned about a mysterious inclination of ships at sea to come together—an inclination which the gravitational attraction of their masses was far too small to explain, even for those who knew the Newtonian law. This has passed till now as a sailor superstition, but, as in the case of most, perhaps all, superstitions, there may be the familiar "something in it," and a something closely related to the force that set the New York adrift when the Titanic passed her.

Good Sense Is Not So Surprising. Two more of the so-called "health marriages" are reported from Chicago, making at least three that have been solemnized there by clergymen to whom applied the recent order of the cathedral authorities to demand a certificate of physical and mental fitness from all candidates for the holy state of matrimony.

Three marriages are not many—certainly not enough to justify the drawing of any conclusion as to how the new restriction will be, or would be, viewed by the general public. Even three marriages of this kind show, however, that they were wrong who thought that no such inquisition into matters so very distinctly private and personal would ever be tolerated by free American citizens. It seems that at least a few of them will tolerate or welcome it, and, possibly enough, the antagonism to the health certificate plan may turn out to be neither as widespread nor as strong as most of us expected.

Every eugenist, of course, approved heartily of the certificate idea and declared it based on sound theory. Few of them, however, thought the time yet come for the introduction of science in a domain where sentiment, real or pretended, had so long reigned supreme. It may be that "the public"—that even "the people"—are wiser than was supposed. Whoever would has of late had many opportunities for acquiring information hitherto confined to narrow circles and kept there by false and foolish notions of propriety. That these opportunities have been freely used is well known, and the number of people who have learned what marriages, and why, are unsafe or certainly dangerous for the contracting parties and for society must now be considerable.

This being the case, why should the attempt to prevent other than "health marriages" be regarded as hopeless? It shouldn't be, and that fact alone is enough to make an optimist, or even a meliorist, pluck up enough courage to say that it isn't hopeless.

What Are They Over Here For? Two men of title who came over from England on the Olympic announced that high taxes had driven them from home and impending ruin, and that hereafter they purposed to live in Canada as farmers. These are immigrants of a new sort.

Whether the taxes that expelled them were excessive, and therefore unjust, or only unfamiliar to a class that has been wont to shift most of the burden of taxation over on to other and poorer people, is a question to which conflicting answers are given. The exiled lords, however, will find that there are tax collectors in Canada as well as at home, and they will not find a title of much use in many parts of the country they are going to favor by adopting.

Perhaps they will be happy after transplantation and perhaps they will not, but if they really think things are going so very badly in England, it would seem as if England, not Canada, were the place for them. Is it not the lord's duty to fight, till death, if necessary, in defense of his country and people?

That is the theory of lords, at any rate, and it does not become them to run away in time of trouble.

THE FORTIFIED CANAL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of April 11 Park Benjamin endeavors to exploit what he apparently conceives to be a contradiction between two several statements of mine with reference to (1) the fortification of the Panama Canal, which I advocate, and (2) the ultimate dependence of the canal upon the navy for its secure possession by the Nation, which I affirm.

To a careful civilian reader even the quotations from my writings, by which Mr. Benjamin endeavors to substantiate an inconsistency, will carry the refutation which to any military man is apparent at once. My first article quoted, in The North American Review of March, 1911, dealt with the proposition to depend upon the navy alone for the defense of the canal, which some then advocated leaving unfortified. I pointed out that in such a case the navy would be tied to the canal, unable therefore to be used anywhere else, because the position, being unfortified, could be seized without difficulty in the absence of the fleet. The expediency of fortification was supported further on the ground of economy, in that it would cost less than two battleships, while two battleships alone would be insufficient for defense, not to speak of the impolicy of detaching two ships from the fleet under most circumstances. These are A, B, Cs of naval strategy.

On the other hand, no fortification isolated from its supports can hold out indefinitely. Failure of supplies or of relief will always "ultimately" cause the fall of a fortress so situated, its communications being lost. Gibraltar once held out for three years; but it was enabled to do so only by the British Navy, which threw in supplies twice, if not thrice, during that time. Any one who cares to read Drinkwater's "Siege of Gibraltar"—an inside view—can realize the extremes to which the renowned fortress, impregnable throughout, was reduced, solely by isolation. The navy "left it to itself for measurable periods"—very long—but continued throughout to be the "sole ultimate provision" against surrender. Panama will be in the same case.

I can assure the readers of THE TIMES that this reciprocal relation of fortification and mobile force are mere commonplaces of the military art. This they can ascertain from any military friend, whether navy or army. I should have imagined Mr. Benjamin to be familiar with them, save for his letter. It is in some degree vexatious to have to repeat commonplaces in reply to commonplace blunderings, but there is some compensation in the belief that such controversy serves to keep before people the calamity with which the Nation is threatened by the seeming resolve of the Democratic Party in Congress to arrest the growth of the navy.

LETCHWORTH'S FEEBLE-MINDED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You have no doubt seen in the Albany dispatches that the bill you supported, which appropriated $750,000 for the improvement of Letchworth Village, the State institution for the feeble-minded and epileptic in Rockland County, was passed by the Legislature. In behalf of those who, because of the great need of institutional care to check the increase of feeble-mindedness, are interested in the completion of Letchworth Village, I want to thank you personally and the owners of THE TIMES for the assistance given in crystallizing public sentiment and impressing upon the members of the Legislature the importance and necessity of the appropriation. Your help to win half the battle is fully recognized and appreciated.

To make the appropriation available the bill must have the approval of Gov. Dix. We, who have closely followed the bill, see no logical reason why the Governor should not approve the appropriation, as it will make possible a great conservation movement—the conservation of the normal population of the State—a subject, in all forms of which he has shown great interest both in his writings and speeches.

Diet Kitchen Announcement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The New York Diet Kitchen Association wishes to announce to its contributors and friends that on and after May 1, 1912, its branch known as the Freeman Kitchen, and located at 205 West Sixty-second Street, will be closed, to be opened later in some district not yet covered by the Department of Health.

The association has taken this action in accordance with its policy of supplementing but not duplicating the work of the municipal milk stations, and in future it will maintain stations only in sections not provided for by the Department of Health or where the congestion of population still calls for as large a number of milk stations as can be supplied by the city and other agencies.

From present indications it would appear that even under these conditions the demands on the resources of the association this Summer would be greater than ever before, and its managers beg for generous contributions toward the funds necessary to properly carry on its Summer work, particularly among the babies.

FANNY GARRISON VILLARD,

THE SILVER CORD.

In China when a mandarin
  Or some official high,
Displeased the dragon grim and old,
  And so was doomed to die,
A little gold and lacquer box
  Was sent the luckless lord,
And in it lay the sign of death,
  A slender silver cord.

But times have changed across the sea
  Since Freedom's breezy air
Blew in at China's open door,
  And left its sweetness there,
And fleeing to his darksome cave
Behold! the dragon in his turn

COPYRIGHT.

Extraordinary Allegations by The Sun Contrasted with the Facts.

FROM THE SUN.	THE FACTS.
The United States Court, without sustaining the validity of the copyright, * *	Judge Lacombe in his decision, which is against the validity of the temporary injunction merely, says: "The bill shows that such a publication had been made before it was verified; complainant thereby had then secured its copyright." He also speaks of "complainant's copyrighted narrative," "the two copies of the copyrighted work," &c.
and addressing itself solely to the questionable procedure followed by THE TIMES in attempting to exclude its competitors from the publication of news of world-wide importance, * *	THE TIMES has no desire to exclude its competitors from the publication of news of world-wide importance when they can get it legitimately.
has found that THE TIMES proceeded in manifest violation of the express provisions of the Federal statute which creates the privilege of copyright. * * In the copyright law it [Congress] provided that no one claiming to have a copyright should maintain any action whatever in the courts in vindication of his claims until he had published the matter sought to be protected and either filed it in Washington or at least deposited it in the mails.	Congress provided, in the language of the statute, that "no action or proceeding shall be maintained for infringement of copyright * * until * * the deposit of copies and registration." THE TIMES's action was for the prevention of infringement; the suits for infringement will follow. Judge Lacombe construes this clause as forbidding an injunction such as THE TIMES sought. The statute provides expressly that an injunction may be granted to prevent the "violation of any right" of the copyright claimant. The question is, Has the claimant "any right," after publication with notice of copyright and before registration? The statute says that publication with such notice "secures copyright," and Judge Lacombe in his decision speaks of THE TIMES's having secured copyright by such publication, which preceded the application for the injunction. THE TIMES will endeavor to maintain the soundness of its position until the highest court has decided. Its suits for damages for the actual infringement will of course be brought in compliance with the provision of the statute relating thereto.
Its claim was based upon fictions, false pretenses, and questionable procedure. To gain its copyright it first published the Amundsen narrative in a so-called book, printed in THE TIMES office upon loosely stitched leaves and never intended for sale. * * This so-called book was a sham, and although ostensibly offered for sale no copies were thus offered and the few copies were jealously guarded in the Times Building.	The facts in this case were stated under oath. "Fictions and false pretences" are serious charges. If The Sun wishes to make them in a responsible way we have no doubt the makers of the affidavits will undertake to give occupation to The Sun's lawyers. The statement that no copies of the book were offered for sale is unqualifiedly false, for the sale was publicly announced by a poster conspicuously shown in the business office of THE TIMES, and the copies offered were legitimately sold to all applicants. As to the physical qualities of the book, we are not aware that loose-stitching or tight-stitching of leaves has anything to do with copyright, or that printing in THE TIMES office is unconstitutional. Nor do we conceive that even The Sun will maintain that copyright is only for those who publish on super-calendered paper bound in vellum.
THE TIMES and its English allies have asserted the claim that they can exclude the public from knowledge of the essential facts, unless the public is content to read the news either in The London Chronicle or in THE NEW YORK TIMES. * * It is a matter of first importance that the free circulation of the news of the world, upon which in the last analysis the due administration of all republican forms of government must depend and without which the knowledge of mankind might be extremely narrow and perverted, shall not be "cabined, cribbed, confined" to any one newspaper, but that all matters of public interest shall be the subjects of general knowledge and freely open to public discussion.	We are not aware of any such contention. What THE TIMES maintains is that the buyer of such a narrative as Amundsen's, duly copyrighted, is entitled to protection against its reproduction, wholly or in part, verbatim or in colorable variation. * * Passing over the obvious reflection that the free circulation of the news of the world might take place without the participation of The Sun, it may be inquired how "the due administration of all republican forms of government must depend" upon opportunity to filch the proprietary qualities of such a narrative of adventure as Amundsen's account of his dash to the south pole? Nor are we willing to admit that publication in THE TIMES "cabins, cribs and confines" the news; we know no better means of conveying information to the public.
The Sun * * greatly regrets that a premature termination of THE TIMES's suit against The Sun will prevent, at least in that suit, a judicial ascertainment of the respective rights of The Sun and THE TIMES in the common knowledge of the world.	There will be other suits, which, we hope, will entertain The Sun as a spectator if it happens not to have the pleasure of participating as a defendant.
The literary form with which Amundsen clothed his narrative of the conquest of the south pole was the property of Amundsen. The Sun did not reprint this narrative, and made no pretense whatever of giving the explorer's own story of his great achievement.	A proper admission of THE TIMES's rights. If The Sun has conformed and intends to conform to it, what has that newspaper to complain of?

SCHOFIELD'S WORKS IN KATZ GALLERY

"Picardy Farm" and "Channel Boat, Dieppe," Splendid Examples of His Natural Art.

UNION LEAGUE EXHIBITION

In the presence of Walter Elmer Schofield's pictures now at the Katz Gallery we imagine the painter's desire to have been a free and joyous translation of the interesting passages in nature's book. He is not keen about shrouding his subject or his emotion in mystery. He offers us facts, but he is very far from selecting them at random or choosing those that have only a humdrum message to deliver. He paints a "Picardy Farm"—how many of us know their aspect of age mellowing like fruit upon the tree without decay—he wraps it in golden color with yellow in the reds of the roof, in the white of the wall, in the green of climbing vines and strong grass, and against this soft seduction of sunny color he places certain virile tonic grays. These snap in the clumps of white geese wandering desultory over the meadow, in the picket fence and cool clouds. One does not ask for a better sentiment than this wholesome love of wholesome life, and the picture brims over with painter's feeling.

In the "Canal: Bruges" we have the same indifference to mere picturesqueness, the same instinct and hearty rendering of what makes a given scene interesting from the painter's point of view. In this case it is the broad white face of the house at the extreme right. The "Channel Boat: Dieppe" has a greater complication of interest and a more original composition, but this and all the other pictures in the exhibition speak alike of a direct nature expressing thought by means of appropriate language. Mr. Katz announces that his public have made a request so strong that it "amounts to a popular demand" for additional opportunity of seeing Mr. Schofield's pictures, and he will therefore open his galleries on Sunday, April 14, from 3 to 6 P. M., and on Tuesday evening, April 16, from 8 to 10 for this purpose.

M. Le Sidaner has just returned from Pittsburgh where he has been acting on the jury of the Carnegie Institute Exhibition, and expresses himself with great cordiality concerning American art as he sees it in his brief transit through this country. Comparing the modern American painting with that of France he finds the latter much more agitated and various, several groups or schools diverging in as many directions from the academic centre. Following the Impressionism of Claude Monet a new school of landscape has grown up, which has intimacy for its note and whose followers endeavor to portray the special mood or sentiment of some particular corner of a natural scene, the silence of a forest pool, for example, and its remoteness. The decorative artists are very much to the fore in France, and form, perhaps, a more definite school than either the landscape painters or the portrait painters. Among the latter, for example, in spite of the importance of Aman Jean, Lucien Simon and others, there is no one rightly to be placed by the side of Fantin Latour. Besnard, M. Le Sidaner names among the foremost of the modern masters not only as a decorator but as a portrait painter.

Brave in patriotic emblems and flaunting Mr. Torrey's portrait of the President, the Union League Club made the Press View of this month's exhibition a gala occasion with the reception to Mr. Taft just ahead. The pictures assembled are an attractive group. On one wall is Emil Carlsen's "Moonlight" in which the pale mystery of the illumination is conveyed with exquisite feeling. Across the room is Charles Melville Dewey's "October Evening" with its wonderful effect of infinite distance in the sky and its warm unity of color. We fancy Mr. Dewey holds with Constable that it would be difficult to mention any subject of which the sky was not "the keynote, the ladder and the principal organ of sentiment." Leo Mielziner's "Scheme in Copper and Blue" has the sensitive outline and precious quality that seem for the moment to be grievously neglected in modern art. A. T. Van Laer's "New Jersey Meadows near Princeton," H. Bolton Jones's "Summer," delicate and tender in its grays, and R. W. Van Boskerck's "Hostellerie Guillaume le Conquerant, Dives" represent the artists in their happiest vein. The Inness landscape is rich in color, but the dark tone in which the trees are set has a disturbing edge unless the picture is seen from a considerable distance, when all its details merge in a satisfying general impression. We liked Mr. Coffin's sandy little "October Sunshine"; but found the modelling on the further side of the head by Mr. Brush too much in relief. There would be no fun in an exhibition that played perfection.

Other exhibitors are William Thorne with a portrait of Mimi in La Boheme, W. T. Smedley, Robert Reid, F. K. M. Rehn, Julian Rix, F. S. Church with a Humperdinckel fairy story; E. L. Henry; Douglas Volk, Carleton Wiggins, Guy C. Wiggins, and last but not least, Harry W. Watrous with a poignant title "Bursting of the Bubble," a desolated lady, head on table, and two onlooking children wondering why.

At the Salmagundi Club an exhibition of Thumb Box pictures will open to-morrow and continue until the 27th.

Returns from the Squires sale at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon amounted to $33,337, bringing the total returns to date up to $80,817. John Getz was one of the biggest buyers of the day, and paid $6,100 for a large club-shaped vase with a fine landscape decoration. The vase is a rare and early example of the K'ang-hsi period. The porcelain is clear white and the scenery in a brilliant cobalt blue. There are two sharp mountain peaks, trees, a lake with jutting pavilions, groups of scholars, and an old sage riding upon a donkey.

An unusual vase which went to Mr. Getz for $2,600 was in Gallipot shape, pure white paste, very thin, with the so-called orange peel surface. In brilliant cobalt blue was the design of the "Fu-lion with the embroidered ball as it is known in China, the lion with the broad, grinning face with a fuzzy circle of hair and a bushy tail, the ball in front of it and a young cub. The stand was of teak wood and ivory. A tall blue and white hawthorne beaker went to the same buyer for $675, and he paid $300 for a grand blue and white palace vase, and $320 for a blue and white imperial dragon bottle.

E. S. Burke, Jr., paid $2,100 for a monochrome sang de boeuf bottle, 15 inches high; Russell Palmer $1,250 for a pair of blue and white hawthorne ginger jars with teak wood and ivory covers and stands, $800 for a very beautiful monochrome sky-blue bottle, and $825 for a globular, slender-necked bottle, gris-perle. Stephen Bourgeoise gave $750 for a unique globular sang de boeuf jar of rare Ta Ming pottery, the rim mounted in brass. This was of the "sacrificial red" shade, the rarest of monochrome colors. Mr. Bourgeoise paid $390 for an unusual myrtle green vase, one example of which is to be found in the Metropolitan Art Museum. A. C. Hincken paid $740 for two tall blue and white dragon bottles, pear-shaped bodies with slender necks, and a larger blue and white dragon bottle went to Johns for $675.

Among those attending the sale were Mrs. C. B. Alexander, F. C. Harrison, Mrs. George Leary, Mrs. Pembroke Jones, Mrs. Ogden Mills, Miss Anna Sands, E. Washburn Scovill, and Mrs. Payne Whitney. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your notice about the painting by Holbein coming to this country, there is one of his portraits you do not mention, viz., that of his patron, Sir Thomas More.

About twenty-five or thirty years ago I made a private catalogue of the paintings, &c., in Hinton House, Somersetshire, the seat of the Right Hon. Earl Poulett, in whose service I was, and I can yet see the wistful, dreamy eyes of the author of "Utopia" as Holbein has fixed the expression for succeeding generations.

At one point in the progress of the new entertainment at what was lately the New York Theatre a blonde show girl came to the centre of the stage dressed in a costume with great extended sails and criss-crossed with bars of red. And then you knew, if you had not recognized it before, that you were at the Moulin Rouge.

Otherwise this latest entertainment of the peculiarly ambitious Mr. Ziegfeld was more suggestive of the gayer Broadway that everybody knows than that less gay Montmartre a lot of persons talk about.

"A Winsome Widow" is, in fact, just another of those composites of girls and clothes and song and dance which have come to be expected on occasions of this sort. As it goes it is as good or better than a lot of them, and not the equal of the best.

For characters and story the librettist has gone to the late Charles Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown." But such fragments of that farce as came through the trying process which all musical comedy books must undergo are not inspiring to hilarity. This, too, in spite of the fact that the very fat and very funny Harry Conor is on hand to play his original part of Welland Strong, who knows he hasn't long to live, carries a thermometer and a book of rules, but doesn't mind shortening his life by a few days or months if the provocation, spiritual or feminine, is sufficiently alluring.

What the producers have succeeded best in doing is in assembling a gorgeous succession of effective costumes with girls who can carry them with good effect, and who, if not raving, tearing beauties, every one of them, certainly give a distinct impression of unusual pulchritude in their trappings more or less. Thus, in an ensemble at the beginning of the second act, there is a masquerade carnival which for glowing color and beauty has seldom been excelled, but which is to be excelled presently by a subsequent scene, a novelty in itself, which represents the interior of an ice palace, with the myriad skaters, glitteringly attired, and providing a wonderful medley of gliding, changing color.

In respect to quantity of entertainment there is, too, nothing to complain of. The vaudeville field has been raked over for specialties with an especially strong showing of expert dancers. And so students of the art terpsechorean—and New York is full of such at present—may see here all the styles, from the merely acrobatic to the turkey trot, the tango, and others that are nameless, and might occasionally seem shameless, had the senses been not a little dull by a gradual process of enlightment.

One young woman, for instance, who dances exceedingly well, finds it advantageous apparently to vary her effort by ultimately appearing in very short hose. The result is merely to prove that beauty unadorned is sometimes not nearly so effective or alluring as beauty in pink tights. However, even that may be a matter of opinion, and in a discussion of shows of this kind, the suggestion of expert knowledge is often mere pretense.

What happens generally throughout the entertainment is a succession of scenes carrying out the rather frayed story of the gay old boy who makes a show of morals and carries on with the first pretty woman who comes across his path. It is rather primitive stuff at best, and here it is not at its best. There is so much zip and go and rush to the dancing and singing that these interludes of plot must seem very dull by comparison. And to this end Miss Emmy Wehlen contributes her share. For, though a very pretty, dainty, little woman, who looks extremely fetching in some very chic frocks, she never quite succeeds in conveying that sense of joy in her work which is essential to the best result.

She is, in fact, too patently working all the time. Which is in part due to the fact that she is not properly placed in a big whirligig show of this kind, and again in part to the fact that she does not seem able to radiate much that is magnetic across the footlights.

With the exception of Mr. Conor, who, during the singing of a sentimental ballad, is especially funny in a scene of mock grief, and Mr. Frank Tinney, who can make something out of nothing, and does so here, the principals, as comedians, count for little.

When it comes to dancing, however, it is another story. Miss Kathleen Clifford, herself one of the neatest that ever footed it in boy's patent leathers, comes in and out of the action to its general advantage, and the Dolly Twins flash across the picture at suitable intervals to help enliven things.

Then, again, there are Jack Clifford and Irene Weston, recruited from a cabaret show across the way, who appear equal turkey-trotters with Maurice and his disappearing partner, though the Tango, as these new dancers do it, suffers by comparison. Brice and King, prime favorites, know how to get their songs across, and do it here successfully, and Ethel Kelly does a turn or two with zest and good effect.

But in the very richness of its dancing features the show suffers somewhat, for there is a sameness to these things.

De Witt Clinton Students in 'Pinafore'

The cast and chorus will be made up of the pick of the school's 3,500 pupils. The De Witt Clinton Orchestra, of thirty-five pieces, under the direction of Joseph P. Donnelly, will supply the instrumental music.

"Texas Tommy" Dancers To-night.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 11.—That Philadelphia has no share, titular or financial in the so-called Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company; that Philadelphia could not have grand opera were it not for E. T. Stotesbury, and that last season's losses of the company in Philadelphia, according to the bill footed by Mr. Stotesbury, were $37,458, are a few statements contained in a letter from Bernard Ulrich, business manager of the company, to a newspaper yesterday.

"The corporate name of this company is not the Philadelphia-Chicago Grand Opera Company, but the Chicago Grand Opera Company," said Mr. Ulrich.

"There is no Philadelphia capital in the company. The corporation has a cash capital of $500,000, of which three-fifths is held by public-spirited citizens of Chicago and two-fifths is held in New York by interests identified with the Metropolitan Opera House Company.

"Our first season in the West showed a loss of $68,445. The first season of ten weeks in the East showed a loss of $177,590. Of this, the Philadelphia loss during this time amounted to $141,079. The loss on the ten performances in New York was $26,845, and on the ten performances in Baltimore $9,665.

"At the end of the first season E. T. Stotesbury, who has done more for opera in Philadelphia than any one else, voluntarily contributed $10,000 toward the Philadelphia loss of $141,079.

"The books show that during the entire season just closed Mr. Stotesbury has lost and paid our company a total of $37,458, representing the difference between the actual receipts and the actual cost.

MACVEAGH PREDICTS WORLD FREE TRADE

Ultimately, Says Secretary of the Treasury, It Will Be Policy of Enlightened Countries.

SPEAKS TO THE METAL TRADE

Roosevelt, He Says, Has Dropped the Tariff, but Even He Can't Dispossess It—Both Parties Agreed.

Ultimately all the world is to have free trade, according to the prediction of Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury and the principal speaker at the dinner last night of the National Metal Trades Association which ended its convention at the Hotel Astor. Free trade is to be a long time in coming, but it is the end of the evolution which is even now going on. He said that once he was a free trader, but is now a believer in a scientific revision of the tariff.

F. C. Caldwell, President of the Association, was the toastmaster, and the other speakers were W. Morgan Shuster and Dr. Arthur A. Hamerschlag, Director of Carnegie Technical Schools, Pittsburgh.

Secretary MacVeagh commented upon the present lack of interest in the tariff despite the active presence in Congress of a rich variety of tariff bills. He pointed out that only a little while ago it was predicted that the tariff would be tht issue in the coming campaign and in the nomination for the Presidency.

"Col. Roosevelt," he said, "however, has preferred to introduce other issues, having always considered the tariff question as something impertinent, and, as usual, what the Colonel resolves to be interested in in a campaign is pretty apt to be discussed to the exclusion of other things. Even the great men of our New York convention a day or two ago yielded in this, and this alone, to the Colonel. Whether this eclipse of the tariff issue is to be very brief or not so very brief, is a little hard to say."

The tariff question, the Secretary continued, has come to stay as an active issue that will have to be threshed out. He disavowed any intention of making a political speech, but said the tariff is a question too pressing to be downed. He does not believe that even Col. Roosevelt can dispossess it. There is no chance of taking the tariff out of politics, and if one attempts to remove the tariff from politics one will find that it runs to the roots and is a part of the roots of both parties.

Both Parties Agreed on Tariff.

"Both parties," said he, "and the people are now equally enlisted to reform the tariff and to revise it downward, even though the parties are still adhering to their differing fundamental theories. Neither party is resisting reformation or reduction. If one party was for putting the tariff up and the other party for putting it down, then they would be working at cross-purposes in every respect. And this used to be true, but is no longer true. Both parties are now working in the same direction, though dealing in different shibboleths and adhering to antagonistic theories. Both want reduced tariffs. And so you can see that an evolution is at work which promises an undisputed National policy.

"Speaking of this common ground, it is interesting and important to note that neither party believes in free trade—and consideration of that may, for the near future, be eliminated.

"Remote, however, as is the prospect of free trade in this country, and academic as the question is to-day, it is hard to see how any one can doubt that free trade will ultimately be the policy and practice of this country and of all other enlightened and self-reliant countries as well. The theory that we must make in our own country everything we consume, and the theory that it is true prosperity to cut down and cut up, mine and burn, mine and melt, and parcel out as fast as possible every bit of the resources of nature, will fade out as civilization advances. It is simply impossible to conceive a free road to civilization and human progress unless the tariff walls are eventually and in the long run broken down. The protective system may do well enough for the present stage of the world's civilization, but it won't do for a civilization that is much more advanced, nor for a human progress and a human brotherhood that is better conceived. The enlargement of National boundaries and the adoption of freedom of trade within those boundaries has made the area of free trade in the world much greater than the area of protectionist trade, because the internal trade is very much larger than the external trade. And the same sort of progress which now dominates within the nations will carry itself beyond the nations and over the world.

No Use for Industrial War.

"When the world becomes sufficiently anxious about military war, it will take but another step to deal with industrial war, which is in reality still more offensive to the moral sense and a great deal more deteriorating. Industrial war does not do any good to the world at large—does not carry forward civilization at all.

"I was a free trader myself, but I made up my mind years ago to confine my interest to the rehabilitation of the tariff as we have it—to its revision and to its gradual reduction."

The Secretary said that the practical question before the people to-day is how the progress toward a lower tariff shall be made; whether by the adoption of the scientific method of impartial, non-partisan inquiry or by the old method of committees in Congress without outside aid.

"The complications of business with the tariff to-day are unlimited and extraordinarily intricate," he said. "It is evident, therefore, that it is only keeping good faith on the part of the people and the Government to deal knowingly, cautiously, and scientifically with questions involving such huge interests and complexities of practically the whole Nation. It seems almost incredible that anybody—at this day, with the light flooding him—should propose to deal with this question in any other or less discreet manner. It is hard to conceive of anything more unfit than legislation by guesswork about the tariff, unless it is the introduction of selfish party considerations, or the consideration of the political fortunes of individuals.

"I am a tariff revisionist. I am a tariff reformer," said he, "and I want to see lower tariff as much as any one does. But I would wait, if that were necessary—far rather wait—for further actual reductions or further adjustments than to lose, or seriously risk losing, a permanently established commission method of inquiry into tariff facts, and the real simon pure schedule by schedule method of legislation."

Mr. Shuster spoke on the coming of universal peace, and he predicted that such a peace could only come when the tie of commercial relationship was strong enough as to forbid war.

WORKMEN'S RIGHT TO STRIKE.

Speaker Before Metal Trades Expresses Some Doubt About It.

Appliances which protect the workmen while at work were considered yesterday by members of the National Metal Trades Association in their fourteenth annual convention at the Hotel Astor, and what has been done along these lines was the subject of a report by William H. Doolittle, the Association's Safety Inspector. His talk on the subject was illustrated by stereopticon views, and these showed that nearly every class of machine can be fitted with one device or more to minimize the danger to workers. F. C. Caldwell, of Chicago, President of the Association, was in the chair.

J. J. Feeley, of Boston, former Assistant District Attorney for the Southeast district of Massachusetts, which comprises Norfolk and Plymouth counties, read a paper on the labor troubles and strikes. He pointed out that though labor unions had been hailed as a new development they are as old as civilization.

The right of the laborer, he said, to organize for a proper purpose is recognized by law. That phase of industrial conflict known as the strike, though it is only too frequent, is far from being understood.

"By a specious line of reasoning the strikers proceed upon the theory that their members have a special lien upon the places they have voluntarily abandoned," he said, "and consequently they are justified in interfering with the heretofore accepted right of the employer to enter a free labor market. It has been frequently stated by labor leaders and even by judicial tribunals who should weigh their words with more care that the right to enter into combination and to strike for whatever reason one may choose, or for no reason at all, is an absolute one which may be exercised at will, one which may not and should not be curtailed by any authority. There are few if any rights that are absolute; even the right to the custody of one's children is circumscribed by the superior right of the State to take charge of them. The right to quit work arbitrarily, which society grants to the individual, does not extend to groups of men acting in concert.

"The courts of Massachusetts have already decided that strikes for an increase in wages or shorter hours are legal, but will enjoin when illegal methods are used. Unjustifiable strikes, the courts have held, are sympathetic strikes, the boycott, to obtain a monopoly of a trade or calling; to create and maintain a closed shop, to procure the discharge of a workman because he does not belong to a union, or to induce the violation of a contract upon the part of a third party." Mr. Feeley thought that to submit the question of legality of a strike to the courts would be a sane way to deal with industrial conflicts.

Mr. Feeley spoke of picketing. The right of a striker to approach a new employe and attempt by peaceful argument to persuade him not to enter employment was generally established. Massachusetts early held that an organized system of picketing carried on with social pressure or intimidation was unlawful.

What has been done and is now being done in regard to the employer's liability and workmen's compensation was reviewed at great length by Miles M. Lawson, of this city. A great deal of attention he said was given to the matter of workmen's compensation laws, and laws toward that end have been passed in many States, and the subject is under consideration in others.

"Since the last meeting of the Association," Mr. Lawson said, "those who were taking the most interest in promoting legislation of this kind had not recovered from their consternation over the decision of the Court of Appeals of New York, in the Ives case, holding that the Wainwright Workmen's Compensation act, which imposed a direct liability upon employes for all accidents occurring while at work, is unconstitutional."

MELLEN SILENT ON MERGER.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 11.—President Mellen of the New Haven Railroad was asked to-day about the "Message to the Public" given out last night by Gov. Foss of Massachusetts. He said he had no comment to make. He was asked whether it was true that in case of a formal union of the New Haven and Boston & Maine systems the headquarters would be removed to Boston. President Mellen said it was not true.

Connecticut residents are deeply interested in the report that the railroad may be moved to another city. The charter of the road provides that the offices shall be kept in this State and that a majority of the Directors of the road shall be residents of Connecticut.

Legislative action will be taken in case either of these restrictions is violated. President Mellen added that the physical union of the Boston & Maine and New Haven Railroad systems is a vital necessity for the future development of New England.

Work is to be begun immediately upon the electrification of the New York, New Haven & Hartford main line between Stamford and New Haven and the estimates indicate that it will be completed and in operation before the end of the present year.

The final estimate fixes the cost at about $4,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 11.—The plan proposed by Gov. Foss, with the assent of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, for the consolidation of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven, their physical connection by means of a tunnel under the city of Boston, and the electrification of all lines within the metropolitan district, meets hearty public approval, if the editorial expressions of the local press correctly represent the public. These comments are enthusiastic.

The question will come before the Directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday next, and pending that meeting President Joseph B. Russell and other members of the board decline to be quoted.

BRIDGE TICKETS, 3 FOR 5.

Reduction Order on Williamsburg Span Due to 200 Per Cent. Profits.

The street car fare over the Williamsburg Bridge is to be reduced by order of the Public Service Commission on April 22, from three cents, or five cents for the round trip, to two cents with three tickets for a nickel. This is to be done because the Commission has discovered that at the present time the Bridge Operating Company, which normally conducts the service, though it is in reality provided by the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company, has been making more than 100 per cent. out of the bridge on its capital of $100,000.

The Bridge Operating Company was started on Nov. 4, 1904, and was acquired in June, 1907, by the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company and the New York City Railway Company. These concerns agreed to allow the Bridge Operating Company a rental of 6 per cent. annually on its stock. Then in August, 1910, the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railroad Company demanded a share of the profits, and on signing an agreement to surrender all its claims from "the beginning of the world to June 1, 1909" it obtained an allowance of 16 per cent. of the new profits of the bridge service.

Commissioner Maltbie has been inquiring into the matter and has discovered that last year the Bridge Operating Company made $252,287.22 gross revenue and after even such deductions as the company claimed to make during the investigation, the net revenue stood at about $105,000. As the total fixed capital of the company is, according to the Commissioner, only $100,734, with a present value of $45,458, the revised net income is equivalent to a profit of over 100 per cent. on nominal capital or over 200 per cent. on the present value of the property in service.

G. Lewis in The St. Louis Star be accepted. Lewis is now on trial here, charged with fraudulent use of the mails.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Beads Used in Rosaries Assessed at 60 Per Cent.—Other Decisions.

A controversy between the Government and F. W. Woolworth & Co. regarding the classification of beads was decided adversely to the importers. Collector Loeb held that the merchandise should pay duty at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem as "beads." The importer set up the contention that the articles should be regarded under the Tariff Act of 1897 as "rosaries," and as such subject to a duty of 30 or 35 per cent. as manufacturers of bone or manufactures of wood or ivory. Judge Sharretts holds that the tax imposed by the Collector is correct and must stand.

The board upheld a claim filed by Bernard Judas & Co. relating to lathes operated by foot power. The machines were returned for duty at the rate of 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal, and were claimed to be machine tools under the Tariff act of 1909. Judge Fischer says that from the evidence it is clear to the board that the articles are of the character claimed. The protest is sustained and the decision of the Collector reversed.

In denying a contention raised by the Stone & Downey Company, the board holds that various parts of sewing machines will have to stand a duty of 45 per cent. under the metal schedule of the present tariff. Duty was claimed by the importers at the rate of 30 per cent. as parts of sewing machines. This claim is denied by the board and the Collector's decision affirmed.

TO BUILD BIG PAPER MILL.

New Plant Will Be the Largest in the South.

Considerable interest is evinced in the New York paper market in the report from Pascagoula, Miss., that the Southern Paper Company has awarded contracts covering the erection of a large paper mill at that place. The plant is on the Escawtapa River, near Moss Point, and when completed will be the largest of its kind in the South. Waste from the mills of the J. L. Dantzler Lumber Company of Moss Point will be utilized as raw material.

The Southern Paper Company is capitalized at $750,000, a good part of which represents English investments. J. L. Dantzler is President, and A. S. Benn, M. P., of London, is Vice President.

Speculation was rife in the market as to the extent of the business plans of the new company, but as the kind of paper to be made was not given in the report, the probable effect of competition in the local market cannot be conjectured. According to the opinion of a prominent manufacturer, however, the bulk of the Southern mill's product will probably be distributed through the South and Southwest. In this case the local trade will not be greatly affected.

NEW MARSHALL FIELD MILLS.

Spray, N. C., Concerns Bought in at Bankruptcy Sale.

The purchase of the Rhode Island Cotton Mills, the Spray Woolen Mills, and the American Warehouse Company plant, all of Spray, N. C., together with the German-American and Lily Mills, by the Thread Mill Company of Monticello, Ind., which has been announced from Greensboro, N. C., caused considerable comment yesterday in the New York wholesale dry goods market. The Thread Mills Company is a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, and the successful bids aggregated $917,000. The mills were sold at public auction by order of the Federal Bankruptcy Court.

Operations in the mills, it is expected, will be continued by the purchasers, and improvements costing in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 will be made.

COFFEE ROASTERS ORGANIZE.

Success Attending Efforts to Form National Association Branch Here.

Following a meeting of the Organization Committee of the New York branch of the National Coffee Roasters' Traffic and Pure Food Association, held yesterday at the Whitehall Club, 17 Battery Place, R. W. Weir, Chairman of the committee, announced that a general invitation is extended to the trade to attend an open meeting at the club April 18. At that time general discussion and suggestion regarding the lines to be followed in organizing the local branch will be entered into. The purpose of organizing is to promote good-fellowship in the trade, eliminate certain trade abuses, and to handle any traffic problems arising. Brazilian valorization of coffee will not be made an issue, nor will any attempt to foster a regulation of prices be made.

A thorough canvass of the trade by the committee showed that the roasters were practically unanimous in their expression of a desire to join the association, and it is expected that when the formation of the body is completed almost every prominent roasting firm will be represented in the membership. The final steps of organization will be rushed as rapidly as business conditions permit, in an endeavor to have the local branch in working order when the annual convention of the National association meets in this city next month.

RAW SILK MART UNCHANGED.

Cable advices from Milan received by H. L. Gwalter & Co., 470 Broadway, state that the Italian raw silk market is showing greater strength, and that reelers are increasing their limits. A good demand for European and American consumption is in evidence, but because of the scarcity of desirable silks transactions are growing difficult.

The Yokohama market remains strong, with a fair amount of American business recorded. Trading is heaviest on tram stocks, which are light and bringing substantial prices. Shipments to America for the week totaled 1,600 bales, against 1,000 bales forwarded to European centres.

The Canton market is very strong, and the continued firmness of the Silver Exchange is making it hard to do business. Stocks of the fifth and sixth crops are considerably lighter than is usual at this time of the year, and quotations on the new season's silk, which will not be in the market for several weeks, are already coming forward. The Shanghai market is quiet but firm. Some transactions in Tsatlee silks for American consumption are reported, but the demand for steam filatures and Tussahs is light.

The New York market remains practically unchanged. There is a moderate demand for prompt deliveries at steady prices, but manufacturers for the most part are holding back on forward business. The interruption of business in the Asiatic markets by the Easter holidays was reflected to a certain extent in the local market.

MAY RECALL 15,000 STRIKERS

Lowell Cotton Mills Likely to Grant 10 Per Cent. Wage Increase.

LOWELL, Mass., April 11.—The reopening of the cotton mills of Lowell under a new wage schedule providing for an advance of 10 per cent. next Monday morning is considered a strong possibility.

Following a statement by Organizer William E. Trautmann that an increase of 10 per cent. in wages was to be announced a few hours hence, the Industrial Workers of the World strike committee made arrangements for calling a special meeting of the strike committee immediately upon notification of the advance.

The cloth mills were closed on March 25 because of dissatisfaction among the operatives with an advance of 7 per cent., and since that time 15,000 hands have been idle.

DEFENDS COTTON FUTURES.

G. W. Neville Says Hedging Makes an All-Year Market.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—George W. Neville, President of the New York Cotton Exchange, defended that institution to-day against the Anti-Option bills pending before the House Committee on Agriculture.

Mr. Neville declared that the privilege of hedging and dealing in contracts on cotton futures was necessary to maintain the equilibrium of the cotton market. Speculation, he averred, was a necessary condition to provide a free market at all times of the year. He said he thought the bills would mean the abolition of Cotton Exchanges and the consequent demoralization of the cotton industry in the United States.

Howard Ayres, President of the China-Japan Trading Company, spoke against the bills. He argued that if cotton men were not permitted to deal in futures the cloth market would fluctuate violently.

FORCED RECEIVER ON MARQUETTE ROAD

Overzealous Michigan Politicians, Mr. Erb Says, Were Directly the Cause of It.

GOV. OSBORN MADE MISTAKE

Knows It Now, When Too Late to Recall His Opposition to Note Issue, Which Was Disapproved.

Newman Erb, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Père Marquette, said yesterday on his return from Detroit that the receivership had been brought on by the misdirected enthusiasm of Michigan politicians. "I understood when I went West twelve days ago that the State Railroad Commission would grant our application for consent to issue the notes for which arrangements had been made," he said. "When they refused it was like tying a man's hands and legs, throwing him into the water, and telling him to swim."

Mr. Erb is one of the three receivers for the Père Marquette appointed by the Federal court last week. He was put in charge of the road less than two months ago, and immediately set about its rehabilitation. The company had about $700,000 of coupons and other obligations maturing April 1, and application was made to the Michigan commission for permission to sell $2,000,000 of notes, secured by $4,000,000 of bonds as collateral. Arrangements had been made with the Guaranty Trust Company to acquire the coupons and maturities on April 1, and Mr. Erb said that there was no question of the road's ability to take care of itself from then on.

President Alexander J. Hemphill of the Guaranty Trust Company, which announced its willingness to buy maturing obligations of the Père Marquette at par shortly before the receivership was announced, also criticised the action of the Michigan authorities in bringing on what he considered an unnecessary receivership. "Should the authorities come to their senses," he said, "the receivership will be of short duration."

Gov. Osborn of Michigan was directly responsible for the commission's refusal to allow the issuance of more securities. He appeared before the commission two weeks ago with a suggestion that J. P. Morgan & Co., as owners of a controlling interest in the company's stock, be allowed to supply funds needed to tide the road over its difficulties. Mr. Erb said that when the application was first presented to the commission the Chairman promised it would be allowed. At this hearing Gov. Osborn had objected to the new issue on the ground that the road was overcapitalized and overmortgaged.

"Gov. Osborn made inconsiderate and irregular statements," said Mr. Erb. "I am satisfied now that he realizes that, because I had a conference with him prior to the last hearing and he practically withdrew his objections. I wanted him to appear again before the commission, but he would not do so. But the mischief had been done, and there was no alternative when I appeared before the commission.

"There is nothing wrong with the Père Marquette, and there is no reason why it should not meet its maturities. The trouble with the road was that it had outgrown its facilities and was, therefore, doing business at an abnormal cost. It is abundantly able to take care of itself, and the receivership resulted from temporary difficulties brought about chiefly by the bad weather conditions. It had followed the practice of paying all its supply bills promptly, and had it not been for that it probably would have been able to tide itself over its temporary difficulties.

"By reason of the prompt payment of supply bills it will not have a dollar of floating debt of any kind by May 1. I do not believe that it will be necessary in the reorganization to scale down the amount of securities outstanding. The capitalization per mile is very low. The bonded indebtedness is between $84,000 and $85,000 a mile, while the preferred and common stock is equal to about $10,000 a mile. The trouble has been that its facilities have not kept pace with the growth in gross of from about $12,500,000 to $18,000,000. It finally got to the point where the facilities had to be increased. Many improvements were made last year, and more will be finished this year."

Mr. Erb lays the blame for the receivership at the door of the commission, saying that the Governor had been misled. "I think Mr. Osborn is earnest and sincere in his beliefs," he said. "I believe that if he had the opportunity again he would take back all he has said about Père Marquette."

VAN TUYL WARNS INVESTORS.

Says Some Real Estate Bond Schemes Are Illegal.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—In a statement given out to-day the State Banking Department says:

"In pursuance of his policy of protecting the investors of this State generally from the operations of corporations not organized under the banking law, but which are conducting business in violation of the provisions of that statute or of other laws of this State, Supt. George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., has already had inquiries made with reference to over a hundred mortgage, loan, investment, real estate, or security companies located in New York City which have not been organized under the banking law and are not subject to the supervision of the Banking Department.

"Supt. Van Tuyl recently held that companies offering investors in this State bonds alleged to be secured by equities in real estate were in many instances doing business without legal warrant. Section 2 of the state banking law apparently requires that such companies shall submit to supervision of the Banking Department as mortgage, loan, or investment companies. Attorney General Carmody, in his recent opinion rendered at Supt. Van Tuyl's request, took strong ground in support of this position.

"Besides the fifty or more companies apparently operating as business corporations, and yet doing a business reserved for mortgage, loan, or investment companies under the banking law, the investigations conducted by Supt. Van Tuyl have brought to light a number of apparent violations of Sections 663 and 666 of the penal law.

"Section 663 of the penal law prohibits any person or corporation from acting as agent or representative within this State of any foreign mortgage, loan, or investment corporation which has not been licensed by the Superintendent of Banks to do business in this State. Section 666 of the penal law prohibits any person, association, or corporation other than a moneyed corporation transacting business in this State, directly or indirectly or through agents or representatives, from using these words as a part of its corporate title."

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading was mixed on the Curb yesterday, with transactions in fair volume. Lehigh Valley Coal Sales Company was strong after the previous day's slump, and closed at 254 after sales of 650. In the mining list there were some reactions among the coppers of ⅛ from the opening prices, but these were offset by gains in other issues of a like amount. The bond list was active and strong.

COULD FIND MILLIONS IN IRON ORE TO-DAY

LABOR CONDITIONS REPORT

Senate Committee Calls Situation at Steel Plants "a Brutal System of Industrial Slavery."

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Joseph Sellwood of Duluth, an authority on ores, told the House Steel Investigating Committee to-day, that the Lake Superior ore region contains 1,400,000,000 tons of available ore, of which about 550,000,000 tons, excluding the Hill lease ores, are controlled by the United States Steel Corporation.

Don H. Bacon, formerly of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, declared that there were at present 400,000,000 tons of available ore owned by that company, now a subsidiary of the Steel Corporation. The Birmingham district, he said, contained vast areas of undeveloped ore. He was optimistic about the future ore supply of the steel business.

"To compete in the steel business," said Mr. Bacon, "it would be necessary to have a plant with a capacity of 50,000 tons of pig iron a month. To make that amount, and run for a period of forty years, would require 72,000,000 tons of ore. But I would want a guaranty of ore for 100 years, which would require 180,000,000 tons of ore."

"Could you get that ore to-day?" asked Representative Gardner. "That is, could you find that amount of ore, not now held by some other steel companies?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I think I could find it in the Birmingham district, and such an amount could be found in one body and not scattered over separate areas."

"Yes; doubtless such areas of ore are available in what are known as the Hill lease lands to be surrendered by the Steel Corporation," Mr. Bacon replied. He further said that lower grade ores are abundant all over the country, and that modern invention and improved processes of manufacture were gradually reducing the metallic per cent. necessary in ore for manufacturing steel. As these processes progress the lower grade ores not now of value become useful, he said.

Asked as to the amount of ore existing in the area included under the Hill lease, Mr. Sellwood said that it was at least 250,000,000 tons. In this he included all the ore land owned by J. J. Hill and the property owned by others which went in on the lease to the Steel Corporation. This lease has been cancelled by the corporation, expiring in 1915, when all that ore will be available to concerns outside the Steel Corporation.

Labor conditions in plants of the United States Steel Corporation were denounced as "a brutal system of industrial slavery" in the Senate Labor and Education Committee's report on the proposed eight-hour law for Government contract labor, submitted to-day.

"This Government is bound in its own defense, for its citizenship, its life, to interpose between the strong and the weak," the report declares. "No man can meet the obligations and discharge the duties of citizenship in a free Government who is broken in spirit and wracked in body through such industrial peonage. And before he has reached the prime of life under such conditions, sodden in mind and broken in health, he is cast off as a useless hulk—a burden and a curse to society and a menace to the Government. It is just as much the Government's duty to protect citizens from such outrageous treatment as from the burglar and the highwayman."

The report, made by Senator Borah of Idaho, Chairman of the committee, said the prosed law would mean better work and better citizens and was constitutional.

MAY TRAVEL CHEAPER NOW.

Through Business Allowed on Excursion and Commutation Tickets.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission announced to-day its interpretation of the law governing the use of mileage, excursion or commutation tickets for through passenger business over connecting lines. It was held that regular established excursion, mileage and commutation rates, in accordance with tariffs lawfully filed with the commission, may be used in basing fares for the transportation of both passengers and their baggage the same as if the passengers held through tickets over the entire route of their journeys.

Passengers, however, must procure either through tickets over the two or more lines involved or present to the initial line separate tickets covering the entire journey. Railroads then would be permitted to accord through accommodations, including all conveniences, such as through sleepers, in the same manner as is accorded on through tickets over the entire physical line.

SUE RIVALS FOR $2,000,000.

Canadians Say Shoe Machinery Co. Drove Them Out of the Country.

BOSTON, April 11.—A two million dollar suit and attachment was filed to-day against the United Shoe Machinery Company by the Duplessis Independent Shoe Machinery Company, Limited, of Canada, for an alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The Duplessis Company was organized fifteen years ago by English capitalists and had a factory in Beverly, Mass. The suit alleges that it was driven out of the country by the United Shoe Machinery Company.

The suit was filed in the United States District Court, where two other similar suits are pending against the United Shoe Machinery Company, the three aggregating $5,000,000.

ALLEGED BANKRUPTS SAIL.

B. Lercher & Co. Left but $50 Assets, Creditors Say.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Joseph and Bertha Klingsberg, known as Berthold and Bertha Lercher, who did business as B. Lercher & Co., manufacturers of ladies' neckwear, at 3 East Seventeenth Street, by Rosenberg & Levis, for these creditors: Giles & Kennedy, $1,000; Sherman & Sons Company, $350, and Greenhut-Siegel-Cooper Company, $200. Judge Mayer appointed George M. Chaffee receiver, bond $50, on application of Rosenberg & Levis, who said that the alleged bankrupts had sailed for Europe on Saturday on the General Grant, bound for Hamburg, which is due to arrive there on April 15.

Before their departure, it is alleged by creditors, they sold all their household furniture and disposed of nearly all the business assets, and the stuff left is not worth over $50. Their liabilities are $5,000. The passenger list of the steamer contained their names and those of their children. They came here from Vienna in 1907.

It Is Now the Flatbush Bank.

The Prospect Park Bank Directors have decided to change the name of the institution to the Flatbush Bank. In a statement announcing the unanimous vote of the board, it is explained that the Directors are closely identified with Flatbush, and that the bank is located in the centre of the Flatbush district. The new name is chosen "in order to clearly designate its location and the strictly local features of its business." All the loans of the bank are made to its depositors.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Wheat Leads Advance in Grains as Cotton Reacts—Pork Easier.

Wheat advanced excitedly again on more winter wheat damage reports reacting late. Corn advanced to new high levels on small receipts and good cash demand. Oats were excited, led by the July, owing to the delay in seeding operations. Provisions were dull and easier. Cotton reacts under heavy selling by leading speculative holders. Prospects of unsettled weather throughout practically the entire belt brought in further demand, but this was inadequate to absorb offerings.

WHEAT.

The advance was continued in the wheat market with heavy trading. New crop deliveries showed pronounced excitement during the morning and gained ⅝@1⅛c, while the Chicago May delivery lagged behind, losing considerably premium. In the Northwest Minneapolis May and July were weak, and below the previous night. The advance in the market was again due to excitement over the crop situation. The reports came in very persistent from all through the Ohio Valley and from portions of Kansas and Nebraska. The Ohio Valley news was practically a reiteration of previous advices, simply emphasizing the seriousness of the situation. The Kansas and Nebraska reports of damage were comparatively new. Quite spotted conditions have been developed in North and Central Kansas, and in parts of Nebraska, while the surface soil is reported so dry that it is even cracking and caking. An estimate by Lyle placed the Kansas crop at only 85,000,000 bushels, considerably under the maximum estimates. The Snow report on the entire wheat crop claimed probabilities of not over 469,000,000 bushels, with a probable abandonment of over 4,000,000 acres. Inglis, who is again traveling for Logan & Bryan, reported damage spots in Nebraska. After midday there was general reaction, final prices being about 1c a bushel under the top, but in Winter wheat markets at an advance of ⅝@⅞c on new crop deliveries; old crop deliveries were a little lower than last night and Spring wheat markets closed at 1@1½c decline on the old crop months. This is possibly due to undoing of spreads. Foreign markets were strong and higher. Export sales were reported of four loads of red wheat for Rotterdam and eight loads of Manitoba wheat at outports. The Argentine estimated exports for the week were 3,200,000 bushels, against 2,700,000 bushels the previous week. Spot wheat was firm, with No. 2 red, $1.12½, free on board; No. 1 hard Winter, $1.15; No. 1 Northern, opening of navigation, $1.21⅝; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.12.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market was less active but strong, advancing to new high levels. On the advance realizing became quite pronounced and prices reacted, but closed at unchanged to ⅜c net gain. Receipts were very small West, with cash markets ½@1c higher. Interior receipts this week have decreased 500,000 bushels, while interior shipments increased 600,000 bushels and were almost double the interior receipts. Cash corn was firm, with No. 2 quoted 84c, free on board.

OATS were excited and very strong, particularly on the July delivery. New high records were made with heavy buying on the continued reports of delay in field work, and probability that the July will not be a new crop month. Prices reacted a little toward the close. Western receipts have decreased heavily this week, losing nearly 1,000,000 bushels compared with last week, and the interior shipments have been about 50 per cent. more than the receipts. Cash oats were strong, with Standards and No. 2 whites, 63½c, elevator; No. 2 whites, 63c.

PROVISIONS.

The market was quiet and easier, influenced by an easier hog market. Most Western points were off 5c and some 10@20c on hogs. Hog receipts were 83,000 at all points.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Further advances in the crude market led to good absorption of sales in the local future market. During the early part of the day there seemed to be a great deal of pressure from refiners who were active on the preceding day in purchasing, but the declines were short lived. Speculative demand again counterbalanced the speculative realizing, and the buying late by leading refiners of the near positions tended to restore confidence. The reaction in cotton values had only a temporary effect. Hedge pressure is naturally light on present differences, as crude in the Southeast is quoted at 5.14 to 5.20, in the valley and Texas at 5.33.

COTTON.

The tendency of values was in contrast with that of the preceding session with substantial losses due to continuous realizing. Prominent in this respect were uptown interests while the following of certain spot houses were also induced to accept profits, principally because of the rapidity of the advance, and in the late trading, selling from the South assumed larger proportions. There was indeed a liberal outside demand which served to check the downward tendency at times, and which was instrumental in small changes on both sides of the list at the outset, although the cables warranted an easy opening, but this inquiry was gradually satisfied as the day progressed, so that final quotations were at near the low of the session.

There was less apprehension as to the flood situation in the Lower Mississippi Valley and while rains were noted on the morning's weather map, these were light in most sections east of the river. Unsettled weather was forecasted for the Western territory and probable rains in the most of the eastern districts, but there was apparently a desire on the part of leading bulls to accept profits rather than add to their lines with the prospect of rather unfavorable weather. Reports from some conservative interests now traveling through the South would indicate that the backwardness of the season is admitted, but the belief is expressed that a large crop can still be made. The excellent subsoil conditions were commented upon, although stress is laid on the necessity of the weather continuing highly favorable to bring about a large outturn.

Spot business at Liverpool continues limited, amounting to only 6,000 bales yesterday. Cables of private origin from that centre were mixed in tenor, but seemed rather more bearish. An absence of demand for low grade cotton in the Liverpool cotton market is noted with those grades selling at 150 points below middling there. Manchester is still firm, but the higher prices are reported interfering with business. A review of trade conditions published by a prominent spot concern with foreign connections, showed that business was fair in parts of France, prospects rather uncertain in Italy, mixed in Russia, prospects favorable in Portugal and Spain, also in Belgium. In Holland the outlook as noted was good, the same in Denmark and Switzerland, while the indications were rather uncertain at many points in Germany.

Southern spot markets were unchanged, to ¼c advance, the latter at Augusta. New York was .05 decline; middlings, 11.45c. Into-sight for to-day is estimated at about 25,000 bales under last week, when 180,000 bales were reported. A year ago there were 63,000 bales brought into sight for the week.

COFFEE.

Coffee had a broader trade, sales aggregating 92,000 bags and closing at a net gain of 2 to 7 points. Havre advanced 1 franc, while Hamburg was ¼@½ pfennig higher. Private cables from Brazil said that American roasters were buying in Santos, and special Santos cables reported an advance of 50 reis. Receipts were smaller at primary points.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

FURTHER RISE IN WHEAT

Three or four active stocks which were very strong in the early trading yesterday showed net gains in excess of a point at the close of the day, despite the irregular reaction which brought many of the stocks in the list below the closing prices of Wednesday. This record showed that the market was still under the conflicting influences which manifested themselves on Wednesday, when signs were shown of the beginning of the reaction which so many have expected for some time past. The movement yesterday in Reading, New York Central, and Canadian Pacific, to mention the most conspicuous of the stocks which showed net gains, was variously interpreted, though there was a disposition in many quarters of the financial district to give ear to the suggestion that the operations in these shares were being conducted with a view to offsetting the pressure which was making itself felt in many other stocks.

It was chiefly, however, upon the assumption that a reaction, after the sustained advance, was in order, rather than because of the news of the day that many felt that Wednesday's reaction and yesterday's irregular price changes marked a new turn in the market. It was true that the day's information included suggestions more specific than those heretofore had that the vote of the locomotive engineers would be in favor of a strike to enforce their demands for increased wages, but on the other hand the expectation was strengthened that the present conference between the miners and the operators will result in the settlement of the controversy in the anthracite fields. So far as the strike vote of the engineers is concerned it has been expected all along that the men would vote in the affirmative. This expectation has been based on the usual procedure in such cases, for it is pointed out in railroad circles that a refusal on the part of the men to countenance a strike would in effect have the result of disarming the union officers in their negotiations with the railroads. A strike vote under such conditions is very different from an actual ordering of a strike. It is this view of the matter which is leading the financial district to await with no very great concern the official announcement of the vote which has been cast by the engineers. It is not so clear, however, that the matter can be settled without any concessions to the men, and this situation therefore cannot fairly be dismissed as unimportant.

The further rise in grain prices yesterday and the character of some of the private advices regarding the outlook for the crops suggest the comment that there was shown in these quarters too great haste in disposing of the hope of satisfactory returns from this year's working of the farms. The Stock Exchange, however, has seemed to pay but minor attention to the summary of the crop situation, which has been giving impetus to the grain trading of the last two days. Even there the disposition was shown toward the close of the market to minimize some of the current estimates regarding the condition of Winter wheat for the final prices, for both wheat and corn were substantially under the high prices of the day. The cotton market not only closed under the day's highest, but also well below the closing quotations of Wednesday. This week's experience in respect to crop matters serves as a reminder that we have again come to the season when the markets will be hearing much about the agricultural outlook, and when doubtless they will be swayed more or less by the opinion formed from the mass of conflicting information which invariably is presented during the course of the crop season.

*Deficit.

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

At the beginning of business to-day the condition of the United States Treasury was:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Canadian Pacific Soars.

When Canadian Pacific first crossed 200 it aroused more comment than it did yesterday when it sold at 251⅝. Many speculators predicted when the stock sold above 200 that it was going to repeat the history of Union Pacific, another issue paying 10 per cent., and suffer a sudden decline. A few of them believed this so thoroughly that they sold it short on every rise. The stock has never before sold as high as it did yesterday, and the advance came without any special developments in the company's affairs, or at least any that the general public knows about. People have become accustomed to hearing that business is always good on the Canadian Pacific and to look for increased returns as the road's land and timber equities are developed. The stock advanced 5⅝ points from the previous night's close yesterday.

Gain in Other Issues.

Traders have acquired the habit of linking the name of the Erie with that of Canada's premier road whenever any special interest develops in either, and all three classes of Erie stock benefited by the big advance in Canadian Pacific. Many people have reluctantly abandoned the idea of common control of the two roads, and believe that a traffic arrangement at least will result from the well-known friendliness between President Underwood and Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. Altogether, these were twenty-three new high records for the year made yesterday, athough the list was irregular. Some of the industrials which have not been greatly in favor in previous bull movements have been conspicuously popular in recent weeks. American Can common, American Beet Sugar, and American Malt, all fixed new high prices on the Exchange records yesterday. Another "American," Linseed Oil, made a new high record for this year.

Reports of Abandoned Wheat Acreage.

Very little accurate information is yet obtainable as to the extent of the flood damage to Winter wheat. Most of the overflow has been in sections where little Winter wheat is grown, but later reports tell of loss in the Ohio Valley, the extent of which can only be guessed until more careful observation is made. One of the results of the lack of data is the widely varying guesses, estimates of abandonment ranging from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 acres. If the extreme prove true, the loss to Winter wheat will be smaller than last year, when the acreage harvested was put at 29,162,000 acres, against 33,657,000 sown in the previous Fall. This shrinkage of 4,495,000 acres amounted to 13.3 per cent., compared with a 6.2 per cent. abandonment in 1909. This early in the season, particularly in a late Spring such as this, loss of Winter wheat area may be readily compensated for in increased yields of corn, oats, and other crops, which it is not too late to sow. Those who look hopefully forward to rich agricultural yields this year contend that the silt left behind by the floods will enrich the crops planted later.

The windows of some of the big copper men look out on a Broadway roof where repairs are being made. Sheets of bright copper are rapidly replacing the dingy tin. It is not visible from the street, and the red metal is evidently not going into the work because of considerations of architectural beauty. The copper men who watched the workmen with interest and pleasure yesterday are producers. They have been preaching the increased use of the red metal as the reason for the advance of 4 cents in the price since last Fall, and here was a concrete instance. There were reports yesterday of sales of the metal for cash at 16.10 cents, but the regular market remains at 16⅛ cents, with some sales at 16 cents. Arguing of the great strides made in copper consumption, one of the men who has a view of the new copper roof on Broadway footed up the totals yesterday, showing how the world's stocks rose and shrank in the past three years. In 1909 there was an increase of 144,000,000 pounds in the world's stocks, followed by a decrease in 1910 of 85,000,000 pounds. Last year the stocks shrank a further 90,000,000 pounds, and for the first three months of 1912 the shrinkage has been 38,000,000 pounds. This decrease of 213,000,000 pounds in the past two years and three months leaves the world's stocks on April 1 at 156,000,000 pounds.

Stock Market Averages.

Taking the averages of twenty-five leading railroad stocks and twenty-five industrials as typical of the whole stock market yesterday, the movement of prices differed from Wednesday's in that they did not range as high in the day's swing, and thus the day's mean was lower than Wednesday's. Otherwise, the average of the lowest and the average at the close were within a shade of Wednesday's. The figures, with comparisons, were:

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Gains General, Particularly in Local Issues in Principal Markets of Other Cities.

SOME NEW HIGH RECORDS

Some Pittsburgh Issues at Highest Prices—Interest in Boston Coppers Spreads to High-Priced Stocks.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets was notable for strength yesterday, and many local issues made substantial gains as indicated in the special dispatches to THE TIMES.

Though the market was narrow in Baltimore there were several strong spots. United Railways shares were again in active demand, and recovered their recent loss, the improvement being attributed to satisfaction over the annual statement and earnings. G. B. S. Brewing 4s were strong, and gained more than 1 point. International & Great Northern Corporation made a new high record at 50, and Consolidated Power common also touched a new high record price.

Bullish sentiment toward copper shares turned to the higher-priced class in Boston. Leaders were North Butte, Copper Range, Lake Superior, Mohawk, Centennial, Old Dominion, Isle Royale, Tamarack, Quincy, and Granby. The latter reached a new high level above 58, and material gains were recorded in the others. Amalgamated participated in the movement, getting close to 83, and Chino was put across 30 in the face of the rights on the new stock. Of minor issues, Adventure was strongest and most active, selling well over 7 in response to reports of the location of a new body of ore at the property. U. S. Smelting issues were active, the common crossing 40. United Shoe Machinery sagged fractionally on announcement of the $2,000,000 suit against the company, but did not display weakness. Steel and other arbitrage issues reflected the action of the Wall Street market, being moderately strong, but not particularly active. Small holders of New Haven sold at concessions of more than a point, being disturbed by proposals to place heavy additional burdens on the road. On the other hand, Boston & Maine held a fractional gain.

Local stocks were quiet on the Chicago Exchange. The most active issue was Sears-Roebuck, which responded readily to scattered buying. In late transactions Sears common advanced to 160, a rise of 2 points for the day, but subsequently receded to 159½. Can rallied, while Street's weakened. McCrum-Howell preferred fell back 2½ points, to 20. Chicago clearings were $59,891,975, and balances $3,295,749. New York exchange was 30c premium.

After fluctuating narrowly throughout the greater part of the session, local stocks in Philadelphia turned strong in the afternoon under the lead of Philadelphia Electric, Reading, and the other arbitrage shares. During the morning the trading was quiet, and only the narrowest of fluctuations occurred, except for the strength of U. S. Steel, Erie, and Reading.

The Pittsburgh market was comparatively dull, but not without feature. Manufacturers' Light & Heat was sent to 34, the highest for the movement, and since 1906, when the high point was 35. The sustained strength of this issue has been a matter of comment, and the confidence of shareholders has been one of the marvels of the market. For the past several years it has never been stronger than at present. Ohio Fuel Oil was strong, selling at from 17 to 17¼. The high level maintained is attributed to developments in the Blue Creek pool, where the company is securing marked additions to its production and a big extension to the producing area.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Much irregularity attended the dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Business was active, although not on such a heavy scale as on Wednesday. Reading's advance was an early feature, but that stock failed to sell above 168⅛, against a New York Stock Exchange high quotation of 168¼. A heavy odd-lot business was done by commission houses in Erie common, and that stock touched a high of 39¼, against 39⅛ on the other board.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

CANADIAN PACIFIC RISES

Other Americans Advance in Sympathy—Americans Firm and Higher in Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Friday, April 12.—The Times in its City article says to-day:

"There was a strong demand for money yesterday, but although the supply was restricted, the market was able to finance its requirements without applying for assistance to the Bank of England. The quotations for day-to-day advances showed a firm tendency all day. In the afternoon the rate was fully 3¼ per cent., and in some cases 3½ per cent. and upward was paid. The terms for short fixtures were also higher than on Wednesday, and the India Council was charging 3¼ per cent. for renewing loans for about a month.

"There are indications that on Wednesday the Stock Exchange did not provide adequately for its wants in connection with the settlement, as much as 4¼ per cent. being offered yesterday for loans over the new account.

"Discount rates were all raised slightly, owing more to the limited supply of money than to increased offers of bills. The rise in rates for short loans practically compelled most houses to put up their quotations for all maturities, as the fairly sufficient margin between bills and money which existed for some little time has now been trenched upon.

"The stock markets opened dull, but rallied in the late dealings, and the tone at the close was firm on the whole. A notable exception was the market for gilt-edged securities. Their prices again declined, chiefly owing to the monetary outlook, coupled with some selling from Ireland. Home railway stocks were flat during the early hours, but in many instances the whole of the initial decline was recovered.

"American shares were bought from New York, and the final prices were the highest reached, while Canadian Pacific shares were buoyant, the price reaching a new high level.

"Mexican railway stocks were favorably influenced by dividend announcements.

"In the industrial section London General Omnibus stock, National Telephone deferred, Hudson's Bay shares, and Shell Transport ordinary all reached the highest levels yet recorded. Rubber shares showed strength. The sharp recovery in the price of copper had a favorable effect on shares of the leading producing companies. There was also a demand for De Beers Diamond."

LONDON, April 11.—Money and discount rates were firmer to-day.

The stock market was irregular and uncertain. Fears of new loans and the prospects of lower railway dividends owing to traffic decreases made British shares easy. Consols declined 3-16, but Kaffirs, copper shares, and foreign securities recovered and closed steady.

American securities opened steady at small, irregular price changes. The market rallied during the first hour under the lead of Canadian Pacific. The latter was purchased for New York and advanced 4 points. The rest of the list hardened another fraction in the afternoon. The closing was steady.

Money, 3@3¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 7-16@3½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3¼ per cent.

BERLIN, April 11.—Domestic securities were quiet and steady on the Boerse to-day. American shares closed firm and higher.

CAPITALIZATION

	Authorized	Outstanding
First Mortgage 25-year 5% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds	$3,000,000	*$900,000
Preferred Stock, 7% Cumulative	500,000	500,000
Common Stock	500,000	500,000

* The deed of trust provides that additional bonds shall not be issued under this mortgage except against permanent new property, or permanent extensions, betterments or improvements, at a rate that shall not exceed 80 per cent. of the actual cash cost and fair value to the Company, and then only when the net earnings for the twelve preceding months shall have been equal to at least twice the annual interest charges on all outstanding bonds and on the bonds proposed to be issued.

The salient features of these bonds are fully set forth in a letter from Edward G. Cowdery, Esq., Vice-President of the Company, portions of such letter being summarized as follows:

1. A direct first mortgage upon all the physical property and assets of the Company, now owned or hereafter acquired.
2. Appraised reproduction value of properties, new, as of January 1, 1912, $1,304,628.31, and the then present value, after providing for liberal depreciation, $1,201,414.26, against a present outstanding bonded debt of only $900,000.
3. From July 1, 1906, to December 31, 1911, there was invested in the property $465,000 cash, of which $400,000 is now funded through issue of $400,000 Preferred Stock.
4. Gross and net earnings show uninterrupted increases for the past five years, the net income for the calendar year 1911 having been $95,699.33, equal to more than twice the annual interest requirements on these bonds.
5. The Company operates in Beloit under a franchise known as an indeterminate permit, and in South Beloit the streets are occupied by a subsidiary company under a grant issued by the Highways Commission.

The property has been examined in our interests by Messrs. Day & Zimmerman, Engineers of Philadelphia, and the books and accounts investigated in our interests by Messrs. Barrow, Wade, Guthrie & Co., Certified Public Accountants. The mortgage was drawn by Messrs. Olin & Butler of Madison, Wisconsin, and has been approved by Messrs. Masten & Nichols of New York City.

California

The per capita wealth of California in 1911 was $2,800, or $1,675 in excess of the per capita wealth of the United States. This is due to the following reasons:

(a) The opportunity for large income from natural products (the produce transported from this State last year being valued at $680,000,000);
(b) The increasing development of commercial relations, to which the opening and operation of the Panama Canal will give an additional impetus;
(c) The already large industrial growth contingent upon the scientific development of natural resources.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Miss Brice Buys Upper Fifth Avenue Plot for Residence—Good Prices for Eleventh Avenue Lots in Cozine Sale—Many Private Dwelling Deals—Suburban Market Active.

Trading on upper Fifth Avenue continues to go forward actively, the business invasion of the thoroughfare below Fifty-ninth Street creating an increased demand for residential property in the blocks to the north. Cornelius Vanderbilt, whose home adjoining the Morton residence at 681 Fifth Avenue, will soon be flanked by a business structure on the Morton site, has purchased for his future home a plot below Seventy-second Street, and yesterday Miss Helen O. Brice, daughter of the late Senator Calvin S. Brice, acquired the vacant plot, 30.2 by 100 feet, 70 feet north of Ninety-fifth Street, for her new home. Her present residence is at 693 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Streets.

Miss Brice's plot was bought from Al Hayman and Emanuel Blumenstell, who took the property in trade with Justice James W. Gerard, the latter buying a forty-foot plot in the block to the south for his new home. The plot sold to Miss Brice has been held at $100,000. Messrs. Hayman and Blumenstell own all the remainer of the block to the south, except the plot lately sold to Justice Gerard for his new house, which will be started in a short time. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company were the brokers in the deal.

Cozine Farm Lots Bring $182,850.

The partition sale of seventeen lots of the old Cozine farm, acquired years ago by the original John Jacob Astor, and now owned by various heirs, was the feature of the auction market yesterday. The Cozine property was sold by Joseph P. Day, the lots being on Eleventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, and the seventeen lots brought a total of $182,850. Bidding was fairly active, and the prices obtained were regarded as quite satisfactory. John Theurer bought the largest portion, securing ten lots on the northwest corner of Eleventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, 44.9 on the avenue and 300 feet on the street, for $68,000. The avenue plot, 44.9 by 100, was bought for $25,600. The southwest corner of the avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, 75 by 125, was bought by the Rudolph Wallach Company for $36,000. The adjoining three lots on Fifty-sixth Street were taken by William P. Rooney for a client for $28,000. John Gordon bought for a client a plot 75 by 125, fronting on Eleventh Avenue, 75 feet south of Fifty-sixth Street, for $27,100. The complete results will be found with the other auction offerings in the list of auction sales.

Woodbury G. Langdon the Buyer.

Woodbury G. Langdon is the buyer of the Schortemeier property, at the northwest corner of Maiden Lane and Pearl Street, which was sold at auction by Joseph P. Day Wednesday.

The parcel, which consists of an old building on a lot 16.8 by 60, brought $56,000. Through this acquisition Langdon squares a front which fronts 81 feet on Maiden Lane and 37.8 feet on Pearl Street. He bought 103 Maiden Lane, a lot 21 by 41.6, in 1907 for $60,000.

Demand for Private Dwellings.

The demand for private dwellings, which has been a feature of the market for the past week or ten days, continued yesterday, when several important sales were announced. On the west side the Sterry estate sold 21 West Seventy-fourth Street, a four-story stone front dwelling, on a lot 25 by 102.2, near Central Park West. It has been held at $50,000.

The four-story dwelling 44 West Fifty-sixth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5, was sold by R. B. and L. Kerr to a client of Pease & Elliman.

This is the first transfer of the property since 1870, and the third sale on the block since January, at prices averaging about $3,500 a front foot. The properties involved were No. 19, purchased by Margaret E. and Susan D. Griffith, for $92,500, and No. 59, was sold by the Esther Herman estate, while the house of the late Edwin Hawley, at No. 34, was transferred recently to Miss Cameron.

The estate of Kate McKinstry and Margaret C. Mangan has sold the two four-story dwellings, on a plot 18.9 by 100.5, at 148 and 150 West Forty-eighth Street, for a price said to be about $90,000. Adjoining the property on the east is the plot acquired several months ago by John Cort for improvement with a theatre.

Lower West Side Deals.

There were several deals in the old sections of the city yesterday. Bradish Johnson, as executor of the Lawrence estate, sold to Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum 83 West Third Street, between Sullivan and Thompson Streets, a three-story building on a lot 25 by 90. This is the first transfer of the property in over thirty years. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company was the broker in the transaction.

Charles A. Bristed has sold, through Horace S. Ely & Co., to George H. Stege 12 Harrison Street, a six-story loft building, on a lot 25 by 87.6, about 143 feet west of Hudson Street.

William Goldstone has sold 149 West Thirtieth Street, a five-story tenement, on lot 25 by 98.9, to the Security Mortgage Company. In exchange Mr. Goldstone takes 402, 404, and 406 Cherry Street, with three four-story front and rear tenements, with stores, on plot 64.8 by 100. Robert H. Jones was the broker.

Another Sale in the Pinkney Block.

Samuel Rosoff has purchased from the Pinkney estate a plot 100 by 71.10 on the south side of 111th Street, 145 feet west of Fifth Avenue. The parcel will be improved at once with a five-story flat-house, similar to the one just completed by the buyer on the plot adjoining on the west. The above parcel was the only one in the block bounded by 110th and 111th Streets, Fifth and Lenox Avenues not sold by the Pinkney estate at the recent auction sale.

Operator Buys Broadway Plot.

Max Marx has purchased from Ursula C. Burns a plot of 8 lots on the east side of Broadway, 26 feet south of the junction of Hillside and Nagle Avenues, 75.5 by 110.2 by irregular.

Bronx Borough Sales.

An important deal in the eastern section of the Bronx that disposes of another valuable corner was reported yesterday by R. H. Scobie and F. J. Wood, who sold for F. B. French and Thomas Simpson a plot of about six lots at the southwest corner of Tremont and Prospect Avenues.

Edward Rafter and John McNulty, the buyers, will improve the site, which has a frontage of 151 feet on Tremont Avenue and 100 feet on Prospect Avenue, with flat houses.

Mr. McNulty has just completed two large apartment houses on Tremont Avenue, and he is now building the southwest corner of Tremont Avenue and Southern Boulevard, with two five-story apartment houses with stores.

BUILDING MATERIAL.

FACE BRICK
Water having penetrated through the joints to the back of a wall built of bricks that are too non-absorbent, works its way to the interior wall surfaces. Seepage, sweating, condensation, and interior evaporation produce a condition of continuous saturation on such walls. This trouble is avoided where Hydraulic-Press Bricks are used, 500,000,000 made annually.

WILSON A SHIRKER, SAYS LEGISLATURE

HIS VETO MESSAGES CRUDE

TRENTON, N. J., April 11.—This was a day of political pyrotechnics in the Legislature, Gov. Wilson being the centre of attack both in the Senate and Assembly. The Republican majority of both branches joined in a lengthy statement charging the Governor with neglect in consideration of the bills passed at this session. He answered by denying the charge and countercharging that the session had been a barren and disappointing one. In part the Republicans' statement said:

'The veto messages transmitted to the Legislature by Gov. Wilson, taken as an entirety, demonstrate such a deplorable lack of study of many of the measures that it brings prominently into light a situation covering which we believe a public statement should be made.

"The Legislature has no desire to pass measures over the Governor's veto simply because it is of opposite political complexion, but the office of a veto, as defined in the Constitution, is to call attention to objections to proposed legislation that a reconsideration may be had. Of necessity, this means specific objections, founded in fact, in order that the re-examination may be intelligent.

"It is a plain case. In passing upon the legislation recently submitted to him the Governor has not performed this duty. Many of the measures were important, all were entitled to careful study. Given ten days in which to do the work the duty was met by crowding the work of ten days into two, approving ninety-odd measures and vetoing thirty-eight, and then hurrying from the State.

Didn't Aid Legislature.

"During the sessions, aside from general recommendations in the annual message, a special message urging the adoption of the Federal income tax and a message just received requesting the continuance of the employment of the railroad valuation expert, not a single policy has been submitted or suggestion made to the Legislature looking to the good of the State. The initiative throughout has been with the Legislature."

In calling attention to "the crudity of the recent veto messages" the statement cited several cases. It was pointed out that he vetoed the Reapportionment bill, with the general statement that it was a gerrymander.

"Not a single specific defect is pointed out," said the statement. Concerning the Grade Crossing bill the statement declared:

"Objected to because not forbidding the creating of new crossings, the fact being that a law containing such a prohibition, signed by the Governor last year, is already upon the statute books; objected to further as 'unjust and impracticable,' without stating why, though hints are given that different roads should be differently treated, which would make the law invalid, and that the expanse should be apportioned, which would be a violation of party pledges and of the Governor's personal pre-election promises."

Taking exception to the attack upon his official career, Gov. Wilson in reply branded as absolutely false the charge that by frequent absence from the State he has in any way neglected his duties as Governor. He called attention to the fact that although a great many of the important measures were introduced early in the session they were delayed in passage until the very end and declared that he had devoted to them the full five days allowed him. He said that none of the bills were more conspicuous than those which attempted to break down the force of the corrupt practices and Geran acts, and asserted that it was his duty to stand guard against the deliberate opening of this, that and the other door of loose practice.

"At Their Service," Says Wilson.

He said the session had been disappointing and barren and suggested that the people of the State will know where to place the blame. The Governor reminded the Legislature that it is not yet too late to retrieve the record and that it might reassure the vtoers of the State to see them turn anew to the task in a new spirit. He ended his statement with the declaration: "I am at their service."

The muddle concerning the status of the grade-crossing abolition bill was settled to-day when the Attorney General rendered an opinion to the effect that the measure did not become a law through the Governor's error in sending it to the Senate instead of to the Assembly, where it originated.

The Attorney General said that five legislative days had not ensued since the Governor vetoed the bill, and that he, therefore, had time to send his message to the proper house.

The Incidental Appropriation bill, which the Governor vetoed as extravagant, was passed by both houses and is now a law. It calls for more than $60,000 as the expenses of this Legislature.

The attack in the Assembly came when a petition was presented from the Board of Trade of Paterson condemning the Governor for spending so much time out of the State that he did not have time to give a hearing on the Grade Crossing bill. It also expressed regret that he had vetoed the measure. Several Democratic Assemblymen leaped to their feet to defend the Governor, and the chamber was in an uproar. Order was restored, however, and the communication was read.

The Governor did not appear to be greatly depressed by his defeat in Illinois, and said he cheerfully accepted the will of the people. He would not comment on what he expected to do in Pennsylvania on Saturday.

Rev. J. Stuart Holden Coming Here.

Among the passengers on the steamship Titanic sailing from England on Wednesday was the Rev. J. Stuart Holden, rector of St. Paul's Church in London, who is coming to America to hold brief missions under the Northfield Extension Movement in several cities. He will hold services in Princeton April 19 and 20, and will begin a retreat in St. Ann's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, on the 21st. He will also speak at the Men and Religion Forward Movement Conference at Carnegie Hall on these dates. Later he will visit Chicago, Toronto, Philadelphia, and Northfield.

A 5th Ave. Tailors Stock at ⅓ Cost

$75 Fifth Ave. Suits to Order $25

John Brown, late Croney & Lent, was a 5th Ave. tailor of international reputation. He never charged less than $75 a suit, and at that, his price was right.

You never saw handsomer fabrics. There are unusual shades of blue, gray, brown, all this season's designs—exclusive patterns that actually sell themselves. You simply can't resist them. And each piece of goods imported. Even the linings and trimmings came from abroad.

And our tailoring and fitting is commensurate with the high quality of these materials.

We're going to be a bit exclusive with these goods. They will be sold only at our two Broadway stores—39th and 28th Streets.

Clothes from Maker to Wearer

"A Privilege that Means $25 Suits at $15"—MOE LEVY

If a large wholesale clothing manufacturer allowed you to select a suit of clothes from his wide variety of garments; if this wholesaler sold you the garment at the same price he sells them to a retail clothier—wouldn't you go a bit out of your way to secure such a privilege?

You certainly would! All you need do to secure this unusual clothes service is to come to 119-125 Walker Street. My unique position in the clothing trade as a manufacturer selling clothes at retail—my unusual facilities with workshops and store combined—my very low rental, because of my location on Walker Street—permits me to sell you a single suit at the actual wholesale price. I save you the regular retailer's profit, or at least one-third of your clothes money. These are facts that have made it possible to build up one of the largest and finest clothing businesses in such an out-of-the-way location as Walker Street.

At $15.00 I'll show you a variety of styles and patterns such as could only be seen in the show rooms of a large wholesale clothing manufacturer. I'll show you real smart, advanced New York fashions—such as you won't find in ready-to-wear clothes anywhere, because the regular retailer has no voice in the styles of the clothes he offers you.

There is no speculation as to the wearing qualities—the clothes are made in my own workshops—under my own supervision, out of fabrics of my choice. My guarantee makes the choice of a suit only the matter of selecting the garment which strikes your fancy best. The clothes must make good, or I will. Come here, and you'll say, like thousands of others—"It certainly pays to come to Walker Street."

The Value of Prestige

Browning, King & Co

It is necessary to earn the confidence of the public in order to establish prestige that is so essential to the success and life of every business organization.

By sticking to the absolute facts in every statement we make, and by constantly improving every department of our business, we have in the course of fifty years won a considerable prestige and we have held it, until to-day this has grown to be the Largest Manufacturing Retail Organization in America.

We devote our entire time to the proper outfitting of Men, Young Men and Children. We make our own Clothing and show, in our other departments of Hats and Furnishings, merchandise from manufacturers from whom we demand the same standards that we maintain.
